Heads Push For Election In Korea

Opposition Shows No Sign Of Relenting

SEOUL (AP) — Adamant opposition leaders insisted yesterday on new elections before even considering President Syngman Rhee's plan to yield some of his powers to a new premier.

Rhee continued rounds of conferences with men in and out of the government before issuing a statement expected to divorce himself from all party politics.

Rhee also was reported ready to make other concessions to ease the crisis precipitated by last Tuesday's bloody uprisings in Korea's major cities in which at least 125 persons were killed and 777 wounded.

PARTY

"He will sever his present relations with the Liberal party," said Y. C. Pyun, ex-premier who talked with Rhee Saturday for the second time in two days. "He wants to dissociate himself from the Liberal party."

Thus Rhee would serve as a nonpolitical chief of state with a premier as chief of the government. But skeptical political opponents wondered how much power Rhee would be willing to relinquish.

They wondered whether he would insist on the right of picking the premier and Cabinet or leave that to the National Assembly as in a true cabinet-responsibility system.

Home Minister Hong Chin-ki, who sat in on some of the Rhee conferences, said the government would submit constitutional amendments to the National Assembly soon proposing the cabinet-responsibility setup, discarded in 1954.

Regardless of what the plan finally contains, there was the problem of getting it approved in the chamber where Rhee's Liberals alone are four votes short of the two-thirds margin needed to approve constitutional changes. The chamber has 152 Liberals, 72 opposition Democrats, 7 independents and 2 vacancies.

Sheriff Killed In Mississippi Ambush Attack

COLUMBIA, Miss. (AP)—Marion County Sheriff J. V. Polk, 50, a foe of whisky bootleggers, was ambushed and fatally wounded Friday night.

Known bootleggers in the area were rounded up Saturday.

District Attorney Vernon Broome said, "we have made some progress," but he would not say whether the sheriff's assassin was in custody.

Polk died Saturday, an hour or two after he had been hit in the back and head by a load of buckshot, fired at close range, while the sheriff was stepping onto his front porch in the Bunker Hill community, eight miles northeast of here.

DEPUTY

Polk and his deputy, Ray Lofton, 44, had just returned from raids on four suspected bootleg joints. Lofton said whisky was found in one of the places.

Lofton said both he and the sheriff had been threatened indirectly, but "I don't think the man who killed the sheriff wanted to kill me."

Lofton had just returned the sheriff to his home. He heard a shot, and turned around and saw Polk stumble and fall on his front porch.

Elderly Widow Assault Victim

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — A 76-year-old widow was dragged into an alley early Saturday, raped and beaten to death in what police described as the most savage sex attack in recent years. Police organized an intensive hunt for the killer, assigning 16 patrolmen and 12 detectives to the case.

Authorities said that except for a meager description of the assailant, furnished by the victim, Ida Lowry, before she died, clues were lacking. She told police that her attacker was "a big white man" who had said he "works at the bridge." She said that he grabbed her as she walked past the alley, knocked her down and dragged her into the alley.

A motorist heard a woman screaming for help as he passed an alley in the downtown district. He found Mrs. Lowry. She died at County Emergency Hospital less than an hour later.

ON AGED INSURANCE

GOP Solons Go Against Demo Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eight Republican senators who are pushing a government-subsidized health insurance plan for the aged voiced opposition Saturday to what they called a "watered-down" Democratic compromise.

They expressed "great concern" over a plan by key House Democrats to offer social security pensioners who are 72 or older a choice between hospitalization benefits or higher cash retirement payments.

The administration came out against the new Democratic proposal Friday. It has not taken a strong stand on the eight GOP senators' plan but Health Secretary Arthur S. Flemming has indicated it too goes too far.

SURPRISED

Some informed Republicans said they would be surprised if Flemming did not come up with a new alternative when GOP congressional leaders have their regular weekly meeting with President Eisenhower at the White House Tuesday.

Lawmakers in both parties have attached great political importance to election-year proposals for some sort of health insurance measure for old people.

The latest, and least costly, Democratic idea would provide 60 days of hospitalization benefits after a 10-day waiting period. It would apply only to persons 72 or older on social security. They could take either the health benefits or a $2.20 a month increase in cash benefits.

Under this plan, the combined employer-employe payroll tax, now set at 6 per cent of the first $4,800, would have to be boosted to 6.14 per cent.

The House Ways & Means Committee is expected to make a decision next week on the Democratic compromise. It already has rejected a bill sponsored by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-R.I.) and

NO NAME CHANGE

West Monroe Is Still The Same

By AUSTIN MILLER
Staff Writer

An hour after the polls closed last night, it was apparent that West Monroe would go right on being West Monroe.

Complete unofficial returns showed a vote of 1,666-417 in favor of keeping the city's present name.

Voting was light. Of West Monroe's 5,088 registered voters, only 2,083 bothered to go by the polls.

FIRST RETURNS

At 7:30 the first returns came in. City Clerk Harold Hill, his face expressionless, read "Ward 5, precinct 4. Against the proposal 158, for the proposal 15."

There was a brief pause. Then the conventions resumed.

I-20 Bridge

Bridges have ever been vital in any city or town, and Monroe and West Monroe are no exception to this rule. The past week the first steps were taken toward the construction of the fourth bridge across the Ouachita at this point. It is to cross the river near Lazarre point and when reaching across into Monroe will require removal of the old and original high school, out South Grand street.

This bridge is required for the entrance of super highway 20 from coast to coast. District Engineer Wayne H. Huckaby states the contract calls for $3,187,755. It will give work to many for indefinite time.

The construction of bridges across the river at the Twin Cities is of deep interest. The first bridge at this point was that erected in 1882 according to historians. It did much to change the name of Cottonport, as the present West Monroe was called, and from then

SEOUL, Korea (UPI) — Vice President-elect Lee Ki Poong, whose election touched off fraud charges that led to bloody rioting, has decided not to take office, his secretary said yesterday.

IN GOOD SHAPE NOW

Infant Undergoes Major Operations

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Timmy Fuller was born five months ago with cataracts blinding both eyes and a loud, scratchy heart murmur. He weighed only three pounds, two ounces.

Timmy went home from the hospital Saturday, possibly the youngest child ever to survive two major operations for heart defects. Now doctors hope they can give him sight.

His mother, Mrs. George Fuller of Plainville, was stricken with measles during pregnancy, and the infant was born a month early.

At three weeks, Timmy's heart failed. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital here, where a diagnosis showed a patent ductus arteriosus — an unnatural shunt between the aorta and the pulmonary artery.

Doctors put off surgery until the infant, weighing four pounds, could reach at least eight pounds.

Then came a series of harrowing experiences for Timmy and his parents, employed by a supermarket.

Timmy spent seven weeks at home and became ill with bronchities. He returned to the hospital for five days.

Home again two weeks later, Timmy's heart failed for the second time. X-rays showed the baby also had pneumonia in both lungs.

Doctors decided to operate as soon as the pneumonia could be cleared. The surgery appeared

Mayor's Plea To Negroes Is Ignored

Official Seeks End To Georgia Protest Boycott

By United Press International

Negro pickets ignored a plea Saturday by Mayor Lee Mingledorff to end a protest boycott movement in Savannah, Ga.

Mingledorff asked that all picketing and measures of force be halted in an effort to ease racial tension in the Georgia city. Negroes have been boycotting Savannah merchants in protest against segregation and racial discrimination for several weeks.

Many Savannah merchants have reported their business is being hurt. Several incidents of violence have occurred and anti-boycott picket lines have been thrown up by members of the pro-segregation white Citizens Council.

OFFICIALS

Mingledorff and other city officials have said other measures may be necessary. The state Executive Department has assigned Georgia Bureau of Investigation agents to investigate the demonstrations and boycott movement.

Mingledorff hinted earlier this week that the city may order arrests of demonstrators without requests by store managers. A new ordinance described as "designed to halt intimidation of merchants or citizens who patronize them "has been drawn up. Mingledorff also suggested requiring pickets to register and obtain licenses.

Man Awakes To Find Acid Poured On Face

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — A man awoke Saturday to find someone pouring acid in his face and police arrested one of his friends whose son was killed while riding with him last fall, detectives said.

Herle H. Morgan, 45, was burned on the face and neck with acid, police said. Doctors said they feared he might lose sight in his right eye because of the attack.

Officers arrested James M. Elliott, 54, and booked him on charges of assault with caustic acid. They said he had threatened Morgan after his 16-year-old son, James Jr., was killed last Sept. 11 while driving with Morgan near Kingsburg, Calif.

ASLEEP

Morgan fell asleep at the wheel and the car ran off the road and rolled over, officers said. Elliott, who denied attacking Morgan, said Morgan was asleep in the back seat while the boy—not licensed—was driving.

Elliott, detectives said, had yellow stain on his hands. He is a machinist. They said they intended to check the stains to see if they matched the acid that was poured on the sleeping Morgan.

"I woke up hearing something like water pouring and then something cold started splashing on my face. At first I thought it was water and some practical joke.

"All of a sudden, the cold stuff turned red hot," Morgan told police. "It burned something terrible. I ran to the bathroom and started washing my face.

"I never did see anybody. All I heard was footsteps going away."

One Flier Saved, Two Are Missing

HILL AIR FORCE BASE, Utah (UPI)—One crewman of a B-58 Hustler, missing since Friday, was rescued Saturday from the cold water of Great Salt Lake but the fate of two companions aboard the supersonic bomber remained unknown.

The Air Force believed the 10 million dollar plane, capable of speeds twice that of sound, had crashed in the shallow waters in the north end of Great Salt Lake or in the sagebrush-dotted desert bordering the inland sea.

The known survivor was Kenneth G. Timpson, 29, Fort Worth, Tex., a flight test engineer of the all-civilian crew.

MISSING

Missing were pilot Ray Edwin Tenhoff, 33, and Walter Simon, 32, navigator-bombardier.

Timpson, suffering a little from a night in the open, said he was ordered to bail out at 4 p.m. (most) Friday when the plane was flying about 500 miles per hour at an altitude of 17,000 feet over the lake.

The craft had just completed a practice bombing run in the Wendover area and was to make a radar bombing approach at a Salt Lake City simulated target.

Timpson said he never saw either Simons or Tenhoff after leaving the plane. The engineer parachuted into 10 feet of water, inflated his life raft, and paddled one mile to shore at Little Valley a now abandoned construction camp used for the recently completed dirt fill causeway built across the lake by Southern Pacific Railroad.

Timpson fashioned a lean-to where he spent the night. This morning he trudged until he found a sheep camp where sheepherder Chris Choulos took him to the railway flag stop of Saline where they flagged a passing freight train.

Rain Possible In Twin Cities

Residents of the Monroe area can look for partly cloudy skies with a chance of a thundershower early today. Otherwise the weatherman foresees mild and warm temperatures throughout today and tonight. High in the Twin Cities yesterday was 82 the low was 64.

The weather picture for most of the state will look partly cloudy with a few thundershowers likely near the coast Sunday.

Arkansas' weather will be partly cloudy and warm through Sunday night, with a chance of a few thunderstorms likely in the afternoon.

Interstate 20 Portion Opened

The longest segment of Super Interstate Highway 20 to be completed thus far in Louisiana was officially unribboned Saturday at Choudrant.

The stretch of super highway connects Choudrant and Ruston, 9.7 miles to the west.

It was a perfect day for the ribbon-snipping, attended by several hundred people, including federal, state, parish and city officials. And a large delegation of the press attended.

MOTORCADE

After a motorcade proceeded from Choudrant to Ruston on the new highway another brief session of speeches was held during which talks were given by Mayor T. C. Beasley of Ruston, and Mayor J. Allan Norris of West Monroe.

In Choudrant, after brief talks by Earl Williamson, vice-chairman of the Louisiana Department of Highways, James T. Folk, president of the Louisiana Chapter of Associated General Contractors and Huckaby, an official 1-20 highway marker was unveiled by J. L. Logan, district engineer for the Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

The inspection Saturday was preceeded by a round of treats for the press in Monroe Friday night. Saturday morning, Huckaby met with members of the press and others scheduled to make the tour and briefly outlined the 1-20 project and detailed its signifi-

FROM 5 1-2 MILLION MILES

Pioneer V Gets Expert Attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like a TV repairman diagnosing your trouble over the telephone, a space expert has fixed a gadget in the Pioneer V probe 5½ million miles out.

He didn't exactly fix it, but he figured out a way to get along just as well at this end without it.

The story was told Saturday night by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which said trouble cropped up early last week in Pioneer V's "telebit" unit.

This is a highly miniaturized 10-pound unit containing 450 transistors, 1,500 diodes, 1,600 resistors, 1,000 capacitors, and several thousand soldered connections.

Its function is to collect information from the probe's instruments before it is sent to earth.

Something went haywire. Some of the figures coming back from Pioneer V were obviously wrong.

Robert Gottfried of Space Technology Laboratories, Inc., which assembled the probe's inner workings went to work on the problem. He finally traced the trouble to a faulty diode—a semiconductor of electricity no bigger than a pinhead.

Using a spare unit in his Los Angeles laboratory, Gottfried worked out a new translation code which in effect bypassed the faulty diode.

"In a sense, he was able to fill in blanks caused by the malfunctioning component and interpret values which jibed with earlier Pioneer V readings," NASA said.

Says Would Kill Prospect For Summit

Washington (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle warned the Soviet Union Saturday that any sudden "brutal threat" against Berlin would wreck prospects that the summit conference can improve East-West relations.

In the midst of talks with President Eisenhower, De Gaulle said bluntly that a solution of the Berlin problem is impossible at the long-awaited summit parley three weeks hence.

The 69-year-old French leader expressed confidence however that the Big Four chiefs can find what he called a "practical start" toward world disarmament.

Ignoring American objections to the idea, he urged Western and Communist countries to join in a program of economic aid to the two billion people in underdeveloped lands.

HINTED

De Gaulle, who talked confidentially with Premier Nikita Khrushchev a month ago, strongly hinted he really doesn't expect the Soviet leader to set off a new crisis over Berlin.

"It seems to me that had the Soviet Union wanted to keep on the pressure and the threat looming over the West because of Berlin, it would have done so," he said. "And the Soviet Union did not."

But, apparently with Khrushchev's unpredictable nature in mind, De Gaulle added this note of caution: "If the relations between East and West are to be improved there should not dawn on the conference the brutal threat of any question, and in particular of Berlin."

De Gaulle took a calm, unruffled view of the problems dividing the world as he moved through the second day of his four-day state visit. Friendly

Air Pioneer Takes Life In Mansion Study

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Harold F. Pitcairn, famed aviation pioneer, took his life early Saturday with a single pistol shot. Only a few hours before he was the life of the party at a big celebration of his brother's 75th birthday.

Pitcairn, 62, whose life has been concerned chiefly with the perfection of flying, killed himself in the study of his medieval-style stone mansion, Cairncrest, in suburban Bryn Athyn.

FIRED

Pitcairn actually fired two shots. But one bullet went wild and hit the ceiling. The other drilled through his right eye.

In the house, besides the wife, was one of the eight Pitcairn children, John, and two guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Asplundh, who had come for the party honoring the brother, Raymond, a conspicuous Eisenhower-Nixon supporter in 1952 and 1956. Asplundh is board chairman of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

Dr. John Simpson, Montgomery County coroner, said the death was suicide beyond a doubt. Authorities puzzled over the motive, however, since they found no explanatory note, and all Pitcairn's intimates said he had seemed in good health and spirits. All spoke of his gaiety at the party for 450 or more guests and remarked that

BRIDGE MENTIONED

One of the things Huckaby said at the Saturday morning briefing was that construction will start in the immediate future on the bridge spanning the Ouachita river and connecting Monroe and West Monroe. Bids were received on the project Thursday.

Huckaby explained that I-20 route would be elevated over the low-lying areas of Monroe and West Monroe. "By bridging the route over the two cities, Huckaby said, "we can eliminate a great amount of noise."

The mammoth highway project, financed with 90 per cent federal funds and 10 per cent state funds, will be a 13 - year project linking the east and west coasts without left turns and red lights.

Huckaby explained that in addition to affording fast, effective travel for the public the big route is also designed to provide a fast means of evacuation of cities or military movement during a national emergency.

Representing the military interest in the new route was a contingent of troops and military vehicles led in festivities yesterday by Gen. George Trousdale, of Monroe.

In effect, the four - lane, unobstructed artery will provide a cross - country throughway. There will be no turnotts, sideroads, service stations, railroad crossings nor stop lights to delay traffic unnecessarily.

The highway may be approached or left only at junction points engineered to afford access at all major communities. The route between junction points will be fenced along the border of the right-of-way.

The stretch of highway inspected by the group yesterday was finely finished, graded and in general was well manicured the entire distance.

Maintenance of the highway, once completed, will be the responsibility of the state of Louisiana.

Members of the tour Saturday were in general agreement that the structure, when completed from coast to coast, will be an important factor in surface travel in the future.

Local and state officials from many levels attended the inspection. Among those attending were Mayor W. L. Howard, of Monroe, Rep. Lawrence Gibbs of Ouachita Parish, State Rep. Buddy Napper of Lincoln, several police jurors, town councilmen, and others.

When America's entry into World War I he signed up as a flying cadet.

He stayed with aviation after the war. In partnership with Juan de la Cierva, Spanish inventor of the autogiro, he introduced that type of aircraft to this country. Later he founded and remained president of the Autogiro Co. of America. For a time it made the celebrated "flying windmills."

In 1923, Pitcairn started an airmail line between New York and Atlanta and manufactured the planes used in the service. He disposed of the line the next year to concentrate on autogiros. His flight was in suburban Willow Grove on ground now occupied by a naval air station.

crowds applauded him whenever he appeared in public.

With President Eisenhower at his side, he took time out to lay a red, white and blue wreath at the statue of the Marquis de Lafayette, the French general who helped Americans win freedom from Britain in the Revolutionary War.

In an unusual gesture, Eisenhower walked across Pennsylvania Avenue with him for the ceremony in sun-dappled Lafayette Park. It marked the first time Eisenhower has left the White House grounds on foot since he became President nearly 7½ years ago.

De Gaulle, meeting with newsmen for an hour, paid tribute to Khrushchev as "a great personality" but made it clear he disagrees vigorously with the Soviet leader's frequent denunciations of West Germany.

"Germany doesn't threaten anybody," De Gaulle said. "France doesn't feel she is threatened by the Germany of Chancellor Adenauer. . . nor is Russia threatened by Western Germany."

De Gaulle's main theme, emphasized often with a gesture of his hand, was that East-West leaders can hope only for a very limited start in settling problems in view of current tensions.

"If we make some progress . . there will be a simultaneous change in the atmosphere," he said, "and gradually solutions to the problems that divide the world will begin to appear . . . . And after a certain time it will be possible to make further progress. Such is my philosophy."

De Gaulle described the quest for a safeguarded disarmament agreement with Moscow as one of the main talking points when the summit conference begins in Paris May 16.

He stressed a need for "reciprocal control" of the means of delivering nuclear weapons—planes, missiles and ships. Then, in one of his few optimiste comments about prospects for the summit parley, he said: "I think it possible to start on this subject from a practical point of view."

De Gaulle plugged anew for one of his favorite international projects—a joint attack by Communist and free countries on the poverty and misery of two billion people living in the underdeveloped areas.

East-West cooperation in this effort is essential to peace, he said. Even in this, De Gaulle called for a modest beginning, perhaps an agreement to help develop the Nile Valley or to control tuberculosis in Asia.

He did not mention the vigorous opposition in this country to any such project.

"It is essential that the countries which are gifted agree together, and put together their means to start this program of aid," he said.

De Gaulle sounded an implied note of warning for Khrushchev to avoid any last-minute attempt to stir up a new crisis over Berlin.

"There should not dawn upon the conference," he said, "the brutal threat of any question and in particular of Berlin."

De Gaulle had some carefully measured words of praise for Khrushchev, who met with him in Paris a few weeks ago for confidential talks.

The Soviet leader, De Gaulle said, accurately reflects the Soviet Union as it exists today because he knows his people and their problems.

De Gaulle hinted, however, that Khrushchev's struggle for leadership in the Communist party as well as his hard life as a revolutionary may have given him a one sided view of world issues in the past.

change. Precinct 2 opposed it by a 138-24 vote; precinct 3, 227-31 and precinct 6, 162-19.

Around 8, two men who had spoken for a name change stopped by.

Hill told them. They smiled and shrugged. In a few minutes they walked out.

The returns continued. Precinct 8 voted 136-29 to keep the present name and precinct 9 followed suit 253-91.

In precinct 11, the story was the same. 382 voters went against renaming, 151 favored it.

By 8:30 the verdict was clear. Most of those in the room strolled out. A few stayed to talk. Everyone was smiling.

Mayor Allan Norris gave his statement for the press.

"Now that it's over," Norris said, "let's forget the issues.

They felt Tim would have a chance, however, if he could withstand open-heart surgery to correct the narrowed valve.

on the name up to now has appeared unquestioned.

The first bridge conveyed trains across the river and also it is reported that wagons of that day and time used it when trains were not in the way.

The second bridge across the river was erected a few years later and was a toll bridge built by the City of Monroe at DeSiard street.

The third bridge was erected in the middle of the 1940's at what has made Louisville the second shopping center of Monroe. The writer of Jes' Ramblin' got an early tip through the Monroe Chamber of Commerce secretary, Sam Collins, that the U.S. had decided to have this bridge connect up with Louisville avenue. We wrote this in our column and did it make a big kick up! Merchants on DeSiard declared that it was impossible for it would have to connect up with DeSiard street, not with that quiet residence street, Louisville Ave.

Uncle Sam had his way and when the bridge constructors appeared all opposition had faded out.

Bridges really help to build a city.

The Blackwood Bros. Quartet will present a highly interesting program at the West Monroe High school auditorium next Thursday night.

This music group was initiated by three brothers and a nephew. Today only James remains from the original group and he has received the honor of the title "Mr. Gospel Singer of America." This title came to him in 1954.

Many national honors have come to this group and they are seen on major radio and television networks.

They are heard in this area every two years and draw large attendance whenever and wherever they appear.

Census Ends

The 1960 federal census is to come to a close this week as April ends and by that time it is expected that figures will be prepared to be submitted to the District Supervisor John P. Robinson.

Details of figures and other information will be issued by the government at Washington later as these are made available.

Student Government

Monday will prove a red letter day for seniors in West Monroe high school for groups from this source will "run" the city of West Monroe on that day, for it is an affair held yearly.

The new "officials" will comprise: Reggie Vaughan, mayor; Roscoe Halcomb, city judge; Bobby Swanner, fire chief; Joe Ashley, police chief; Murray Burford, Sylvia Hayden, Winona Head, Millie Hislop and Neida Stewart, aldermen.

The student officials will be guests of the Jaycees at Walt's restaurant for dinner.

Visit Gardens

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Will F. Davis, of the Twin Cities, have just completed a visit to the wonderful Bellingrath Gardens and Home at Mobile, Ala.

This place, as is well known, has a nation-wide reputation for its camellia collection, one of the very largest in the United States, and for its mass blooming azaleas.

This amazing floral collection is such as to draw throngs of guests all through the year. It is owned by a non-profit organization for the benefit of three colleges and two churches.

Dedication

A group of West Monroe students are scheduled to attend dedication of the Bunke Youth Center Tuesday. Any here who can attend will be well received at the occasion.

A group of West Monroe students are said to be planning to attend the affair.

Greetings

Friends of William Maurice Smith, dean of men at Northeast State College, under the presidency of Lewis C. Slater, now residing in Lake Charles where he has a responsible position with the city schools, sends greeting to his many friends in Monroe, but regrets to inform that his mother, another educator of note, recently went through a rather serious operation. She is now at home and slowly recovering.

WEALTHY EXECUTIVE

Coors Missing For 10 Weeks

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — More than 10 weeks ago wealthy brewery executive Adolph Coors III vanished near his home not far from this little suburban Denver community.

It was Tuesday, Feb. 9. The time was about 8 a.m. The sun was trying to penetrate the skies. Snow blanketed the mountains. Children were bidding their mothers goodbye and heading for school.

The 44-year-old Coors had left home at 7:55 a.m. to drive the 12 miles to the Coors brewery in Golden. He never arrived.

His carry-all type station wagon was found abandoned at the edge of a small bridge spanning Turkey Creek. The engine was still running. The radio was playing.

These were the symptoms of violence at the scene: The bridge railing and the back of the seat of the station wagon were splattered with small spots of blood. Downstream from the bridge in the creek bed were found Coors' long-visored cap and his eye glasses.

These were the clues that day—the day that touched off perhaps the greatest mystery in Colorado history.

These are mostly the clues today, more than 10 weeks later. State and federal authorities appear no closer to solving the mystery today than they were a few hours after the muscular, quiet-spoken Coors dropped from sight.

Officers concluded immediately Coors was kidnaped. They began a thorough but vain search. As the seconds, the minutes and the hours passed, Coors' wife, Mary, and four children waited. Nothing happened.

Finally, Mrs. Coors asked officers to abandon their search of the mountain-surrounded vicinity hoping against hope this action would give the kidnaper—if there was one—an opportunity to contact the family. She prayed for a message saying her husband was still alive.

Notes arrived. Some 15 or 20 of them. Most of them made ransom demands of as high as a half million dollars. Officers had no way to tell whether even one of them was genuine, and none was followed up.

Days passed. There were no developments. Sheriff Arthur Wermuth said it could not be determined whether the blood found on the bridge was that of Coors.

Officers searched hillsides and the mountains. Coors' family remained in tight seclusion. Some authorities expressed the opinion Coors' body would be found when spring sunshine melted away the snow that blankets Colorado's mountains and ravines in February and March.

February disappeared. Most of March passed. Then came what may or may not be a significant development. The date was March 29. It was revealed that an escaped California killer, Joseph Corbett, Jr., 31, had disappeared from the Denver home where he lived about four years. Corbett vanished Feb. 10, the day after Coors' disappearance.

Corbett, living under the alias of Walter Osborne, was placed on the FBI's list of the 10 most-wanted criminals the following day. The FBI will neither confirm nor deny that Corbett, son of a Seattle, Wash., newspaper man, is a suspect in the Coors investigation.

Corbett's disappearance has become just as much a mystery as that of Coors. A week after Corbett left Denver, police at Atlantic City, N.J., found an automobile blazing on a city dump. The vehicle contained the same engine number as a 1951 yellow (Mercury) sedan purchased by Corbett in January. The ownership was traced to Walter Osborne of Denver.

Corbett is known to be a gun enthusiast. Acquaintances said he went into the mountains alone on many occasions to engage in target shooting. A foreman at Coors' place along the mountain fringes told authorities he saw a yellow car similar to Corbett's in the vicinity of the spot where Coors' station wagon was found abandoned.

Corbett, employed in Denver by a paint company, escaped in 1955 from a prison farm at Chino, Calif., where he was serving a term for second-degree murder committed in 1951.

There are two theories regarding Corbett. Some contend Corbett's disappearance was merely a coincidence and that the FBI would have placed him on the 10 most-wanted criminal list for the California prison escape even if Coors hadn't vanished.

The other theory is that the mystery of Coors' disappearance will be solved when authorities locate and question Corbett.

Ask the FBI what it thinks about each theory and the answer's the same:

"No comment."

It's spring in the mountains now. Warm and mellow sunshine has started to melt the deep winter snows. Sheriff's deputies already have renewed their search of the broken, ravine - cut country surrounding the Coors' ranch-type home. Authorities in mountain counties west of Golden, likewise, are seeking clues to the mystery.

60-DAY SESSION

Legislature Set For May 9 Date

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana Legislature opens a 60-day session May 9 with Jimmie H. Davis, the incoming governor, assured of a cooperative attitude because the public elected him with a record vote.

Davis has charted a course of political harmony the next four years to help settle this wobbly state on a firmer fiscal foundation.

In Louisiana, the governor is all-powerful. He is the political boss, the party leader, the patronage king, the keeper of the state's pursestrings.

There is bound to be plenty of legislative strife, a lot of noise is certain. But the first Legislature in a new administration always belongs to the new governor, while the lawmakers wait for later sessions to bring home their own bacon.

Traditionally, those who don't play ball with the governor at the start are liable to find themselves far out of the center of events in the coming years.

First of all, Davis, no fiscal magician, must help solve the fact state spending is far above state revenues. State fiscal officers right now are struggling to find the answers without the horror of a new tax raise. Davis is against tax hikes. So are many legislators.

Davis already has called upon lawmakers to help control state spending, and even has suggested the giant 16-million-dollar school lunch program might stand trimming down by letting children able to pay do so.

Right off the bat, a major issue facing Davis is renewal of two cents of the state's 2.3-cent natural gas severance tax. The two cents expires Aug. 1. It takes a two-thirds majority vote for new taxes.

James S. Reily, Gov. Earl K. Long's fiscal chief, warned loss of the 50 million dollars a year from the tax would mean disaster for public schools. And budget requests for all state spending is 65 million above current spending.

Davis is looking hopefully toward 306 million dollars in offshore oil revenues held in escrow pending a U.S. Supreme Court settlement of the gulf boundary issue. But that is a long way off.

Gov. Long, hopefully waiting for Davis to ask some advice, already has offered it unsolicited. He suggested dusting off his wine tax raise of a dollar a gallon to produce an extra 10 million, with 12 million in all if whisky is raised two bits.

There are ever present murmurs of the possibility of the state's two-cents sales tax being raised. That would bring bitter floor fights.

State Education Supt. Shelby Jackson is still insisting on full implementation of teachers pay. Some lawmakers, angered at opposition from school and educational sources in the Democratic primaries, are likely to strike back when they get a chance.

Sen.-elect Wendell Harris, Baton Rouge, and others will sponsor one of the key Davis proposals, a state sovereignty commission, to supervise not only segregation questions but all questions of federal invasion of states' rights. Even the tidelands boundary is likely to be handled by the commission, expected to be patterned after the Mississippi version.

Outside the general administration area, scores of key proposals are being drafted.

Rep. Richard Bertrand of Lafayette Parish, unsuccessful in such efforts previously, will try a constitutional proposal replacing the 60-day regular sessions with an 80-day split session, to give lawmakers more study time. It also would end the odd-year, 30-day fiscal session, an idea that has attracted some attention from Davis.

NAME COLLEGE PRESIDENT

Ward, 49, at present head of the History Department at Carnegie Institute of Technology, will take office July 15.

WESTERN EUROPE

Agricultural Revolution Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — A developing agricultural revolution in Western Europe poses a threat to the export markets of American agriculture.

This revolution centers largely in the six countries which joined together in 1957 to form the European Economic Community for the purpose of establishing a common market. They are Belgium, France, Western Germany, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

These countries have worked out proposals intended to encourage improvements in their agricultures, to merge the six agricultural markets, and to unify farm policies and programs.

Using modern technological developments, the Common Market area could greatly expand its food production. It might become, in time, a sizeable exporter instead of a net importer.

The situation is being regarded with concern at the Agriculture Department—but just how much is concealed in an analysis of the prospects by production and trade experts. The analysis could have an impact on the attitude of Congress toward new farm legislation.

When word of the study reached newsmen, Deputy Administrator Raymond B. Ioanes of the department's Foreign Agricultural Service declined to make it public.

A successful agricultural program along lines now envisioned by the Common Market countries could cut a large chunk out of U.S. export markets, aggravate surplus problems and possiby develop strong support for a return in the United States to more rigid farm production control programs.

The Western European farm program will seek to cure one of the basic weaknesses of agriculture there, the division of farm land into many small, inefficient units. Consolidation is going forward rapidly and with it mechanization is supplanting hand and animal draft power. Production skyrockets.

This program calls for elimination of all trade barriers among the six Common Market countries. Under this new setup, commodities could move freely, just as they do among the states in this country.

The proposal that troubles farm leaders in this country perhaps the most is the Common Market goal of obtaining self-sufficiency in production of most foods and an exportable surplus in some others. Such a program moves away from the principle of freer trade being preached by this country. Under the free trade concept, each area would be encouraged to produce those things it can produce most efficiently and cheaply.

In the case of most farm products, European production will be more costly than in the major agricultural exporting countries of the world. In order to achieve the self-sufficiency, the Common Market countries plan to employ high-level price supports and incentives and import barriers to keep out cheaper products produced in this and in other countries.

The program also envisions the payment of subsidies to move any surpluses into export markets.

It long has been the feeling in this country that Europe, with its density of population and other problems, would be better off economically to specialize in industrial production and to depend more fully on the big agricultural countries for foods which, it is argued, could be supplied European consumers more cheaply.

To encourage formation of larger and more efficient farming units, the Common Market countries plan to help surplus populations on the land find opportunities elsewhere, just as this country's rural development program is attempting to provide similar aid to low-income farming groups in this country.

The Common Market countries have proposed specific programs for 10 farm commodity groups—wheat, feed grains, sugar, dairy products, beef, pork, poultry, eggs, fruits and vegetables, and wine. For each of these groups, the six national markets would be merged into one common market, and a common agricultural program would be developed.

Brooks Sees Machine War, Not Manual

Chairman Overton Brooks chairman of the House Committee on Science and Astronautics warned yesterday that if another world war broke out, it would be fought principally with man - monitored machines, with battles being directed by mechanical computers.

The war would be fought so fast, he declared, that the President if he could be found in time, would have ten minutes "to order retaliation or have our forces wiped out on the ground."

SCIENCE'S PART.

The Louisiana Congressman emphasized the part science and technology would play in another world conflict, if one should occur, in an address last night at the state convention of the Louisiana Department of the Reserve Officers Association at Lake Charles.

"Today," he stated, "our nation is looking at the scientist and engineer for survival in the future. The next world war may well be won during the preparation phase.

"The changing techniques of modern warfare will put us in a push - button type of war with electronics and weapons playing the most important roles. Men will provide the gudiance and the pre - battle data, but the machine monitored by man, will do the job. Warfare will be so fast that computers will be required for intelligence reports, force controls and battle directions.

"The big problem regards the decision to launch a counter force," declared the congressman. "If the counter force consists mainly of aircraft, they can be launched immediately and recalled if the attack is false. However, in a few years the largest portion of our strike force will be a mix of land, sea and air launched ballistic missiles that cannot be recalled."

Brooks said that sometime in the not - distant future the Midas and Samos satellite systems will provide the United States with almost immediate warning that a ballistic missile attack has been launched and, prior to that, with knowledge of military preparations for an attack. Still another military satellite program, called the Courier, will provide positive communications in the time of emergency.

Brooks emphasied that all -out war may never occur, but that the United States may be faced with "peripheral warfare" and "brush fire wars."

"By keeping a string arsenal in both categories, we firmly believe we can prevent war, "stated Brooks. "This is possible if we keep our defense up by maintaining a technological lead in weapons development."

Belk Gallant's Founder's Day Celebration is being held in honor of the late W. H. Belk, who, 70 years ago first put into practice merchandising policies which today are widely accepted and praised.

Long Declares Aid Payments Should Be Cut

WASHINGTON (Special) — Sen. Russell B. Long said Saturday that the U. S. should halt foreign aid payments to countries which already "have enough of our money to empty Fort Knox."

"It's not that they can't pay," he said. "It's us.'

Long, a member of the Senate foreign relations committee considering the foreign aid authorization bill, said annual expenditures for the program should be cut in half.

The Senate observed in a statement that the pending bill would set a top limit of about $4.5 billion on the mutual security spending, including all phases of the aid program, for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Long also urged a "drastic cut" in the Cuban sugar quota. He said the U.S. guarantees the Cubans an extra $150 million a year above the world price for its sugar sold in this country.

He said the Rep. Harold Cooley (D) N.C. — and chairman of the House Agriculture committee — has defended the Cuban quota because a severe reduction would "punish the people of Cuba" as well as Cuban Chief Fidel Castro.

Long said that "we had to kill some German people" to defeat Hitler in World War II, "and I don't think we have any choice about it as far as Castro is concerned."

He said that the U. S. President should be empowered to reduce the sugar quota so that "Castro and his crowd can know what they are getting from us is something that we can terminate any time we are willing."

Long is also a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which will consider any changes proposed for the Sugar Act, under which Cuba is now guaranteed about one-third of the U. S. market.

MYSTERY OF BUSTER CRABB

His Whereabout Is Still A Big Puzzle To Many

By GREGORY JENSEN

LONDON (UPI) — Four years ago this Tuesday two men checked out of a seedy waterfront hotel in Portsmouth, England. One has never been identified. The other touched off one of the greatest international mysteries of the postwar era.

There are some who insist yet today that the mystery is still unsolved. They are certain Cmdr. Lionel "Buster" Crabb, the greatest frogman hero of World War II, is alive.

"There is no doubt about it," says Neville Armstrong of the publishing firm of Neville Spearman Ltd. "Crabb is alive and working in Russia."

Armstrong's firm this week published a book documenting that claim. "Frogman Extraordinary" by Bernard Hutton is said to be based on a secret Russian dossier, smuggled across the Iron Curtain, which "concerns Crabb's dive to examine a Russian cruiser, his capture by the Russians and what happened to him after that."

But there are others who claim that the mystery of Buster Crabb has been solved — so far as Crabb himself is concerned. They believe his headless, handless corpse lies in an unmarked grave at Portsmouth, where he died on a still-secret mission.

Whatever the ending, the known elements of the Crabb case are still mysterious enough to outdo the intricate plot of an imaginative fiction writer.

CHECKS INTO HOTEL

As in all mysteries, the timing of events is of prime importance. Here is the timetable of what is known about the disappearance of Lionel Crabb:

—April 17, 1956: Crabb, a famous and much - decorated frogman, checked into the inexpensive Sallyport Hotel on Portsmouth's waterfront with a man called "Mr. Smith."

—April 18: Three Soviet ships steamed into Portsmouth harbor carrying then Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin and Communist Party chief Nikita Khrushchev to their "B and K" visit to Britain.

—April 19: Russian sailors got a two-minute look at a mysterious frogman on the surface of the water between two of the Soviet ships.

That afternoon "Mr. Smith" returned to the Sallyport Hotel and checked out for both himself and Crabb. Crabb's luggage vanished. Some time later, criminal investigation department detectives ripped out of the hotel registration the page listing their stay.

—April 29: The Admiralty officially announced that Crabb was missing and presumed dead. It said he had disappeared while testing underwater apparatus some three miles from the Soviet ships.

—May 4: Russia sent a formal protest to Britain about the frogman who appeared near the VIP ships.

—May 9: Then Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden, in a formal apologetic note, told Russia the frogman "was in all probability Cmdr. Crabb. His presence in the vicinity of the destroyers occurred without any permission whatsoever."

Parliament thundered with questions. Late that afternoon Eden rose to say: "It would not be in the public interest to disclose the circumstances in which Cmdr. Crabb is presumed to have met his death...What was done was done without the authority or knowledge of her majesty's ministers. Appropriate disciplinary steps are being taken."

—Speculation filled the press of two continents for weeks thereafter. Repeated questions in Parliament got nowhere.

—Early in June, 1957, 14 months later: A headless, handless body in a black frogman's suit washed up at Chichester, near Portsmouth.

—June 26, 1957: Coroner George Bridgman ruled that the body was Crabb's. "Minor" details of the body "added up to a conclusion which cannot be resisted and was beyond sheer coincidence," he said.

—Early February, 1960: Armstrong made disclosures about the new book on Crabb.

—Feb. 17, 1960: Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, under pressure in Parliament, said "I have no reason to think there is any truth in the suggestion that the coroner (who ruled that the headless body was Crabb's) was wrong." He said no new information about Crabb had been received.

Those are the known facts. They leave a lot of questions unanswered including this one:

Is the body buried in Portsmouth one planted by Russian submarines — to cover up capture and removal of Crabb to Russia?

Northeast Class Makes Field Trip

Nine Northeast Louisiana State College zoology students learned what it is like to transfer their classroom to Grand Isle for a six - day and night study period.

The marine field course for Zoology 151 students was supervised by Edward Whatley, associate professor of zoology and Bobby Walker, laboratory assistant in biology and taxidermist at the college.

The project was designed for practical application in the collection, classification and study of marine life, ranging from small specimens to large fishes. Grand Isle was selected for its wide variety of specimens, Whatley said.

Preparation for the trip was made in class meetings, where instructors discussed types of marine life which students might find and the classifications of these.

In the field, the group collected specimens during the day, worked on classification and made a detailed study of their findings at night under Whatley's supervision. They supplemented this information by reference work on animals which live in different environments.

The class visited Grand Terre Island to inspect the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Laboratory, directed by Dr. Lyle St. Amant. They were taken on the Commission's boat for a trawling trip to Barataria Bay, where they boarded an oyster boat to observe the dredging for oysters.

Each student made a collection of marine life, and he will prepare a written report of the field trip and the specimens in his collection.

IN SECURITY PROGRAM

Committee Points To Some Mistakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Saturday that mistakes have been made in the mutual security program but that the worst mistake of all would be to abandon it.

"There is no reasonable alternative to the mutual security program as an instrument of U. S. foreign policy," the committee said in a report on a bill authorizing $4,145,600,000 to carry on the program.

The total, approved by the committee Wednesday, is $29,130,000 less than President Eisenhower asked for the new fiscal year starting July 1.

However, the bill only sets a limit on spending. Actual funds to finance it will have to be provided in a separate measure.

The committee's report, submitted by Chairman J. William Fulbright (D-Ark), said the only alternative to the foreign aid program suggested at its hearings was increased defense spending at home.

Committee Hits Defense Group

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee accused the Defense Department Saturday of trying to hush up "scandalous black market" currency activities by U. S. military personnel in Turkey.

The committee blistered the department's handling of the episode in its 65-page report on the foreign aid authorization bill. It said "American military authorities failed to take proper steps to prevent the black market currency ring from developing."

BOAT-O-CADE

Flotilla Joins Inauguration

From 350 to 500 boats are expected to participate in the boat-o-cade parade to be reviewed by Governor-nominee Jimmy H. Davis and his entourage during pre-inaugural ceremonies May 8, according to chairman of the inauguration committee, W. L. (Buddie) Billups.

The statewide boat-o-cade will bring legislators, outdoor enthusiasts and Davis well - wishers to the capitol, where they will be reviewed by Davis from barges moored to the levee just south of the Old State Capitol.

The Coast Guard granted approval for the parade abreast Baton Rouge and Port Allen, and will provide a safety patrol to promote safe boat handling and safety of life and property during the event.

STATEWIDE

Making up the boat - o - cade will be flotillas of boats from throughout the state, ranging in size from the 14 ft. family type boat to yachts 105 ft in length. The boats will be carrying legislators, boating enthusiasts and other citizens interested in focusing national attention on the state's thousands of miles of navigable streams and its water resources.

Boats coming down the Mississippi from the north will rendezvous at St. Francisville while boats coming up from the south will rendezvous at Plaquemine before forming into lines for the parade.

Each flotilla will fly pennants or will otherwise be marked to indicate its point of origin.

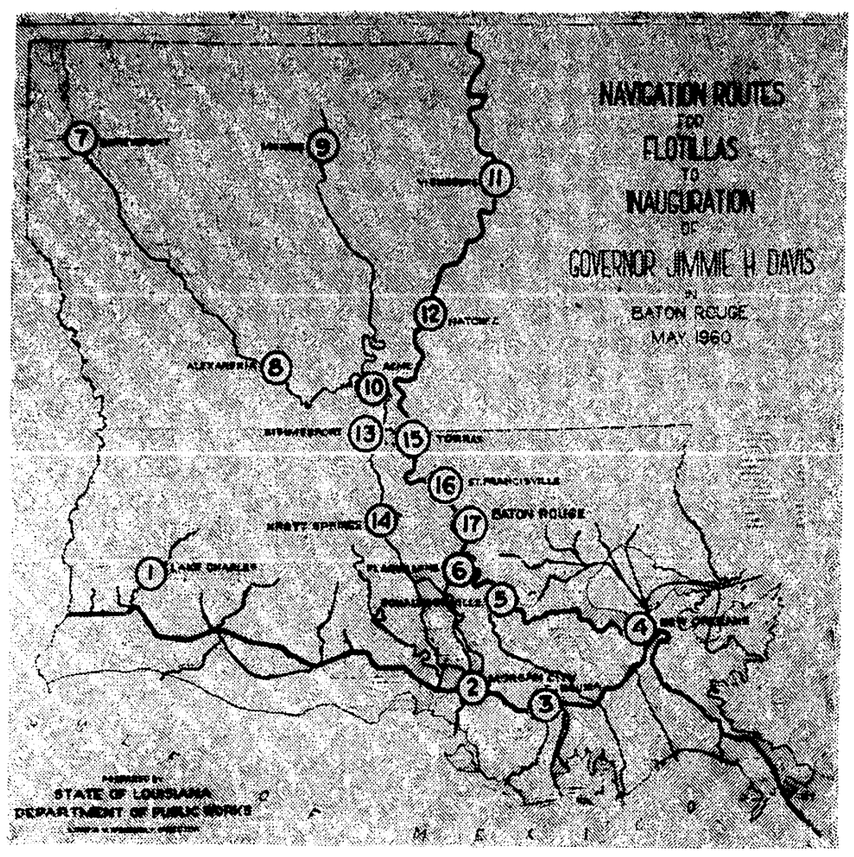
Cruise captains for flotillas from the Shreveport - Bossier City area, the Monroe - West Monroe area, Jonesboro - Hodge, Alexandria, Marksville, Many, Breaux Bridge, Lake Charles, Morgan City, Houma and Plaquemine have been appointed by mayors at the points of origin of each flotilla.

So far, representative - elect C. R. Ammons, from Many in Sabine Parish, will have the distinction of being the legislator traveling the longest distance over water to the capitol.

In all, Ammons will travel over approximately 370 miles of the state's navigable waterways.

Lieutenant Governor - nominee C. C. (Taddy) Aycock will travel by water from Morgan City and Attorney General Jack P. F. Gremillion will make the cruise from Lake Charles.

Some legislators plan to make the entire trip by water to be greeted by Governor Davis. Others who are unable to make the trip by boat from their home districts but who want to join other legislators and participate in the latter stages of the boat-o-cade will be picked up by boats at Donaldsonville, Plaquemine, St. Francisville, Simmesport and Krotz Springs.



USING THIS MAP which shows water mileage to Baton Rouge, boating enthusiasts from throughout the state will travel over thousands of miles of Louisiana's navigable streams to take part in a giant boat-o-cade that will parade past Baton Rouge on Sunday afternoon, May 8. The boat-o-cade is part of the pre-inaugural festivities of Governor-nominee Jimmie H. Davis.

CANDIDATE FOR Street Commissioner
ATTENTION CITIZENS

Electricity rates should be reduced in Monroe at the earliest possible opportunity. If elected to the City Commission I will lend my fullest cooperation to reducing our electricity rates so that they will be in line with those afforded in other cities.

If there is any doubt in your mind that electricity rates are excessive in Monroe, just ask your friends in West Monroe what they pay for electricity. Then compare.

It is unfair for our residents to pay these extravagant rates for utility services. I stand for reducing the rates to a reasonable figure.

Scope Of The Civil War

Toll Was Greater Than Any Other U. S. Conflict

The World is proud to call your attention to the full-page, colorful Battle Map of the Civil War on Page 1-B. This map traces the entire history of the Civil War, from Fort Sumter to Appomattox . . shows at a glance the Northern and Confederate states. It is one of many Civil War Centennial features you will be finding in News-Star—World during the current year and four years ahead. The map presented today will be a handy reference and guide to this information. It will be especially valuable as a classroom aid for school children.

By PHILIP VAN DOREN STERN

As the curtain rises on the centennial years, the battle map on page 1-B graphically shows the tremendous sweep and the scope of the American Civil War.

Hostilities began at 4:30 a.m., April 12, 1861, when Confederate batteries in Charleston Harbor fired at Fort Sumter. They ended, for all practical purposes, on April 9, 1865, at Appomattox when Lee surrendered to Grant.

During those four years more than 600,000 men died (more than in any other merican war), and hundreds of thousands were crippled for life.

The direct cost to the northern states was about $3,400,000,000, to which must be added $8,200,000,000 paid for pensions, making a total of $11,600,000,000. What the Confederate states spent is unknown, but it must have been many millions, for their currency and bonds became worthless at the end of the war.

Countless other millions were lost when factories, public buildings, homes and ships were destroyed. It seems likely that the Civil War cost America at least $20,000,000,000 — an enormous sum for those days.

It freed nearly four million slaves at a cost of $5000 per slave. Lincoln had wanted to buy their freedom peacefully by money from a long - term federal loan. He thought $400 per slave was a fair price.

The major strategic land movements included the four-year struggle to take Richmond; Lee's two invasions of the north; the capture of the Mississippi River, which cut the Confederacy in half; and the drive to Atlanta and the sea, which cut the remaining half in quarters.

The ships on the map indicate the blockade that finally prevented the Confederacy from getting essential supplies from abroad. Naval warfare ranged around the globe. Confederate cruisers prowled the Atlantic, Indian, Pacific, and Arctic Oceans. One of them — the famous Alabama — was sunk on June 19, 1864, by the U. S. S. Kearsarge off the coast of France.

Land fighting, too, ranged beyond the area shown on the map. There were battles in New Mexico, Arizona, and California, an Indian uprising in Minnesota, an invasion of Vermont from Canada, and clashes at arms in all the territories of the west. More than 10,000 engagements, major and minor, took place.

Men died not only in the big battles; 1861 were killed, wounded, or missing in the fight at Olustee, Florida; 164 in the raid on Lawrence, Kansas; 142 at Glorietta, New Mexico. No one knows how many perished in the bloody draft riots that swept New York City in July, 1863. More than a thousand civilians and soldiers may have been killed then.

Union records and statistics are fairly good; Confederate are not because many of them were lost or destroyed. More than three million men took part in the war, and more were killed by disease than in battle.

The bullet was the most dangerous weapon, responsible for 94 per cent of all the wounds. Only 5½ per cent were caused by cannon, grenades, or land mines. Surprisingly enough, cutting or stabbing weapons like bayonets, knives, or swords inflicted only ½ of 1 per cent of the wounds.

When the war began, the regular U. S. Army of fewer than 16,000 men had 114 surgeons; of these, 16 left to join the Confederates. More surgeons came with the new volunteer regiments, north and south.

Antisepsis was still unheard of so a doctor would pass from one wounded man to another with bloody, unwashed hands, unknowingly spreading disease and death. Field amputations were common, with ether or chloroform used as anesthetics — when available.

A wounded man had a better chance for survival if he was cared for in a private home or open - air tent hospital than if he was put into a hospital building where infection sometimes raged through the wards.

Yet despite all the horrors of such a war, the conflict went on year after year with neither side willing to quit. But the common soldier — the man who had to do the actual fighting — seldom bore grudges and fraternizing with the enemy was widespread as tobacco, newspapers, and even food were passed between the lines.

At the beginning, it was felt shameful to take cover, so thousands died in picturesque but murderous open - field charges. The men — and their officers — gradually learned.

At the end of the war, during the long siege of Petersburg and Richmond, earthworks had become so extensive that the fighting settled down to a stalemate foreshadowing that of the even more heavily entrenched First World War.

The Civil War saw the use of such novelties as brass cartridges, successful repeating weapons — even including primitive machine guns — ironclad warships, crude submarines, underwater torpedoes (exploded electrically and by contact), aerial observation, field telegraphs, and armored railroad cars.

In 1890, the pension office predicted that the last Union veteran would be dead by 1945. This actual guess was wrong by 11 years, for Albert Woolson, the last Union survivor, did not die until 1956. And he was outlived by three Confederates. When Walter Williams, the last of them, died in Houston, Texas, on December 19, 1959, the Civil War was really over.

The president issued this formal statement:

"The chief actors in that great and tragic drama have all passed from the world stage. No longer are they the Blue and Gray. All rest together as Americans in honored glory."

To the men of those great and now vanished armies, at last reunited in Valhalla, a hero's toast: Skoal!

(Note: You may want to clip and preserve the map for future reference when the various anniversaries come up during the Civil War Centennial Years — 1961-1965.)

TOUGH BIRD

SOUTH BELMAR, N.J. (AP) — A nearsighted alley cat has been waging a bloody battle for the conquest of a concrete cardinal.

The imitation bird perches on the rim of a backyard bird bath. Twice it has been knocked to the ground, its painted plumage marred from the claws of the cat.

The cat, its teeth cracked and out of line, seems to have learned nothing from its painful experiences. It goes on stalking and leaping.

Diversified Transport

Various ways in which diversified transportation would help the public, the railroads, some other common carriers, business and industry have been pointed out by the Association of American Railroads.

Legislation pending in congress would remove artificial restraints that now prevent all surface carriers from operating air transportation and that handicap railroads when they seek to operate highway and water-borne services. The legislation would afford carriers of any mode equal opportunity to provide service by other forms of transportation under conditions no more restrictive than those that apply to others seeking such authority.

Water transportation authorities are protesting enactment of any laws which would put the railroads into water transportation business. They contend that the railroads eventually would monopolize water transportation and then would be able to set monopolistic rates for all types of transportation.

Present restrictions grew out of certain language in the interstate commerce and federal aviation acts and are in addition to the general restrictions of those two acts that no one may engage in for - hire carrier operations by motor or water without the approval of the interstate commerce commission or, if by air, without civil aeronautics board approval.

Railroads contend that these restrictive policies, especially in the case of motor and air operations, have come about almost entirely by reason of administrative interpretation and construction rather than because of specific terms of the statutes.

To provide for freer and more flexible diversified transportation, Representatives Walter Rogers of Texas and John B. Bennett of Michigan and Senator John Marshall Butler of Maryland have introduced somewhat similar bills on three subjects. Subject to the approval of the different regulatory bodies, these bills would permit any carrier to offer services by water and air and by the various forms of land transportation.

In each case, the carrier wishing to operate another mode of transport would have to prove to the satisfaction of the appropriate regulatory authority that its entry into the field is required "by public convenience and necessity" or "consistent with the public interest," as the case may be. In such cases, whether involving a new entry or an acquisition of existing facilities, it is assumed that the regulatory agency would consider the competitive effect upon existing carriers in the field.

Many heavy and bulk - type commodities, formerly handled almost exclusively by the railroads, are now being moved by water or pipelines. Much of the lighter - loading traffic is moving by truck, while air transportation is taking more high-value freight away from the surface carriers.

Meanwhile, the self-supporting railroads, still the most versatile and necessary of all carriers in times of peace and war, are handling a diminishing share of total traffic in competition with other forms of carriage that utilize highway, waterway, airway and airport facilities provided and maintained in large degree by public funds.

Diversification of transportation would provide shortcuts affording the shipper a complete transport service under one management.

The desirability of allowing common forms of ownership of different forms of transportation, as far as the railroads are concerned, becomes more clearly apparent as the forms of transport become coordinated. This development is best illustrated by the growth of "piggyback" or trailer-on-flat-car traffic and container operations which have increased many fold within recent years.

The public is best served if the carriers on which it relies are financially strong.

Undoubtedly, the most flexible combination of types of transportation, with only enough federal regulation to prevent monopolies and consequent excessive prices, will best serve the public interest. This seems to be the purpose of the bills now before congress.

Wordy Advice By U. S.

Although the United States won't take any kind of a strong position against antagonistic action by Communist or Communist - inspired countries, it is too free with unsavory advice to countries that are friendly with us. South Korea and South Africa are examples of friendly nations we try to tell what to do and Cuba is an example of a nation that can slap us in the face a dozen times and get nothing more than a soft answer.

Ignoring our own use of bayoneted troops in Little Rock before any violence to speak of had occurred, our state department, in a direct act of interference in the internal affairs of another nation, severely censured South Africa for using force to put down violent uprisings. Again ignoring the Little Rock incident, Secretary of State Christian Herter called on President Syngman Rhee of South Korea to end "repressive measures" against his political opposition, undoubtedly composed of Communist elements which, prior to and during the Korean War, attempted to turn all of Korea over to Red China. This included South Korea, which was almost anti-Communist.

Practically everyone knows that the United States lost many thousands of men and spent many billions of dollars in preventing the Reds from seizing South Korea.

Secretary Herter was reported to have said that if the demonstrations continued "it will be unpleasant for President Eisenhower when he goes there" June 22. The president is scheduled to stop off in South Korea on his way home from his Moscow trip.

Of course, the scheduled trip of the president is hardly an adequate reason for asking the South Korean president not to do anything to put down an uprising.

The warning was said to be the stiffest lecture ever delivered to Rhee's government by the United States, since the United States went to the defense of that country when it was attacked by Communist forces. Since then the United States has been trying to get South Korea admitted to the United Nations.

Our attitude seems to be friendly with our enemies and harsh with our friends.

That is the best way to lose friends and make enemies.

Johnson Status

Not Believed Helped Or Hurt Much By Civil Rights Bill

BENEFITS DIVIDED — Political benefits from the new civil rights bill are much discussed. Leadership of both parties was for it as adopted to such an extent that it became almost nonpartisan. But there will be a scramble for political advantage from it between now and November. Much of discussion of bill has revolved around political effect on Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, man most responsible for bill. Prevailing opinion: It hurt Johnson little if any in South because block of 18 Senators from Confederate States are telling homefolks Johnson kept it from being a real tough bill. Opinion also is that it helped Johnson little among civil rights advocates in North. Actually, Northern liberals are saying that the bill represents a Southern triumph. Liberal purpose is to attempt to put Johnson in camp of Southerners and cripple his Presidential ambitions. Outstanding feature of long fight was shrewd strategy of Southern group led by Senator Richard B. Russell of Georgia.

HEALTH INSURANCE CERTAIN — Some sort of health insurance legislation is now regarded as certain to be passed in mid-June and in such shape it will receive Presidential approval. Surest bet is that it will not be AFL-CIO-backed Forand bill. Principal objection to Forand bill is that it would increase social security tax for both employer and employee, and while all retired persons under social security would be entitled to special hospital and medical benefits, it would leave out a total of 4,000,000 persons not entitled to old age benefits under social security.

* * *

THE ROOSEVELT SUPPORT—Politicos believe Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., has staked his hopes of a political comeback on the Presidential fortunes of Senator John F. Kennedy. Some of World War II President has been in thick of both Wisconsin and West Virginia fights. Speculation is that Roosevelt might serve as Navy Secretary in a Kennedy Administration. (Both Theodore and Franklin D. Roosevelt were Assistant Secretary of Navy.) But ambition of F. D. R.'s namesake is to be Governor of New York and he has not given up White House aspirations. Some politicos think Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and all Roosevelt sons except John (he is a Republican), will wind up in Kennedy camp.

* * *

FUTURE OF BOMBER — It now appears certain that the next Administration will have to make a firm decision about what this nation is going to do about development of the Valkyrie B-70, the bomber capable of flying at 21,000 miles an hour at an altitude of 70,000 to 80,000 feet. This was clearly indicated when Administration halved the Air Force's budget request for the 1961 fiscal year. Newest estimate is that a 200 to 300 plane B-70 program might run as high as ten billion dollars.

* * *

PICKING YOUR OPPONENT—Vice President Richard M. Nixon makes no bones about who his favorite for an opponent in the November election is. He prefers it would be Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts. Moreover, Nixon loses few opportunities — public or private — to predict Kennedy's nomination. Similarly Kennedy has the same sort of good words about Nixon.

* * *

PULSE TAKERS BUSY — At least five professional polling organizations are busy in West Virginia. Not only are the Kennedy and Humphrey camps feeling pulses, but soundings are being made by other Democratic Presidential aspirants. There are between 30 and 40 firms which do private polling, and a dozen of them may be employed in West Virginia in the next two weeks. Some politicians, pointing out that the big poll failures (Landon to win in 1936 and Dewey to win in 1948) occurred at twelve year intervals, warn that 1960 is another 12 year interval.

* * *

WATER AND PEACE — State Department believes that if a cheap way of desalting seawater for irrigation in arid countries can be developed it will go a long way toward improving the economic conditions of those countries with a resulting help to world peace. Five different processes of salt water conversion are to be tried by United States. Bids for construction at Freeport, Texas, of first saline water conversion demonstration plant will be opened May 16. Others are to be located in California, South Dakota, New Mexico and at a site still to be selected on the East Coast.

Foreign Aid Hit

Passman Asserts 'Money Smellers' Are Getting Big Share

(Editor's Note: This editorial is from a recent issue of the Chicago Daily Tribune.)

As Mr. Eisenhower's 4.175 billion dollar foreign aid bill started its way through the house, Rep. Otto Passman of Louisiana, the chairman of the appropriations subcommittee which shapes the bill, provided his house colleagues with a few of the realities about foreign aid.

* * *

First, Mr. Passman suggested, a good many of these expenditures are not in aid of foreign nations or activities, but are in aid of an American lobby with a vested interest in the perpetuation of foreign aid. Among the interest involved, Passman stated, were manufacturers "who profit from the program," as well as colleges and universities which also profit.

One need only refer to the composition of the original committee for the Marshall plan, which was organized when this campaign was first being served up to congress, to discover that there were a lot of important people and groups who smelled dollars in the offing. Many of the largest American industries and banks were enlisted as propagandists . . .

To these volunteer lobbyists it has been simple to add some church organizations, groups of citizens who think anything "foreign" is necessarily wonderful, internationalist elements of the press, and do - gooders who think it is immoral for America to show any signs of prosperity when so many parts of the world do not.

* * *

Finally, there is the government itself. There are the thousands of bureaucrats in the mutual security program, scattered through 76 countries; the White House and state department, with their prestige, and the defense department. The pressure and propaganda from these sources, said Rep. Passman, is shocking.

Mr. Passman went on to say that there is more than meets the eye in the annual requests for additional aid appropriations, no matter how large they may be. If the president asks for 3 or 4 billion dollars, the real bill each year is more like 10 billion, the Louisiana congressman said. Part of this represents accumulated interest on what "we have to borrow to give away," dating back through years of uninterrupted wholesale handouts.

* * *

Additional billions which do not show in the current mutual security bill represent previous appropriations not yet dissipated. At the moment these backed up funds amount to 8 billion 111 million dollars.

Rep. Passman's analysis should prompt the members of congress to take a more critical look at the pending bill. The cuts so far made by the house foreign affairs committee are a mere 136½ million, and of this sum one improbable item was for $350,000 to help our pal, Fidel Castro, streamline the revolutionary Cuban government's civil service.

CAMPUS SUCCESS

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The Yale School of the Drama has been experiencing considerable success with its spring tour of "John Brown's Body," the dramatization of the long narrative poem by Stephen Vincent Benet.

With a cast of 30 players it has been a hit in New York City, Washington and Annapolis. And it may extend its tour as a benefit of the drama school's scholarship fund.

"John Brown's Body" tells the story of the 1859 raid at Harper's Ferry, W.V., by the noted abolitionist, John Brown.

Neither Whites Nor Negroes In West Virginia Discontented

BUS-BORNE TO WEST VIRGINIA — By speech, by interview, by innuendo, by the torture of overused statistics, the presidential candidates and their cohorts in the West Virginia primary will soon be telling me what America is. Well — me first, this time. This chronicle of a newsman's Easter Day will tell as much of the USA, I think, as the tiresome complaint of the in-season politician.

Midnight till 9 a.m. found me profoundly asleep in a beautiful old Maryland manor house, the home of F. A. (Downie) Bonsal, Jr., a famous steeplechaser in his day (and mine), and now a country gentleman and race horse trainer of renown. We had all slept the sweeter because on Saturday afternoon we had watched Frank Bonsal, III, ride the family pride, Sagatash, to victory in the John Rush Street Memorial steeplechase. (I am unable to suppress the fact of record that in 1931 and 1942 the winners of this same steeplechase were ridden by this presently overweight columnist.) Among the sport - loving hundreds, I saw the Democratic and Republican candidates for the second district (Md.) congressional seat plying their trade. The most discussed presidential aspirant was Sen. Stuart Symington, whose kinsmen were on every hand and who spent some of his youth among these people. Like most home - products, Symington is least appreciated by those who "knew him when." Undoubtedly this was a sports - minded, old-fashioned, deep - rooted community — but still, I take it, "in" the USA. Nowhere here did I detect among whites or Negroes any desire whatever to save the world, share the national wealth, or repeal the natural laws of racial integrity.

Nine a.m. to 11 a.m.: While my betters prepared for church, I set off on the melancholy duty of visiting a beloved relative who, at 80, is finishing her days in a private nursing home. It is run for profit by two physicians who bought up this fine mansion at a bargain price. They have no difficulty filling their rooms with elderly patients whose bills are paid from savings or by their surviving families. I sat with my own dear relative and watched the televised rendition of the impressive Easter ceremony at the National Cathedral. The end of life is sad beyond human expression. Religion does not explain to us all why mental and physical suffering is so much in the scheme of things — but nothing I saw in this kindly retreat indicated that Americans are callous and negligent (as the politicians charge) toward their failing oldsters.

Noon till 1:30 p.m.: All along the back roads to Washington, one drives among the white cherries, the yellow forsythia, the budding dogwood, the woodlands showing bloodroot and with hazel, the oak trees still sullen and black, but the maples opening their tender shoots — the whole gorgeous pageantry of April defying the onlooker to be anything but glad to be alive, even in a life of sorrow. More than once on the roadside, fathers and mothers were adoringly posing their dressed - up children for snapshots. A triumphant boy of about ten was driving a small tractor which hauled his baby sister in her wagon, while the father applauded with pride, and the mother wrung her anxious hands. A country church released its holdings of white dresses, pink bonnets, short - lived corsages and eternal humanity. I saw nothing in all this of an American people who didn't (as is so often charged by social reformers) care for their youngsters, the familial unit, the marital institution.

Two to 2:30 p.m.: When you're a writer, you live by the grist and the chaff which fall through your mail slot, so I went by my office to pick up yesterday's mail —which included a column-clipping from a Mexico City reader and a note from my syndicate about adding a new client in Tallahassee, Florida. On the way to the apartment, I passed the egressing congregation from a large, brick, stained glass - windowed church on M Street, just off Sixteenth. It is the most segregated church in Washington — all Negro.

Three p.m.: After a fast plate of home - made spaghetti, I hurried to the Greyhound Terminal to start the 7-hour bus ride to Clarksburg, W. Va., to pick up the campaign trails of Candidates Humphrey and Kennedy and their horrendous descriptions of America, so unlike my own. Unpacking my typewriter to write this column and wondering (as often before), "Where's the next one coming from?" I commenced, at day's end, another day's job.

Views Of Our Readers

COMMENTS ON EDITORIAL
Chicago, Ill.

To The Editor:

The recent editorial in the Monroe Morning World entitled "Water Carrier Threat" has come to my attention. As president of a company that is a corporate citizen of Monroe and also as president of one of the two railroads that are seeking to buy the John I. Hay Company, I should like to say that the pamphlet issued by the American Waterways Operators, which is quoted at length in the editorial, is quite misleading of the facts of the case.

The fundamental fault in most of the arguments against rail ownership of a barge line is that it is folly to think the railroads can destroy the barge business. The volume of traffic moving on the rivers is enormous. It supports many barge companies. Our purchase would not create a new company, but merely continue in operation an old existing firm.

As I said in my recent statement before the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Southern Pacific and the Illinois Central intend to operate the Hay Company as a separate company under the same management it now has. It is not our intention to interfere with the management of the water carrier.

* * *

The constant statement that railroads would seek to destroy the barge business is fantastic. Barge lines have the same rights and the same protection under the Interstate Commerce Act as railroads, pipelines and truck companies. Certainly the Illinois Central and the Southern Pacific do not intend to make a heavy investment in a barge company merely to destroy that company. On the contrary, we intend to improve that company, to improve the equipment and the service rendered by the company.

One thing that ought to be clearly understood is that rail transport has been dropping at an alarming rate: it has gone from approximately 75 per cent of all intercity tonnage at the end of World War II to approximately 45 per cent at the present time. During that same time barge traffic has boomed. In the last two decades barge tonnage has practically tripled! The drop in rail traffic is not due to any inherent fault in railroads, but rather to a whole set of conditions which are harmful to common carriers in the transportation industry.

We want to get into the barge business for a very simple reason, and that is to be able to offer an over-all transportation service desired by the shipping public. If we hope to stay in business, we have to give the customer what he wants.

* * *

At the present time, we cannot do this. Newspapers in general have been sympathetic over the plight of American railroads. The public wants to see railroads restored to financial health, because most people realize that railroads are the backbone of our transportation system in the United States in peace and in war. But instead of sympathy, the railroads want the simple rights other companies have.

It is time, too, that the American people come to appreciate the fact that railroads alone, except for the pipelines, pay their own way completely. Through substantial taxes they help support local government and the schools. Indeed, railroads help pay for the very improvements upon the inland waterways that are used by our competitors but whose use is denied the railroads. It is an ironic situation.

What the railroads seek is the same business freedom possessed by other companies, including newspapers. I do not think the Morning World owns radio or television stations, but certainly all over the United States newspapers do own and operate radio and television stations. It is a logical and sensible situation that an older form of communications has been permitted to move into newer fields of communications. The same situation should prevail in transportation.

Has newspaper ownership destroyed radio and television? It has not. Nor will railroad ownership of a barge line destroy the barge business. It is no good to describe a past day in transportation when conditions were almost completely different than they are today. Monroe and the whole nation will benefit when the railroads are given a fair chance to stay in business.

APPROVES BILL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Banking Committee approved a House-passed bill Friday to extend the Export Control Act for two years.

The act, due to expire June 30, empowers the Commerce Department to control exports of strategic commodities to the Sino-Soviet bloc and to apply controls to prevent excessive drain of U. S. scarce materials to foreign countries.

New Books Make The Best Smeller List By A Nose

By W. G. ROGERS

NEW YORK (AP) — Now you can buy a book that smells.

That doesn't mean a book condemned by the critics, but just what it says, a book that smells supposedly good.

There have been pop-up books for youngsters with a jack-in-the-box effect between the pages, and "feel" books with pictures of, say, rabbits with real fur which a child can rub.

At last it's the turn of adults. They have attended the movies called Aroma-rama, with appropriate smells blown into the theater. They get in the mail perfumed advertising matter from department stores. Today they are hearing sweet news of another sort:

"Monarch Books announces its new perfume-o-book process for its paperbound books."

STARTING WITH PERFUME

If you liked buying books for the jacket colors that matched your livingroom design, you can now get yourself in good odor with visitors by having books with the right smell. The day is here when you can't tell a bookstore from a drugstore, or a bookshelf from a windowbox.

Monarch has started with an infusion of a Chanel 5 type perfume, it says, on three novels made from movies: "The Enemy General," by Dan Pepper, based on the movie starring Van Johnson and co-starring Jean Pierre Aumont and Dany Carrel; "The Stranglers of Bombay," by Stuart James, based on the movie starring Guy Rolfe; and "The Brides of Dracula," by Dean Owen, originating in a technicolor item.

Monarch puts the odor on the jacket just after the four-color printing process has been completed, and expects it to last many months. It intends to use a special saddle-leather scent for westerns, floral odors for flower-arrangement books, and bacon, beef, chocolate, vanilla, thyme, basil and what-not for cookbooks.

But the possibilities are unlimited. They could use brimstone on the current best seller called "The Devil's Advocate," and lily for hymnbooks and catechisms. Gardenia would be just right for Roald Dahl's "Kiss Kiss" and to be sure you'd have your own ideas about such titles as these:

PICK YOUR SCENTS

"Inhale and Exhale," William Saroyan; "Peter Whiffle," Carl Van Vechten; "Cakes and Ale," W. Somerset Maugham; "Daisy Miller," Henry James; "The Good Earth," Pearl Buck; "The Grapes of Wrath," John Steinbeck; "Huckleberry Finn," Mark Twain; "So Red the Rose," Stark Young; "Tobacco Road," Erskine Caldwell; "Bitter Lemons," Lawrence Durrell; "Vile Bodies," Evelyn Waugh.

You'd naturally know what to do with "The House of the Seven Gables," unless you've forgotten the name of the author.

We'll go into bookstores with these requests:

"I want a book for an old aunt but she's alergic to jasmine."

"Something for an invalid, but not too strong, please."

"Have you got 'Advise and Consent' in sandalwood?"

Rose is for "Rose is a Rose is a Rose is a Rose," by Gertrude Stein; and inevitably, "Rosemary, that's for 'Remembrance of Things Past,'" by Marcel Proust. There are petunia, heliotrope and cinnamon just waiting to have books done for them. Sex appeal will change to scents appeal, and we shall read about offenders caught in fragrant delicto. A man with his nose in a book will have reason for it. Books will be printed in an olfactory, and there will be the usual lists of 'the best smellers of the year."

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Each week brings it's quota of interesting new books and this past week is no different. "South of the Angels" is the title of a novel by Jessamyn West. This is a rich and spacious book and has for its panoramic background the founding of a community, some forty years ago, on a vast tract south of Los Angeles. We meet a variety of memorable men and women, two sharply contrasting couples from Kentucky, a born philanderer, a newspaper editor and his beautiful wife, two elderly Quakers from Kansas and many other interesting characters. Jessamyn West always writes well and this novel will be eagerly accepted. Robert Nathan is known for his books of fantasy. His latest book is called "The Color of Evening." This is a bittersweet novel and by far, Mr. Nathan's tenderest and most heartwarming. "Leviathan" is the title of a new book by Warren Tute. It is about a great liner and Mr. Tute has done a wonderful job. "Leviathan" was a small world, filled with color, variety, passion and tragedy. In creating this book, Warren Tute has not only succeeded in bringing to life the whole intricate and enthralling operation of a great ship. He has explained, as far as anything so intangible can be explained, the almost indescribable mystique of the great passenger lines.

"Some Angry Angel" is the title of a novel by Richard Condon. It is a novel about the life and death of a newspaper columnist. It is the story of a man who rose to riches and fame, but was never able to forget his origins. His own acts caused his destruction, but read this book to find why. "Lasso Round the Moon" is the title of a book by a young Norwegian writer whose work has created a sensation throughout Scandinavia. Agnar Mykle is a natural story teller, a writer whose prose carries a vigor rarely found in contemporary writing. This is a story of a young man hovering on the edge of maturity and caught between his extravagant dreams and the frustrations of reality. In this vital and impressive novel, he finally learns to come to terms with himself and with his destiny. A light and delightful novel is "Dear Miranda" by Guthrie Wilson. It is a story of a modern career girl and the men in her life.

Of course, there is bound to be a rush for Jack Paar's "I Kid You Not". I need only mention that we have it. Jack Douglas, author of "My Brother Was An Only Child" has another book which he calls "Never Trust a Naked Bus Driver."

A very excellent new book for any person who wants to read constructively is "The Lifetime Reading Plan" by Clifton Fadiman. A very beautiful book is called "Jesus Loved Them" and was written by Sam Patrick. The illustrations are particularly beautiful. Another religious book, concerned with the observance of the last supper is "With Christ in the Upper Room" by Lynn J. Radcliffe. John Boynton Priestly is the author of a very splendid new book called "Literature and Western Man." Herbert Hoover has written about his experiences in World War I, which he calls "An American Epic." "Evergreens for Every State" is a beautiqul book by Katherine Mallet Cloud. A new cookbook of great interest is called "The Best of All" cook book and was written by Florence Brobeck. Camera enthusiasts will want to see "Eye, Film and Camera in Color Photography" by Ralph Merrill Evans.

An interesting travel book about Japan is "The Bridge of the Brocade Sash" by Sacheverell Sitwell. It throws new light on this strange country. Every Southerner will want to read "The Case for the South" by William D. Workman and everyone in other parts of the country should be required to read it. It is a book which deals fairly and reasonably with conditions of today. An interesting new biography is "In My Fashion" by Bettina Ballard. This is the memoirs of a designer. "The Selected Letters of Charles Dickens," selected and edited by F. W. Dupee, sheds much new light on this figure of English literature.

Truth About Hungary's Nagy Affair

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE NAGY AFFAIR (Praeger):

Friends and associates of late Premier Imre Nagy of Hungary present a painstaking document which revives that brief period three - and-a-half years ago when Hungary exploded and briefly threw off Communist rule. Most of the book is devoted to dissecting a White Book issued by the Soviet - installed Hungarian puppet regime which contained the indictment, certain testimony and judgment in the secret trail that sent Nagy and other Hungarian leaders to the gallows or to prison. Why revive the tragic story? A preface by the late Albert Camus explains: "We must prevent it being said, or even suggested by a hint, that the hanging of Nagy and his friends was correct. It was a revolting crime, which not even the most oblivious may be allowed to forget."

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

The opening of "Guys and Dolls" last night at Selman Field Playhouse marks the home stretch of the 1959-60 season of live entertainment for the Twin Cities.

According to Little Theatre Director Ivan Uttal, the musical is slated to run 10 days or so.

Louisiana Tech also closes its season this week with two performances by concert organist, Virgil Fox. The recitals, which will take place in Howard Auditorium, are scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

MUSICAL FUNNIES

"Guys and Dolls" is the third musical comedy in recent years put on the boards by the Little Theatre. The others were "The Boy Friend," and "Pajama Game." Only several weeks ago, several departments at Northeast State College pooled their efforts for a successful presentation of "The King and I." In the heat of last summer, W. J. Haddad assembled a group to put on "Oklahoma" at Neville auditorium.

Then from the banks of the Hudson River in New York, we hear that "Bye Bye Birdie" another musical, has made use of two forms of Ouachita River talent. Jimmy Cisco is dancing in the show and L. Slade Brown is co-producer. Since the production seems to be headed for the black ink financially, it is hoped some more local talents will turn up unearthed and multiplying in the big city. Just be sure to bring the profits back down South to spend, angels!

Be that as it may, it appears musical comedy is gaining a strong footing in the entertainment world. Serious opera is also in solid, though it does not get the notoriety of the lighter musicals. As has always been the case, the funny and serious shows have a wider appeal than the symphonies, which possibly sagged a bit this past season under the lectureship of Leonard Bernstein.

EXACTING

There is a great deal of kinship between heavy and light opera with the latter piling up debts each season to the former. That is to say, a good musical comedy of 1960 borrows plenty of stage stunts from Wagner and Verdi than was the case a century ago when those two masters of opera were trying to sell their stuff in person.

The spoken lines in a Victor Herbert operetta around 1910 always sound like stilted bridges between the yet attractive melodies. But in the Siamese - bent English lines in "The King and I," the contrast is not so pronounced between song and speech. Hence even Broadway is wising up to Wagner's theory promoting a combination of music and drama.

Local persons who went up to see "Bye Bye Birdie" commented first on the smooth piece of work by director Gower Champion in making the show a polished production. In addition to this, the humor was there.

Even as recently as 20 years ago, a comedy not only lacked finish, as a rule, the rough edges were left that way on purpose. Now, we see musical comedy demanding all the rigor of rehearsals and attention to detail which serious opera has practiced for centuries.

Does this mean the comics are going "square?" Not at all, they're timing the jokes better, putting the makeup on straighter and generally striving for more fun than idiocy.

POPULAR

THE HANK WILLIAMS SONGS by THE PETE KING CHORALE. Kapp, KL - 1186 (LP), KS-3186 (stereo). Hank Williams gave America's Country Music what Stephen Foster gave to spirituals and folk songs and what Jerome Kern gave to ballads and music of the theatre — immortality. His contribution to music will remain constantly fresh as the years pass, for he has earned a special place in our musical heritage. Pete King who records exclusively for Kapp Records re-creates the songs of Hank Williams with all the vitality and musicianship worthy of the great songwriter. The chorale group makes the stereo sound sensational.

Cole Porter's "CAN-CAN." Starring Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine, Maurice Chevalier and Louis Jourdan. An original soundtrack album by Capitol W-1301 (LP). Such a story and setting as "Can-Can" are ideally suited to the genius of Cole Porter. Throughout this soundtrack album, his captivating melodies and clever lyrics sparkle like the gems they are. Each of the four great stars has a large share in this wealth of song. They are all heard in solos, duets, and full ensemble numbers. And, in the songs as well as the dance sequences, listeners will recognize the deft touch of Nelson Riddle, whose arrangements and conducting magnify the many delights of this outstanding Cole Porter musical. The recorded quality is superb and the music is very delightful.

"HERE COMES JERRY KELLER." Orchestras directed by Richard Wolfe and Glenn Osser. Kapp, KL-1178 (LP), KS-3178 (stereo). A record called "Here Comes Summer" pushed a young man named Jerry Keller into nationwide attention last year. High in the record charts, this song — his own composition — was also top of the Hit Parade overseas, earning his distinction of being the first American artist to be awarded Britain's Silver Record. This is Jerry's first album and should also be a big hit. When Jerry and the arrangers made their selection of material for the album they agreed immediately on every one of them. Only one missing from the list — "Unchained Melody." Jerry had been carrying this song around with him for as long as he could remember, always hoping to include it in an album if he had the chance. I believe this is the greatest selection on the album. Musical interest is very high throughout the complete album.

CLASSICAL

SCHUBERT: Symphony No. 8 in B minor ("Unfinished") and Symphony No. 2 in B flat major. Karl Munchinger conducting The Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra. London CS 6131 (stereo). The Eighth Symphony is undoubtedly Schubert's best known works, probably all because of the air of romance that is bound to surround anything unfinished. It is correctly labeled since the young man (then twenty-five) wrote only two of the customary four movements, but it is beautiful, such a blend of rapture and sorrow that it is like a great, though short novel. Schubert's Second Symphony is lightly scored, as though for a private performance and gives the impression of orchestral chamber music. Karl Munchinger directs the orchestra superbly and the recorded sound by London is no less than superb.

Sound Of One Hand Is About Japan's Life

THE SOUND OF ONE HAND, by Laurence D. Savadove (Duell Sloan and Pearce):

Since the end of World War II thousands of westerners, mostly Americans, have been drawn to Japan. In this novel Savadove, who learned Japanese at Harvard and lived in Japan for several years, explores this compelling attraction, probing the motives of the transplanted westerners. The story concerns Endicott, wealthy New Yorker, who has settled in a tiny Japanese farm village. He suspects his own motives for being there. The arrival of his mother to take him back to what she considers civilization forces Endicott to make his decision. This is a thoughtful and well - written tale.

Broadway

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the cheering notes of the current theater season has been the emergence of a number of likely new actresses.

Among them are Lauri Peters, a youthful standout in "The Sound of Music"; Elisa Loti, an Ecuador citizen of Austrian pareutage who has attracted much attention in off-Broadway's "Come Share My House" drama; Jane Fonda, daughter of Henry, who had a personal triumph in the "There Was a Little Girl" failure; London's Juliet Mills in "Five Finger Exercise"; Risa Schwartz of "The Tenth Man"; Wynne Miller, niece of the late Glenn Miller, appearing in "A Thurber Carnival" and Rochelle Oliver of "Toys in the Attic."

But none has received more fervid appreciation than a moderately tall, pretty brunette named Eileen Brennan who is the leading lady of the off - Broadway musical hit, "Little Mary Sunshine."

Viewers of the Ed Sullivan, Jack Paar and "Music for a Spring Night' television shows in recent weeks have had a chance to watch Miss Brennan and appreciate her looks and singing. But you have to see her operate in the framework of Rick Besoyan's spoof of the old American opperettas to become a real fan. Her role in the show at the Orpheum Theater calls for the most subtle sort of comedy sense, and she is exactly right in this department.

Although there is a lot of singing in "Little Mary Sunshine" and Miss Brennan does a large part of it in the operetta style of full voice, she has had no training as a singer. She went to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts here to study dramatic acting, but the first professional work she got was with a touring night club act that called for her to work in sketches and sing.

She was around from time to time as Besoyan went through the heartaches of trying to raise enough money for production of his show and, when available, helped sing the auditions for the backers. When the opportunity came to get the show on — but not on Broadway as had been hoped — she just sort of automatically became the leading lady.

Miss Brennan is a native of California, but she grew up in Washington, D.C., where her family still lives, and attended Georgetown University for a while before coming here to the American Academy.

"There were some rough times," Miss Brennan said. "I've waited on tables in cafes and taken other jobs to keep myself going. I don't know how many times I've moved in four or five years — the rent problem, you know."

She is content for the present to stay with "Little Mary Sunshine," although uptown producers are dangling offers.

"It would take a really fine offer to get me to leave," she said, "and I'm not just thinking about the money angle. I mean it would have to be an excellent part in a production that, as nearly as one could predict, would be a winner. There would be no point to abandoning this wonderful role and show for just any old thing simply to get on Broadway."

Winter In The Heart About Czar's Fall

THE WINTER IN THE HEART. By E. M. Almedingen. Appleton-Century - Crofts. $395.

Russia is balanced dangerously between past and future as this novel opens: Defeat is near in World War I, catastrophe threatens the czar and the Bolsheviks are about to flood irresistibly across the new pages of history. Father Louis in old St. Petersburg, though he had longed to go back to his secluded studies in Rome, is sent off by his religious superior to a crude village on the frontier of Finland. He knows books, he has lived a sheltered, monastic life, he has never had to deal with the sick, the poor, the greedy, the dishonest, the sinners of this world. Now he has these characters to face, and worse, and he must do it in the turmoil of a changing society.

Will Father Louis transform his special competence from bookish to human values in time to help the fated townspeople? Will they learn to accept him in time to rely on his strength and wisdom against the newly born brute force of the state? The picture of the local upheaval, told in a quiet and assured prose, gives this novel its interest and importance.

GIFT FROM AMERICA

Nothing Illustrates Deep Poverty Like Quick Wealth

SAN MARCO D'URRI, Italy (AP)—Nothing illuminates poverty so clearly as sudden wealth.

"We can now afford the luxury of a flower pot or two in our window," said one villager.

"Maybe now we can get a cow," said another.

"Or another pig," said a third.

"At least, now my son can stay in college," said a fourth.

The drab grubby existence of life in this tiny mountain village suddenly has a new color, a new vitality. Suddenly people have plans, from a flower pot to a college education.

All because of the "bel regalo," the beautiful present which came last November from America, from the sons of an orphan befriended by San Marco d'Urri 100 years ago.

The gift was a block of 25 shares of Bank of America stock for every one of the 291 villagers. Since then, they have each received two dividend payments totaling $20.

In America, two people can spend more than $20 for a single meal.

In San Marco, two people can live a month on $20. It is almost as much as a man earns in a month.

So the gift from America means hope in a village where poverty is as old as the cracks in the walls of the houses bugging the mountainside. Most people began to make plans with their new money.

But poverty is so engrained here that some villagers refused to believe anyone would give them anything without a catch in it; they refused to sign the stock papers. Others accepted the gift but refused to spend any of it.

San Marco is tucked away in the rugged Appennine Mountains about 30 miles south of the great port city of Genoa and 10 miles inland from the plush Riviera. But the Riviera and Genoa are in one world, San Marco in another.

Even the biggest maps overlook it. The main highway misses it by a good three miles. The road into San Marco is little more than a rocky, mountain path, barely wide enough for a small car.

A score or two of houses, grizzled and cracked with age, make up San Marco. There are no streets. Steep, slippery footpaths connect the homes, sprawling over a 2,000-foot hill with terrace after terrace of potato fields. The only store adjoining the only bar is perched a quarter of a mile up the hill from the tiny village church.

Little more than a hundred years ago—in 1858—the Avanzino family adopted an infant boy. The orphan grew up with the name of Leopoldo Saturno. Nobody remembers why the boy was given that name or where he came from.

San Marco then had twice as many residents, but its rocky fields could not support them all. Hungry stomachs spurred many ambitious village youngsters to leave. They went to America, to Australia, to other European countries.

When Leopoldo Saturno was 20, he left, too, for the United States. Ten years later he sent for an orphan girl of the village and married her.

In Reno, Nev., he built up a fortune in real estate. He corresponded regularly with the Avanzinos. Then in 1919 he died. The letters stopped, San Marco all but forgot the name of Saturno.

Then suddenly last year — 40 years after his death—San Marco heard the name again, in an electifying way. Saturno's two wealthy sons, Joseph and Victor, decided to do something for their father's hometown. They had never seen it. But they had heard him and their mother talk about it. They hit on gifts of bank stock worth a third of a million dollars.

There were skeptics in Italy who said the villagers would sell their stock as soon as they got it and squander the money.

However, the skeptics overlooked the reputation for frugality among residents of the Genoa area. Italians call the Genoese the Scotch of Italy.

If anyone has sold his stock, he has not admitted it.

"It's not that we haven't had a chance to," said Telma Avanzino, 36, whose great grandparents reared Leopoldo Saturno. "The 'truffatori' (confidence men) came into San Marco the day after we received our stock certificates. But I don't know of anyone who sold out to them. The more they insisted, the more we realized we had something worth keeping."

The villagers have decided to build a memorial in a hillside clearing a few feet from the Avanzino home where Saturno grew up.

It is to consist of busts of Saturno and his wife Teresa which a sculptor from a nearby Riviera town is to create from old photos. The cost should be less than $900, each villager chipping in a little from his dividend money.

They have written Saturno's two sons that the memorial will be ready in summer, and the two men have promised to come here for the unveiling.

Until then—and perhaps after—the brothers will remain something of a mystery in San Marco. They are Americans who have never been in Italy. They don't even speak Italian. Their letters have to be sent to Genoa for translation.

"How will we talk with them?" one villager wondered.

"Don't worry," another replied. "When men have a heart like theirs, it is easy to talk with them, in any language."

LassoRoundThe Moon Top Book

LASSO ROUND THE MOON. By Agnar Mykle. Translated from Norwegian by Maurice Michael. Dutton. $4.95.

Ash Burle is the name he takes in this big, stirring novel from Norway. But he had been Ash Burlefoot. The shorter form has more distinction, and suits better the composer whose music has just been played, a rhapsody bearing the title of this novel, a title only Balder can understand. There have been his father, motorman on a tram; his effusive, sentimental, common and unendurable mother; and his younger brother. He is going back to his old home, back from Burle to Burlefoot, and in this story we follow him through the years of absence that have alarmed, scarred, enthralled and molded him.

Ash has been an instructor. Though his friend Pelle had a knack for earning money, Ash stuck to academic matters. His girl Groo was succeeded by Camilla, one too innocent, one too superior. Now the principal; confident in Ash's ability, sends him off to a better-paying position farther north in a commercial school, near where Camilla's parents live.

It is not Camilla he encounters, however, but women infinitely more obliging. He even skips the overwhelming lineup of the 16 daughters, perhaps too convenient, or too complaisant, of his boardinghouse keeper. He is only 20, he does not know what he wants, or why. He cannot tell what will happen tomorrow as a result of what he does today, and impetuous as he is, he wastes little time wondering. Joe introduces him to the large, generously proportioned Gunnhild. The sweep of their passion will even be surpassed by his next love for smaller, daintier Siv.

Ash is a youth who learns from the inadequacies and dissatisfactions of life, from the encounters that whet but never quiet his insatiable appetites. He embraces experiences only to be repelled by their emptiness, superficiality and falseness. Only the most abandoned love and the tawdriest domesticity can open his eyes, only the most abased sentimentality teaches him to recognize the emotion which turns pure and red-hot. This is a story witty, tragic, idealistic and happy by turns.

Mykle has a lot in common, however unexpectedly, "Justine" and "Clea" fame. The desire aroused in the fleshpots of Alexandria with their exotic, perfumed depravities is the same irresistable, searing desire that flames up in the bleak cabin in the Norwegian woods and in the teacher's cold and barren office. But there is a reassuring Nordic morality here: in Mykle love is a means to manhood.

No Prize-Winner But Frontier One

A DISTANT TRUMPET. By Paul Horgan. Farrar, Straus & Cudahy. $5.75.

In 1864 Abe Lincoln was aboard a train which paused so briefly in Fox Creek, Ind., that an admirer in short pants, among the crowd on the station platform, didn't get a chance to talk to him. The train pulled out, the kid chased it, Lincoln stopped it, talked to our young hero, and gave him a cap worn by an Army captain in his entourage.

That cap is the symbol of patriotism, devotion, ambition, honor and duty in this novel about Matthew Carlton Hazard and the Indian wars of the latter decades of the last century.

Lt. Mainwaring, less of a soldier and husband than he should be, and his Kitty, less of a wife; valiant Dr. Cedric Gray; Col. Prescott, who'd had a romance and courtship somewhat after the pattern of Hazard's rocky path to marriage; some soldiers and noncoms; Indian scouts; and off across the dangerous prairies no one knew how many Apaches with no one knew what evil intentions. Back in Washington, of course, there are the friends and foes of the redskin, the unscrupulous trader, the career officer, the growing America.

This long, substantial historical novel by a Pulitzer prize winner may not be guaranteed to win a second Pulitzer, but it will certainly, thanks to its honest sentiment, its fine frontier tang and its vivid action, win a host of readers.

THE HOME SHIFT

Outstanding Home Project

By MILDRED SWIFT

Because of past experience, I know that telling what some industrious and talented husband has done, makes me very unpopular with other husbands. However- sometime we find such an outstanding and beautiful project that we just must share it with others.

Such a project is Lealis and Frances Hale's back garden at 307 Erin Avenue, Monroe. It is proof that a tiny area can be made quite lovely without so much upkeep. Every bed is neatly outlined, there's an attractively designed patio (made by the owners). There's a big pecan tree that spreads almost over the entire area giving shade almost all day, thus they use shade loving plants.

FENCE

Lealis and Frances realized that a plant screening would take up much of the room in the garden. Also, plants take a number of years to make a satisfactory screen. So - Lealis put up a corrugated asbestos fence and espalier silver leaf euonymus on the wide expanse and pear on the posts. Apple trees are treated in the same manner against the house.

They trained the plants carefully as must be done if the espalier is to be satisfactory. The first step was to cut off all back limbs so the plant would be flat against his support. The owners say pruning goes on at all times during the growing season — all branches at the back and front snipped so only side limbs are left to carry out the picture. The effect is quite beautiful. I'm sure the very hospitable owners will be glad to have you call by and see their garden.

GARDENING

Along about the last of April or May, verbena begins to get mildew and is all "leggy." Spray with sulphur (when the foliage is dry) and cut off top in a shearing effect. You'll be rewarded with more blooms later on.

Mulch shrubs to conserve moisture and keep down weeds and grass. Some good mulches are pine straw, well rotted sawdust or cotton burs, leaves.

Let the house plants enjoy the outside for a while. It wouldn't be advisable to take these directly from the shady house to a sunny spot. Put them in at least semi-shade. Give them a good misting with the garden hose. Feed them. Remove dead leaves. These plants will usually take on new life, put on new growth and be ready to take back in the house in six or eight weeks.

By the way, visit the nurseries and see their gorgeous array of house plants. There are so many lovely new varieties that do well here. No need to stick to the same old seven and six.

YELLOW ROSE

The creamish yellow rose you see blooming around the Twin Cities is Lady Banksia. Isn't it a beautiful thing? This will grow up in trees, on a support or can be tied to a stake and allowed to cascade. In any manner it is beautiful, thornless and evergreen. Cut the runners and use for your church or home. That should be enough pruning.

A very kind gardener from Sterlington, Mrs. Dennis Knox, called and said she gathered seed from her candle trees last fall. These she planted in March and it seems that every one of them came up. We've been telling you that the seed do not mature, so can't be carried over. The owner said these seed did dry on the tree last fall. So — you see there are exceptions to everything in the plant world.

The chinch bug is again doing his dirty work in the St. Augustine. All seed and feed stores in the Twin Cities have the spray necessary to get this pest. Just tell them you have the chinch bug in your lawn and they'll give you the right medicine. It is an expensive chemical but to get the best results the entire lawn should be sprayed.

Spray immediately (if you you haven't already done this) for scale on camellias, susanquas and other ever greens. Use the oil emulsion. If you've sprayed once, you'll probably need to do this again, soon. Watch for the scale and see if this is necessary.

The black sooty material on gardenias is an indication that they also need oil emulsion spray.

It has been found that often a sick condition of camellias results from a need for aeration of the soil. Sometimes the plants are too deep but more often the ground is packed. This often happens to old plants. The recommendation is to open up the soil by plunging a pitchfork all around the tree for at least a foot beyond the spread of the branches.

NEW IDEAS

For badly stained concrete floors, trisodium phosphate is recommended one pound in two gallons of water. Scrub this into the stained area with a wire brush. Several applications may be necessary. After each application, rinse the area thoroughly with clear water. Use rubber gloves and take care not to spill any of the mixture on woodwork.

Instant sweet potatoes will be in the markets in the near future. These will compare with the instant potatoes (white) now so popular.

When working on resin finished fabrics, use sharp pins and scissors. Release the pressure of the pressure foot bar. Use mercerized thread. Adjust the stitch to 12 to 14 stiches to the inch, and reduce the speed of sewing. Test the stitch on a scrap of the material, first.

Plum sherbert may be on the market in a few years, according to testers.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Annuals Into Two Classes

By MARY JARDINE

Annuals may be divided into two classes, the hardy and the tender. Hardy annuals can withstand a certain amount of frost and its seeds can be sown safely in the open ground in either fall or early spring as the larkspur, poppies, and sweet peas. Tender annuals are those which cannot stand chilly nights of May or early September. They must not be sown until after the danger of frost is over. To get an early start with these plants sow the seed in the house or a hot bed as four o'clock, zinnia and marigolds.

Annuals are a necessity to the new home owner in order to have a display of color in the yard as well as cut flowers for the house. Because there are so many kinds of annuals and their adaptability to all sorts of locations and uses make them a reliable source of satisfaction. They bloom from seed within 8 weeks to 6 months time. Seeds of annuals can be sown outdoors from the middle of March until the last week of November. They are not permanent plants and do not need much in the way of special cultivation. Make up a good bed, by turning the soil over as deeply as possible, add a complete fertilizer or rotted or dried manure, then raking until it is finely crumbled and smooth. Plant the seed and you will have a lovely colorful border and plenty of cut flowers for the house.

Transplanting or thinning flower seedlings insures enough space to provide sun and air for full development into strong plants.

Summer maintenance for annuals include cultivation of the soil around the plants when they first come up and again within a few weeks. The cultivation loosens the soil around the plants making the ground more receptive to moisture and creates a light dust mulch which prevents baking of the soil to a cement like texture as well as loss of moisture from the root area. During the dry season water the annuals regularly by the soaking method. Cultivate the plants after the regular watering.

Marigolds, petunias and zinnias have won their place as the big three of American flower gardens. The seed men and gardeners agree that they are nearly fool - proof to grow. However our gardens would become monotonous if we planted no other annuals. There are at least a dozen other kinds that rank high enough in the popularity pool to be seen in gardens all over the country. The names of a few are calendula, cornflower, poppies, larkspur and nasturtium.

Mrs. Frank Kaylor chose a Hammat Original container of an oval shape for her triangle arrangement. This was placed on a wood plaque of the same color. The yellow and bronze rocket iris blossoms and buds with their own foliage were used to create an asymmetrical mass arrangement. A lovely design for a buffet.

Mrs. E. P. Pole used a free-form black container for her vertical mass design. The central placement was filled in with ivy and dark yellow asters. Yellow Dutch iris were placed above the asters, backed by foliage of the iris. This lovely free - standing arrangement was made for a dinner table.

Mrs. A. A. Nelson and Mrs. Alonzo Pierce placed purple iris in a right triangle design in a green pottery container. Transition was introduced by the use of lighter color iris and buds placed at the outer edges of the design.

In the horticulture division Mrs. Artis Colvin exhibited bearded iris. Mrs. S. F. Fowler exhibited a 1¼ pound lemon and a branch of the blossoms from her seven-year-old lemon tree.

Soil Testing Good For Old, New Gardners

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

Whether you have a green thumb or are a greenhorn at gardening, pay heed when you are advised to have your soil tested.

This is what we were told: "Liming and fertilizing without a soil test is like building a house without a blueprint." Why?

Fertilizer and lime are most effective when used in proper amounts. The only way to get a scientific basis for correct usages, or dosage, is a soil test. The best way to get the best yield from your land is to have periodic soil tests and follow the recommendations as closely as possible.

Our soil specialist said that like machinery and people, soils need periodic check-ups.

If you have a small, one-crop garden, fall is recommended as testing-time for spring-planting. If you also plant in the fall, tests should be made in the summer. Give the laboratory plenty of time for the analysis. Your county agricultural agent will tell you how to go about testing.

1. Get full information from your county agent.

2. Don't sample unusual areas because you will get poor samples. Avoid dead furrows, back furrows, terrace channels, windbreaks, snow fences, old fence lines, old manure and lime piles, wet spots near lime rock roads, near trees, near the boundary between slopes and bottomland.

3. Use an efficient sampling tool. A garden spade or trowel will do if you don't have a sampling tube or auger.

4. Sample separately all areas differing in crop growth, soil color or past management (liming, manuring, fertilizing or cropping.)

5. Take a few samples in each area. Scrape away surface litter. Take a small amount of soil to a depth of six inches (about plow depth). Where crops are planted in rows, take soil from between rows, not from rows.

6. If you use a spade, save soil from the middle of the slice. Dig a V-shaped hole to plow depth. Cut a one-half-inch thick slice of soil from the face of the hole. Trim away soil from both sides of the spade so as to leave a one-inch strip of soil down the middle of the spade.

7. Mix the soil taken from the samples in a clean pail. Put one half to one pint of soil in a test carton. Discard the rest.

8. Fill out the information sheet accurately. The requested information is needed to permit making reliable recommendations.

9. Number samples (if you cover more than one area. Sketch areas sampled on a map.

10. Be sure to lime and fertilize according to soil test recommendations.

A greenhouse doesn't have to be a pretentious, extensive project.

Prepare Now For Hot Spell

By AUDREY DAWSON

It's hard for us to realize that in the near future we here in Louisiana will probably experience some hot dry weather so it's time to make preparation for our plants.

Our Louisiana hot dry summers are hard on plants. A good mulch will help to conserve moisture, protect the roots from heat and keep down weeds and grass. As it decays it also adds valuable organic matter to the soil. There are several good mulching materials. Sawdust makes a good mulch. It stays in place and gives the beds and borders a tidy appearance. It is also cheap for it can usually be had without cost except for hauling. Weathered or half rotted sawdust is best. If green sawdust is used, watch for signs of nitrogen deficiency. You can spot this by the slight yellowing of the leaves. When this happens, add extra nitrogen and you will soon see the deep green color returning. Other good mulches are peat moss, oak leaves, bagasse and pine needles.

CAMELLIAS

Camellias should be sprayed this month to control scale insects. Use summer oil 1-50. Thorough courage is essential. Be sure to spray the underside of the leaves. Scales are soft-bodied insects that have rigid shell-like protective covers which make them extremely difficult to control. They generally attack leaves, sucking sap from the plants. Some will be found on the twigs and branches.

HINTS TO HOMEMAKERS

To brighten a stained and discolored aluminum pan, boil an acid, such as vinegar in it and rub with fine steel wool and whiting. Certain foods such as sour milk, tomatoes, rhubarb, tart apples or plums cooked in aluminum will brighten it. These foods will be safe for eating.

Clean colored brass or copper by rubbing it with hot buttermilk or hot vinegar and salt and wash thoroughly.

If food has burned in an enamel or iron pan boil soda water in it and clean with fine steel wool and whiting. Do not use soda, strongly alkaline, soap or cleaning powder on aluminum.

An excellent cleaner for home use that can be made by shaving scraps of soap into fline flakes and dissolving in boiling water and adding enough Spanish whiting to make a paste. Spanish whiting is an inexpensive fine chalk which cleans without scratching or injuring the surface. It can usually be purchased at hardware or paint stores.

CONVENIENCE FOODS

In today's modern marketing, its convenience that the homemaker is looking for, espeically if she works. There has been a tremendous increase in processed foods and indications are that the trend will continue. A third of the convenience foods sold in the average super market today were not even heard of 10 years ago. These foods range from items like instant coffee to complete dinners. Of course, we homemakers must pay more for these convenience foods. The farmer now gets about 37 cents of our food dollar. The remaining 63 cents going to cover such marketing expenses as transportation, processing and distribution. Twelve years ago the division was just about 50 cents for the farmer and 50 cents for marketing expenses.

Today food is the biggest industry in the United States. Sales of food by wholesalers, retail stores and restaurants now add up to some 70 billion yearly. The average value of food consumed in 1960 including that raised by farmers for home consumption, will be about $400 per person according to the Agricultural Marketing Service figures.

Don't forget Farm Bureau women the coffee hour at the Trianon this Thursday at 10:00 a.m. Mrs. Osterland, your chairman, has made preparation for every one of you. So be sure you come.

Peat Valuable Dressing For Lawns, Beds

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

There is much confusion about peat, the peat man said. So we are passing along his views about the uses of peat, and the two major varieties so you may determine whether you are confused.

Peat is beneficial as a top dressing in lawn - making. It is excellent worked into the soil of flower and vegetable gardens. It helps roses, evergreens, bulbs and house plants to grow. It benefits the soil around trees and shrubs and is a reliable summer or winter mulch.

The two principal kinds of peat, we are told, are reed sedge and moss.

Reed sedge is found in various parts of this country. Peat Moss, for the most part, is imported. This country has billions of tons of reed sedge, tapped only in recent years to any great extent.

Reed sedge is touted as less expensive, easier to apply and distribute into the soil because it is granular. It is a partially decomposed organic matter, originating from reed and sedge types of vegetation that grew in lakes. Decomposition began hundreds of years ago.

Peat moss originated under similar conditions from a sphagnum moss, but, the expert said, it is not as decomposed as a reed sedge peat. The moss is fibrous and does not spread so readily.

Reed sedge usually is 85 per cent or more organic. The remaining 15 per cent includes mineral matters beneficial to plants, such as potash, phosphate and trace elements. This type of peat reportedly contains plant food. It contains bacteria which generate beneficial nitrogen in the soil. Peat moss contains little bacteria.

Peat producers in this country cultivate the deposits after drainage and before the peat is excavated — much the same as soil in a field is prepared for planting. This acriates and makes the peat more friable.

Peat moss is not cultivated. It is cut into cubes which are dried and baled. Peat moss has a higher water holding capacity than reed sedge (which rates 300 to 700 per cent).

Last fall, 25,000 tulips were planted in Sterling Forest Garden at Tuxedo, N. Y. The garden reported that those planted in a two - inch mulch of reed sedge peat did the best. The mulch, applied after the first heavy frost, provided protective cover and, director W. Fred Johnson related, "gave them an earlier spring start of about a week to 10 days."

Soil heaving and winter kill also was said to be less.

Peat not only holds moisture but should improve soil structure and as it decomposes, help the soil absorb nutrients.

Crabgrass Is Here To Stay, Say Experts

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

The man in the store spoke with an authoritative air as he predicted this gardeners' Utopia:

"In 10 years, there will be no crab grass and grasses will be developed to any desired height and stay here."

As a clincher, he proclaimed there were plenty of turf experts who should be willing to be quoted along this line.

We went home. As we looked out over the lawn and garden, there came a summer vision.

The power mower was rusting in a corner and I was reclining comfortably in the sun. The lawn resembled a country club green and there wasn't a sign of crab grass.

Could the man be right? We checked the experts. Have you been smoking ragweed? one asked.

All concurred that tremendous strides had been made in crabgrass control. They also said steps had been made toward controlling the growth of grass with chemicals, but that if ever the pipe dream was to come true, it would mean replacing the lawn mower with a power sprayer.

Director Robert W. Schery of The Lawn Institute, Marysville, Ohio, said he "hated to be the one to stomp on joyous speculation, but nature is not so easily conquered as your informant seems to imply."

Let's have done with crabgrass first.

"Even were it possible to kill every crabgrass plant for one, two, three or more years, there still would be crabgrass seeds in the soil, since this critter is notorious for having only a few per cent of its seeds sprout each year — then others as these mature, or are turned over in the heaving of topsoil."

Crabgrass need not be much of a problem, he added, what with excellent pre - emergent and post-emergence control, improved grass seed and more sophistication in lawn tending. He expects it will be a lesser problem than control of some of the "perennial invaders . . . we are planting in cheap seed mixtures for which there is no good control at the moment other than hand-plucking or completely sterilizing the soil before replanting the lawn."

Carter M. Harrison of Michigan State University said control measures were doing quite well and new chemicals were bound to come along. "The real problem," he added, "is to get everyone to use the chemicals and use them according to directions."

Nurseryman David Burpee of Pennsylvania expressed doubt that complete eradication of crabgrass was possible unless tackled on a very wide basis.

Richard J. Stadtherr of the University of Minnesota said many waste areas never would be treated and could be a source to reinfect treated acres.

"As with many other weeds," he said, "the problem of periodic chemical control could reduce crabgrass as a lawn problem, but there always will be plants in some untreated areas to produce seeds to perpetuate the species."

"The need for repeated treatments, the cost of the materials, and the many chances for error in application still leaves much to be desired," said Prof. John F. Cornman of Cornell University's State College of Agriculture.

"Past experience shows that performance of such chemicals varies from year to year and under different circumstances. Even if one of the chemicals now available is effective under all weather conditions and in all climates, it would become a fantastically expensive task to eradicate crabgrass except in specialized areas of particular value."

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Plan Garden Around Site

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

A stroll through some old garden can show us what we are planning and digging and planting for in making our own gardens of today. Old gardens we can see what was permanent and worth the time and labor of the people who made them years ago.

The Italians depended, in their garden design, more on walks and steps and stone works than they did on plants. They were very wise, for all the trees shrubs and flowers can be destroyed by the ravages of time. The Italians layed out their gardens carefully to fit the land where they were located. For this reason, many of these fine compositions still exist that are now hundreds of years old. Numerous plants have come and gone and been replaced, but the gardens are still here for us to enjoy.

The design of a garden, then, is the most important part of it. In our climate here in the South, shade is probably next. Old Southern gardens are shaded by the many different kinds of native trees that live for many years. Although we have never used them very much because they are fairly expensive, arbors are very beautiful features of gardens in hot countries. The massive arbor at Biltmore House in Asheville, N.C. is an inspiration to summer visitors in the mountains. There are many beautiful vines that we can grow here in the South. Arbors do not have to be built on the grand scale of the arbor at Biltmore, but they ought to be built solidly. It is cheaper to put up a permanent arbor than to take the vines off every ten years and built another.

The broadleaf evergreen trees and the needle evergreens we call conifers make our Southern gardens green in winter. Southern magnolia and the many kinds of native, foreign and hybrid holly provide the large backgrounds and separate the parts of a garden into sections like the rooms of a house. Each of these different rooms or sections can be a garden in itself where a special design or color scheme is worked out with the flowering shrubs, trees and bulbs.

All of this sounds as if it applied to very large gardens alone, but quite small plots of land can be layed out in a good design, shaded with permanent trees and divided into separate sections, large and small, and each with its individual design and color scheme.

WOOLEY IN NEW ROLE

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I came out to be a singing cowboy . . . but they didn't want any singing cowboys."

Sheb Wooley turned to cowboy acting and since then he's worn three hats — actor, singer and composer (Purple People Eater).

It's television now. He's featured as Pete Nolan in the Rawhide series.

"I'm better off in TV than I was in the movies," Wooley says. "We're at home here. The directors are our guests.

"A few years ago directors came on movie sets like gods and actors were like chessmen with strings attached."

He still might return to movies. "If the part is right, I'll be glad to return to movies. I want to be more than just a Pete Nolan in Rawhide."

Mitchum And Parker Star In Movie Here

"Home From the Hill" is a powerful drama of a divided family, of a youthful love affair and of the emotional conflict involved in the status of an illegitimate son.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, in CinemaScope and color, is based on the best - seller and Book - of - the Month Club selection by William Humphrey. Its cast is headed by Robert Mitchem and Eleanor Parker, with co-staring roles played by George Peppard, George Hamilton, Everett Sloane and former child actress Luana Patten. Peppard scored on Broadway in "The Pleasure of His Company" before coming to Hollywood; Hamilton has made only one previous motion picture, the prizewinning "Crime and Punishment, U.S.A."

"Home From the Hill" was directed by Vincente Minnelli, who won an Academy Award for "Gigi." The new drama was filmed on an ambitious scale on locations in the picturesque hunting country of Texas and Mississippi.

It tells the story of Capt. Wade Hunnicutt (Robert Mitchum), his wife, Hannah (Eleanor Parker), their son, Theron (George Hamilton) and the backwoods boy, Rafe (George Pepard).

Leading landowner of a small Texan town, Hunnicutt's fame as a fearless hunter is exceeded only by his reputation as a chaser after women. Disillusioned soon after their marriage, Hannah has consented to remain in her husband's house only on condition that she be given sole charge of Theron's upbringing. But as the boy grows into manhood he comes to idolize his father, a devotion and respect furthered when the latter teaches him to shoot and encourages him to track down and kill a ferocious wild boar — one of the most thrilling sequences ever depicted on the screen.

It is when the love affair between Theron and Libby Halstead (Luana Patten) is broken up by the girl's father that Theron is given an acute realization of Hunnicutt's notoriety. Following a family quarrel, he learns for the first time that his close friend, Rafe, is his half-brother, unacknowledged by Hunnicutt — an acknowledgement that Rafe yearns to hear.

The story is brought to a crisis when Libby tells her family that she is going to have Theron's baby. It is a crisis marked by murder and retribution, in which each of the drama's leading characters follows his and her destined course.

Although primarily an engrossing emotional drama, "Home From the Hill" is lightened with both festive and amusing scenes, among them one, early in the story, in which the seventeen-year-old Theron, too shy to ask Libby for a date, employs the more experienced Rafe as a substitute suitor. The scenes between the young lovers in their attic trysting hideaway are delightful and there is a festive episode in the gala barbecue and dancing party held in celebration of the victorious boar hunt.

A Sol C. Siegel Production, "Home From the Hill" was produced by Edmund Grainger. The screen play is by Harriet Frank Jr. and Irving Ravetch.

BEST SELLER TO B'WAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway premiere of the musical "Sooner or Later" is set for October, following a tour that begins in August. The musical is adapted from "The Bishop's Jaegers," a best-selling book by Thorne Smith.

Dagmar will play the leading role of Aspirin Liz. The story concerns a girl who is in love with her boss, and the two are fog-bound on a Staten Island ferry in New York harbor.

STAMP NEWS

A tiger cat perched on a limb of a tree is featured on the new 8-pence stamp issued by Australia.

The latest Australian adhesive, red brown in color, is to be used as the basic postage rate for a surface letter to most foreign countries. It is also recognized as the postage rate for a one-half ounce airmail letter to New Zealand.

The design of the new stamp was the work of Miss Eileen Mayo of Neutral Bay, New South Wales, whose designs were also used for the recently issued 1-shilling platypus and the 9-pence kangaroo stamps.

Many of the more than 70 nations issuing special stamps for the World Refugee Year have already announced the designs of their adhesives. Some are overprinting old designs, others are using the uprooted tree as the basic symbol while still others have created special items.

Two in this latter category are Iceland and Vatican City.

Vatican City's set consists of the following values and designs: 60 plus -lire — Fra Angelico's "Flight to Egypt," 100 plus 10-l—Masaccio's "St. Peter Giving Alms to the Poor," 300 plus 25-l—Piero Della Francesca's "Madonna of the Mercy."

Iceland's stamps, 2.50 - krona brown and 4.50-kr blue, depict a father and child. It is a reproduction of an Icelandic monument by Einar Jonsson.

Surinam has issued a set of five triangular-shaped stamps honoring the inauguration of its new Zanderij Airport outside of Paramaribo. This is the airport where President Eisenhower landed during his South American tour. The five stamps show the types of planes which have landed in Surinam during the past 25 years.

Chile reports that since its currency was changed on Jan. 1 replacing the peso with the escudo, nearly all of its postage stamps and airmails will be reprinted with designs intact. There may be changes in color and equivalent denomination. Coming up on the Chilean philatelic agenda will be a 12-value set to mark the sesquicentenary of Chilean independence.

Lebanon has issued a set of two new airmails in honor of the 25th anniversary of the Friends of Trees Society. The 20-p green and magenta and the 40-p green and brown show hands planting a sapling.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography is a decided asset for camera fans of college age who are seeking summer jobs in camps, hotels and resorts. And if you haven't used this angle till now, get started on it immediately.

This doesn't mean you should try for the job of official photographer of a resort, although you could if you have the ability. It does mean that some proficiency in taking pictures can be a help in getting one of the other jobs available. It may tip the balance and help decide it in your favor.

Assemble the best examples of your own work that are representative of the places you are likely to apply to. If you're going to apply by mail, you'll need several sets of about six different pictures — the exact number of sets depending on how many applications you make. You can find prospects among the advertisements in the travel or weekend sections of your newspaper. Camp directories are usually listed as are hotels and resorts.

If you live in or near a large city, you can set aside one or two days for personal visits to the local representatives of many resorts or camps. In that event, you can assemble and show one set of photos with a greater number of your pictures. These should be mounted neatly in an album or displayed in acetate pages of a loose-leaf book. This makes better viewing than an assortment of loose prints which are bound to get dog-eared and lose whatever continuity or sequence you may have arranged.

The pictures selected from your files should show action or activities, informal groups and sharply focused views of places you have visited. They may have been made at previous summer camps and vacation trips or at school activities and sports events.

Camera fans who are high school seniors or those who haven't the right type of pictures to use as samples should concentrate this summer on shooting for next year's job hunt. Even those who don't spend the summer at a camp or resort can find suitable subjects and activities in their own communities. Pools, playgrounds, picnic areas, day camps, state and national parks and other recreation sites have people, action and fun which are the basic elements for pictures of this type.

General knowledge of how photography works and how to develop and print pictures is a talking point when seeking a camp counselor's job. It's an added skill, useful in teaching young campers and something to demonstrate on a rainy day when everyone is confined indoors.

These thoughts are not merely a theoretical point. Just a few days ago they became a specific example in the case of my 19-year-old daughter, Susan. When she graduated from high school last June, she got her first job as an assistant counselor in a community day camp.

During the summer, she began to document her group's activities with a camera. The results were excellent and the director used 12 of her photos to illustrate this year's day camp brochure. He was quite anxious to have her back this summer with greater opportunities to take more pictures of all the groups.

She applied, however, for a counselor's job in a camp away from home. It was her photos that clinched the deal. She was accepted with the understanding that she would take pictures of the girls activities.

Dick Clark In Movie Debut At Paramount

Dick Clark, idol of the teenagers, reportedly makes a happy motion picture debut in "Because They're Young," a drama of youth growing up, opening Sunday at the Paramount Theatre. A Drexel Production for Columbia release, "Because They're Young" also stars Michael Callan, Tuesday Weld and Victoria Shaw, features Warren Berlinger and Roberta Shore and presents, as guest stars, James Darren and Duane Eddy and the Rebels.

Clark plays a high school teacher in "Because They're Young," an educator who tries to be a friend to his growing charges. According to Hollywood, it is the kind of role he plays outside of the film world where, on radio and TV, he speaks to and for teenagers. Advance audiences, delighted by the sincerity, warmth and honesty of "Because They're Young," predict a tremendous new career for the star.

"Because They're Young" is said to be more than a cross section of our high school population; it also is an entertaining and dramatic study of their backgrounds, and the problems they bring to — and take from — school. It is a film of youth, to be seen by everyone.

Rapidly - rising Michael Callan, who made his bow in "They Came to Cordura," plays a transferee who comes to Clark's school ready to fight the world; Miss Weld, a girl whose experience goes far beyond her years. Victoria Shaw appears as Clarks' romantic interest, secretary to the high school principal: she gets to kiss Clark in a sequence which had yesterday's teen audiences happily absorbed. In a guest star appearance, James Darren sings the title song, "Because They're Young."

Industrialist Andrew Carnegie, who said "to die rich is to die disgraced," gave away $350,000,000 before his death in 1919.

Little Theater

The Little Theatre has done it again. "Guys and Dolls," the fourth production of the current season and the third musical comedy in the history of the Little Theatre, is a smashing success. The sparkling performance given by the cast last night reflected the many long hours of hard work that went into making the show an outstanding, and truly praise - worthy production. The sets were fabulous and the costumes simply out of this world, and the music . . . well, hats off to Jerry McSpadden, Don Williams, John Wooldrige, Chuck Raggio, Miller Elliot and Henry Antoline who made up the orchestra directed by Charles Stratford.

There's still time to make plans to see "Guys and Dolls." The Reservations Clerk will be on duty every day from 2 until 7 p.m. at the Little Theatre. Call FA 3-4263 or write in care of The Little Theatre in Monroe. Reservations made by mail can be confirmed by calling the Theatre. If you make reservations and something should arise to keep you from coming, call the theatre and inform them of the cancellation. By doing this, others who are on the waiting list will have the opportunity to see the show.

There has been some misunderstanding in regard to reservations and tickets. Those of you who have not bought your tickets as yet, but are planning to see the show, can make reservations but tickets have to be purchased at the box office the night you see the play. Those of you who already have tickets, please remember that it is necessary for you to call or write the theatre for reservations. All seats are reserved in advance.

Please remember, curtain time for "Guys and Dolls" is 8:15 p.m. on the dot. Because of the Arena style of the auditorium, no one will be seated after the show begins. Those arriving late will have to wait until intermission.

Make your reservations soon for "Guys and Dolls". It's a spectacular you'll regret missing.

AGED IN FURY

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Two little old ladies gave sheriff's deputies a battle before being hauled into county court.

Officers said they received a call that Mrs. Callie aker, 68, and Mrs. Elizabeth Mudge, 72, were firing a revolver at the rear of their home.

When dupties ordered them to stop shooting, Mrs. Baker fired twice more.

Mrs. Mudge joined in by leaping on the back of the deputies and swinging away with both fists.

While the ladies were being booked for disturbing the peace, Mrs. Baker tossed a chair at a deputy.

LOOKS 'EM OVER

Dustless Car Races

Stock car racing returns to the Twin Cities today, promising a better organized program and a "no dust" track that certainly should be welcomed by the grandstand crowd.

Clouds of dust have been more than the less hardy customers could endure at the speedways here the last three years.

Now the dust has taken a knockout blow. At least the racers, who have been experimenting with dust control methods, claim the new asphalt-primed surface at Twin City Speedway ends their dusty problem.

So today the farmers, salesmen, mechanics, painters, paper mill workers, service station operators, truck drivers, telephone installation, and pipeline constuction men who suffer racing fever will participate in opening stock car events that launch the season's program at the West Monroe track Oliver Cloyd built.

The Twin City Racing Association was organized this month. Racer Bob Shoemaker was named president. The association has taken over operation of the track and is promising a timetable program to eliminate overtime lags between events.

Except for safety tests all cars must pass, the races today will be open to any type of stock car using any fuel mixtures, motor adjustments or additions the racers desire.

"Anything goes if the cars can pass our safety rules," declared Lou Craig, spokesman for the association. "This open type of racing will not apply for all our programs this year, but it will until we have more racers and a chance to classify the cars.

"The association also is planning a point-system payoff for racers participating in each program, and, as a season closer this fall, will sponsor championship races at which the drivers with the most points during the season and the automobiles with the most points (drivers do not always race the same cars all season) will be recognized."

Stock car racing is a hobby with men who earn their living in some other profession — at least it's a hobby with the men currently racing here. Shoemaker, the association president, is a sign painter.

Others listed as racing today (more are bound to be added by race time) include Ellis Palasini, a farmer of Leland, Miss.; auto salesmen Joe Mallard, West Monroe, and Gerald Greenway, Atlanta, Ga.; paper mill employees Neal Walters, Herbert, and Royce Whitlock, West Monroe; truck driver Ival Cooper, Jackson, Miss.; H. L. Hale, a telephone installation worker of Sterlington; pipeline constructors Pete McClain, Monroe, and Ralph Robinson, West Monroe; Frank Parker, a Bossier City service station operator; Jack Mace, Jackson, Miss., heavy equipment mechanic; T. H. McDougal, West Monroe motorcycle mechanic; "Red" Futch, an auto parts salesman of West Monroe; and Billy Bayles, West Monroe, a rentals salesman. Three other Mississippi racers due are Shane Griffin and Curley Walters, Jackson, and Bob Herron, Hattiesburg.

If the dust is really licked, the auto races stand to win area prestige as a spectator sport.

Physical Fitness

William E. Noonan Jr., supervisor of health and physical education of the state, is calling on all schools of the state to participate in the National Youth Fitness Week which starts next Sunday and runs through May 7.

The directive to all high schools of Louisiana calls attention to the national program and suggests programs on a "local basis" in the way of demonstrations, parent-teacher programs, track meets, newspapers publicity, and radio and TV shows.

Too many persons look to the spectator sports such as football, basketball, baseball, and track offered by the "varsity" teams as the limit of school athletic endeavors. Actually, there is another side. It's the participation of every school student physically able in the physical education programs conducted to promote physical fitness and health. These are the programs conducted in the school gymnasium under the same standards as classroom studies, and often involving activities that never make the sports pages or are offered the public for spectator appeal.

It's these health and phys-ed classes that have the blessing of the federal government as a means of keeping the youth of a nation physically fit.

Schools throughout this area may have different ways of promoting National Youth Fitness Week. An example will be that at Ouachita Parish High of Monroe where Jim Hodgins will administer physical fitness tests during the May 1-7 period and display posters throughout the school buildings

"High schools are trying to cooperate with government appeals for well rounded physical fitness programs," Hodgins reports. "We have stressed physical fitness at Ouachita for several years and conducted clinics at Louisiana Tech. Other area schools also stress their PE work and most certainly will participate in some manner in the coming week."

Yank Record In Mile Run

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Dyrol Burleson of Oregon summoned a final burst of speed and ran the mile in 3:58.6 Saturday, the fastest ever run by an American.

The slender 19-year-old trailed for three laps, then hurtled past Stanford's Ernie Cunliffe and won by 15 yards.

The world record is 3.54.5, set by Australia's Herb Elliott.

In winning, Burleson not only ran the mile faster than any countryman ever had before, but also added luster to his brilliant Olympic promise.

He is the first American runner to meet the Olympic qualifying standard for the 1,500 meters at Rome. A runner must do the 1,500 meters in 3:45 or the mile in 4:02 to be able to compete in the Olympics, Aug. 2-Sept. 10. Besides that, he must finish 1-2-3 in the U. S. Olympic trials.

Indians Set Nine Records In Easy Win

BATON ROUGE, La. (Special) — The fleet Styron twins and distance star Don "Buddy" Eiland paced unbeaten Northeast to ridiculously easy victory in the LSU Invitational Track Meet here Saturday.

In winning their 11th straight meet, the Monroe Indians scored 81 2-3 points, 42 more than the second - place team, defending Southeastern Conference champion LSU. Rice was third with 29 points, Southwestern scored 14 1-6, McNeese 8½ and Tulane 3.

Thirteen records fell in the meet, defending champion Northeast smashing nine of them. LSU set three standards and SLI one Northeast won 12 first places with the Styrons, Don and Dave, taking a couple each along with Eiland, all in record times.

Dave won the 100 in 9.6 and the 220 in 20.9, both record times. He was trailed in each event by teammate Roger Beumer. Brother Don, who bettered the world's low hurdles mark with a 21.9 here in a dual meet three weeks ago, won that event in 22.3 yesterday and took the highs in 14 flat.

Eiland toured the mile in 4:15.1 and ran the two mile in 9:28.4. Teammate Bill Frye was second in the longer ace.

Other firsts for Northeast were won by Dick Hays in the 440 with a record time of 47.6, John Pennel in the pole vault with a 13-6 effort, Jerry Dyes in the broad jump with a 23-¾ leap and Hoy Rogers in the discus with 160-1⅜.

Northeast teams won both relays, the Styrons, Beumer and Hays speeding to a 41.2 clocking in the 440 relay and the Styrons, Hays and Jim Mouser to a record 3:14.4 in the mile.

LSU picked up two first places and shared another. Carl Seefeld set an 880 record of 1:52.2, Ludwig Bandaries hurled the shot 56-9⅞ to break Billy Cannon's record of 54-4½, while Doug Constant and Ronnie Toussaint shared the high jump first with Larry Simon of SLI. The three jumped 6-2.

Bob Hartquist gave SLI its only first with a 217-11 javelin throw, beating Northeast's Jerry Dyes.

The victory was Northeast's fourth in the past 10 days. Lew Hartzog's thinclads beat LSU in a dual meet at Monroe April 14, bested East Texas and McNeese in a triangular affair April 16 at Monroe and swamped seven opponents in the Northwestern Relays last Thursday evening.

SECOND STRAIGHT

Neville Cindermen Win Twin Cities Track Meet

Three crack relay teams and distance runner Ronnie Killen paced Neville to a successful defense of its Twin Cities Track Meet championship at Brown Stadium yesterday as 11 records fell in the two-year-old meet and another was matched.

Killen won both the 880 and mile run but shared individual honors with West Monroe freshman flash Charley Van Zile, who won the century and 220 in chest-to-chest duels with Ouachita's Ted Smith.

Neville, its winning all three relays, scored 97½ points to beat West Monroe, second with 70 points. Southside and Ouachita were far to the rear with 16½ and 16 points.

Neville won the meet last year with 89½ points to 52½ for Southside, the only school in the Twin Cities which has fielded track teams for any length of time. West Monroe, which, like Ouachita, does not have a track, scored only 18 points last year.

Records fell in the javelin as Neville's Joe Cage passed 200 feet for the second time this year, the shot put, discus, 880 relay, high hurdles, 100, mile relay, mile run, 440, low hurdles and 220. The 440 relay mark of 45.7 was tied.

Cage threw the javelin 204 feet and 11 inches to break the record of 192-7 he held. West Monroe's Larry Danna heaved the shot 47-11 to best Neville's Mickey Cox, who held the record of 45-5½.

Cox, however, beat the West Monroe weightman in the discus, stretching his own record to 147-3. His old mark was 127-4½. Courtland Gray of Neville ran the 120-yard high hurdles in the record time of 17.3 shaving a full second off Don Word's old standard.

Killen's time in the mile was 5:07.9, easily bettering Ronnie Woodard's old mark of 5:15.7. Long - striding Jimmy Love of Neville ran the 440 in 52.7, two seconds better than the old record set by Jimmy Van Zile.

Charley Van Zile set records in the short dashes, winning the 100 in 10.6 and the 220 in 23.5. Jay Goldsmith of Neville held the old record of 10.7 in the century and Neville's Gene Howard set the old mark of 24.2 in the 220.

Van Zile and Smith ran the most exciting races of the day in the dashes. Smith led both times until the last 10 yards and was only a tenth of a second behind the West Monroe runner at the finish of both.

Neville set records in two relays and the 440 relay mark of 45.7 it set last year. The 880 foursome opened yesterday's track event with a 1:34.2 clocking, bettering the old mark of 1:36.0 set by Ouachita. Coach George Davis' mile relay team ran its distance in 3:40.7, easily breaking its old record of 3:50.0.

Neville had 11 first places altogether while West Monroe picked up four. The two schools shared another first, Ouachita won one first, Ervin Bates' 18-2¾ broad jump.

AT NEW ORLEANS

Dow Finsterwald Moves Into Lead

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dow Finsterwald, a golfer who believes in professional precision, drilled a 6-under-par 66 Saturday and moved into the lead at the end of the third round of the $27,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

The 30-year-old former PGA champion from Tequesta, Fla., shows rounds of 69-66-66 for his 201 and a four-stroke lead over Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla. Sanders carded a 65 and had a 54-hole total of 70-70-65—205.

Former collegiate star Johnny Pott of Shreveport furnished the day's big surprise when he broke the 6,589-yard City Park course record with a 9-under-par 63. His 71-72-63—206 tied him with Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y., for third place.

Besselink, tied with Finsterwald for the lead at the halfway mark, settled for a 1-under-par 71 and a card of 68-67-71—206.

Trailing the leaders were Bob Rosburg of Overland Park, Kan., at 207, Houston LaClair of Birmingham, Ala., and Jerry Pittman of Oklahoma City at 208, and a four-man group at 209—Doug Ford of Crystal River, Fla., Jackson Bradley of Houston, Tex., Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., and Jon Gustin of Gladwyne, Pa.

Finsterwald; among the game's most conservative but most accurate players, is almost a cinch to break the tournament record in the final round. Henry Picard set the standard with a 276 in 1941.

The 5-10, 155-pound Finsterwald got off on the right foot with a birdie on the second hole and an eagle on the fourth. His most spectacular shot came on the 222-yard par 3 15th when he blasted out of a trap and into the cup for another birdie.

Redskins Climb To Fourth Place

By JIM CALHOUN
Staff Sports Writer

Mired in last place one day and a title contender the next — that sums up Northeast's baseball progress over the past weekend.

John O'Conner and Bryan Blevins supplied the home run punch Saturday afternoon as George Luffey's Indians, suddenly blossoming into a power - hitting combination, swept both ends of a doubleheader from McNeese, 5-3 and 5-4, to move to within striking range of Gulf States Conference leader Louisiana Tech.

Yesterday's twin - killing, coupled with Friday's decision over Southwestern, boosted the Tribe record against league foes to 3-3 only a half - game off Tech's pace - setting record of 6-2 in the loss column. McNeese slipped into a tie for last place with Southwestern with a 2-6 mark.

O'Connor, who was named all-GSC catcher as a freshman last year, smashed his second round tripper of the game in the sixth inning of the nightcap to snap a 4-4 deadlock and nail down the fourth straight victory for the rejuvenated Indians. Blevins carried the load in the first game, socking three hits in as many trips to the plate and belting a solo home run in the fifth inning to clinch the verdict.

The usually light - hitting Indians exploded for 20 hits in the twin bill, with eight of them going for extra bases.

Freshman portsider Jerry Godwin went the distance for Northeast in the first game to pick up his second victory against three setbacks. The stylish curveballer effectively scattered nine hits and didn't walk a man while fanning four.

Fireman Jerry Collins, cool and calm under fire, relieved Indian starter Bobby Lockwood in the fifth inning of the wrapup and pitched near - perfect ball the rest of the way in recording his third win without a loss.

McNeese, which blew a 4-3 decision to Louisiana Tech Friday on five errors, started off along the same line yesterday as Northeast pushed over three unearned runs in the opening stanza.

With runners on first and second with two away, Phil Petras, another of the Tribe fence-busters, drilled a grounder to shortstop. Jerry Wells threw wild to second base attempting to force O'Connor and Mickey Yerger romped in with the first counter. George Bryan followed with a single to score O'Connor and Blevins drove in Petras with a hit to right field.

With two out in the third frame Bryan beat out an infield bounder and later stole second. Blevins, a former junior college All-America, bagged his second run batted in with a solid single to center.

Gustin doubled and rode home on Carleton Sweeney's single in the sixth as McNeese closed out the scoring.

The Cowpokes put the potential tying runs on base in the seventh inning with one down but Godwin took care of Wells on a fly to right and retired dangerous Amos Ivey on a tapper to second base.

Other than the second and sixth innings, Godwin was never in serious danger although Meachum sent Yerger to the fence to haul down his long drive in the fourth.

Levy Redden, a former infielder fast developing into a classy fielding outfielder, matched Blevins' three hits in the opener and Bryan tagged two safeties and drove in a run.

Righthander Jim Bischoff worked three innings for the 'Pokes before giving way to ace Billy Johnston in the third and was tagged with the loss. Johnston, who tossed 6 2-3 innings against Tech Friday, gave up only one run over the final three frames—Blevins' homer in the fifth.

O'Conner's two towering homers overshadowed the brilliant relief pitching of Collins and a hard - hitting performance by Petras in the second contest.

Petras continued his extra-base hitting with two doubles and a single and knocked in three runs while O'Conner came within a few feet of three circuit clouts.

The Rayville sophomore stroked a 325-foot blow over the left field wall in the third and socked one over the fence in dead center field 370 feet away in the sixth for the deciding run. His fourth inning liner fell just a few feet short of the fence.

Petras broke the scoring column in the initial inning when he bounced a ground rule double over the left field barrier to score Yerger who had singled.

The visitors caught up with Lockwood in the third when Don Barnett poled a leadoff homer with pitcher Jim Whitworth aboard to take a short-lived 2-1 lead.

O'Conner tied it up with his first homer in the third and bounced a two-bagger over the fence in the fourth as Northeast tallied twice more. With O'Conner on second and Yerger on third, Petras came through with his second double to make it 4-2.

A walk to Ivey and consecutive singles by Howard Schmitt and Gustin loaded the bases for McNeese in the fifth and finished Lockwood, bringing in Collins.

Darkness Halts MacKay, Bartzen

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Darkness halted a three-hour match in which third-seeded Barry MacKay battled defending champion Bernard Bartzen Saturday for the right to meet Australia's Neale Fraser in the finals of the 26th River Oaks Tennis Tournament.

Fraser, the world's No. 1 amateur, defeated 19-year-old Chuck McKinley of St. Louis, 7-5, 6-4, 6-4, in the other semifinal.

MacKay was leading the top-seeded Bartzen, 6-3, 6-8, 14-12, but Bartzen held a 6-5 edge in the fourth set as nightfall forced them to postpone the rest of the match until Sunday.

Fraser became only the third foreign player ever to reach the River Oaks final. Mervyn Rose of Australia lost to Herb Flam in 1937, and Luis Ayala of Chile lost to MacKay in 1958.

COLAVITO, BILKO HOMER

Tigers Defeat White Sox For Victory No. Four, 6-2

DETROIT (AP) — Home run sluggers Rocky Colavito and Steve Bilko supported Frank Lary's strong pitching Saturday and the Detroit Tigers ran their unbeaten streak to four games with a 6-2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

Colavito smashed a three-run blast off Ray Moore, his third in the last three games, and Bilko connected with one aboard off starter Billy Pierce. It was Bilko's second in two days.

Lary doled out only four hits and the only damaging blow was Minnie Minoso's third home run. It came in the eighth inning and followed a walk to pinch hitter Earl Torgeson.

The Tigers, lone undefeated team in the major leagues, now have hit eight home runs in their last three games. Newcomers Colavito, Bilko and Chico Fernandez accounted for six of Detroit's eight safeties. Fernandez, the slick-fielding shortstop regarded as a near-automatic out at the plate, had a double and two ringing singles.

The White Sox lifted Pierce for a pinch batter and the Tigers promptly teed off on Moore. Charlie Maxwell singled and Al Kaline walked before Colavito lined a home run into the lower left field stands.

Lary, who pitched 10 innings of shutout ball in the season opener at Cleveland, struck out seven and walked three. He squirmed out of a mild jam in the ninth inning after Sherm Lollar doubled with one away. Lary got Al Smith on a called third strike and made Jim Landis pop up to the catcher.

649 Boys At Little League Ball Sessions

Monroe Recreational Directors Jack Hesketh reported a turnout of 649 youngsters at Little League tryouts yesterday, 577 more than can be placed in Monroe's two leagues.

Hesketh said 389 boys showed up at Bendel Stadium for Northside League tryouts while 251 were present for the Southside loop's Lions Field workouts. Only 36 boys can be placed in each of the leagues, the rest to perform on Minor League teams.

"We need managers badly for the minor leagues," Hesketh said, "and three sponsores for the Northside Minor Leagues."

Eighty - one boys attended Dixie League tryouts at Legion Stadium and there is room for only about 55 in the loop despite the addition of one new club, Hesketh pointed out. The leftover boys will not be able to play baseball in the program.

Hesketh said all Minor League boys would be notified in two or three weeks as to what team they will play with.

"The holdup is getting managers," he said.

Delta League Opens Season With 4 Games

The Delta League, sporting a new entry, opens its baseball season this afternoon with four games.

Winnsboro Road, a Monroe team, has been accepted into the amateur circuit to replace Epps, President Don Zeigler said yesterday.

Johnson Stars In Grambling Track Affair

Johnson unraveled the 100 - meters in 10.4 and annexed the 220 - yard dash in the showcase time of 21.0 around a curve.

His efforts in both events equalled or bettered Olympic qualifying standards.

A bit hoarse from cheering his star to victory, Coach Tom Williams announced Saturday night that Johnson and high jumper Charles Lewis will perform in the Drake Relays next week in Des Monies, Iowa.

Johnson is unbeaten this year and it was the consensus of coaches and writers in the press box that the slim 19 - year - old sophomore will survive competition from the country's top sprinters.

Earlier Johnson ran the century in 9.4, best time of the year. All year Williams, who can hold his own in a conversational duel with anybody, has been endorsing him as a prime Olympic prospect.

A unanimous choice selection as the meet's top performer, the Dallas speedster more than demonstrated what the man was talking about.

Coach Eugene Thomas' Jaguars won the sprint medley in 3:28.5; granered the mile relay in a sensational 3:13.6, and raced to a one - sided victory in the two - mile relay.

New records were established in the 100 - meters, 220, and 440 yard dashes; 120 - yard high hurdles 440 and sprint medley relays, high jump, Javelin, shot put and pole vault.

DODGERS FALL, 9-5

Cardinals Take Third Straight

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals made it three straight Saturday with Ken Boyer's 5 RBI on two homers and a double and Bob Duliba's tight relief pitching pacing a 9-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Redbirds spotted the Dodgers a 4-0 lead then boomed back, knocking out starter Danny McDevitt and World Series hero Larry Sherry in a 12-hit assault.

Bill White had two singles and a triple for the Cards, raising his average to .424. Daryl Spencer was 3-for-5, including a tremendous home run shot off the top of the scoreboard in left field.

Duliba held the Dodgers to just one run through the last five innings on four hits to get his first major league victory. The chunky 5-foot-10 right-hander from Glen Lyon, Pa., also delivered his first big league hit in a decisive four-run sixth inning.

St. Louis pinned the defeat on Sherry, second of four Dodger pitchers. Sherry walked pinch batter Bob Nieman with the bases loaded to force in the tying run. Then White greeted Ed Roebuck with a two-run single, making it 7-5.

Consecutive solo homers by Boyer and Spencer routed McDevitt in the second. Boyer's second homer and fourth of the season was a two-run blast in the fifth off Sherry which narrowed the Dodger lead to 5-4.

Techmen Divide Pair With SLI

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech and Southwestern split a Gulf States Conference doubleheader here Saturday afternoon, Tech winning the first game, 4-3, with Southwestern taking the second, 9-5.

Yesterday's results gives the Techmen a 6-2 GSC record and leaves them in first place ahead of Northwestern, 5-3 in the league. SLI is now 2-6 in conference action.

Each game was decided in the final inning with home runs and errors playing important roles in each contest. Tech wrapped up the first tilt with a three - run rally in the final frame while SLI came from behind in the nightcap with a six - run outburst to gain a split for the afternoon.

In the opening battle, Tech took a 1-0 lead in the third inning when B. K. Miller singled home Richard Bell, who had singled. Shelby Aulds' single scored Steve Bracking for SLI in the fourth to tie the game.

Brackin's home run with one man on gave SLI two more runs in the sixth but Tech managed to put across three runs in the seventh before a man was out.

The Bulldogs tied it at 3-3 on singles by Kelton Bacon and J. W. Mercer, a walk and an error. Center fielder Charley Garris then ended the game with a sharp single that scored Miller with the final run.

In the second game, Miller put Tech ahead when he hit the first pitch in the lower half of the first inning for a home run. SLI got three in the third on two walks, a low throw to second and singles by Ellis Vincent and Aulds.

Two homers by the Techsters accounted for four runs in the sixth. Garris hit one with two men on and moments later Jack Moreland blasted another with nobody on.

Southwestern's six runs in the seventh were all unearned as two Tech errors paved the way. Steve Gossen's double scored one tally and pitcher J. W. Mercer walked in the tying run to make it 5-5, SLI's left fielder, Tom Fernandez, then hit a grand slam home run to sack the game for the visitors.

Bachelor, down to 136 pounds, booted the 9-4 betting favorite, Fincham, to a five-length victory over Fair Gale. French Widow, a 20-1 shot, was third, another 20 lengths back.

Pirates Win 4th Straight, 5 To 4

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates capitalized on shortstop Johnny Logan's second error for a 5-4 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Saturday. First baseman Dick Stuart singled home Don Hoak with the winning run in the seventh inning.

Hoak led off the inning with the teams tied 4-4, and reached first on Logan's error.

It was the second straight Pirate decision over the Braves and their fourth victory in a row.

Right-hander Bennie Daniels, the Pirate starter, was cruising along with a four-hitter until the sixth when he lost his control.

Holding a 3-2 lead at that point, Daniels walked Mathews after getting the first batter. Hank Aaron brought Mathews home with a smashing double. Aaron advanced to third on a wild pitch and scored as Joe Adcock singled. Adcock moved to third on another wild pitch and Al Spangler walked.

Manager Danny Murtaugh then lifted Daniels for Paul Giel, who got the final two outs. Gibbon replaced Giel in the seventh.

Pittsburgh came back with two makers in the second on singles by Burgess, Billy Virdon and Daniels and an error by outfielder Hank Aaron.

Successive singles by Stuart, Clemente and Burgess gave the Pirates their third run in the third.

John Thomas Sets Outdoor Jump Record

HANOVER, N.H. (AP)—Spaceman John Thomas, 19-year-old Boston University sophomore, Saturday bettered the NCAA high jump record and equalled the American mark with a leap of 7-feet, ½ inch.

Despite a sudden weather change, Thomas topped the accepted outdoor collegiate record of 7 feet even established by Southern California's Charlie Dumas on May 2, 1959. Dumas also set the American mark of 7-½.

When the temperature took a sudden dip to 40 degrees and a chill wind stirred, the high jump was delayed in the Boston University-Dartmouth dual track meet.

Thomas' foot slipped twice on the soft takeoff soil at the 7-½ height and the result was two poor jumps. On the third try, Thomas cleared the bar easily. The bar trembled—then held—for the thrill which the 3,000 fans had anticipated.

Thomas made three tries at 7-1¾ which would have topped the world standard of 7-1 by Russia's Yuri Stepanov but failed. His best effort was the second jump when he made it over but had taken off too close and ticked the bar off its moorings coming down.

The jump was the first outdoor effort by Thomas. Only outdoor feats are eligible for world track marks.

The event took place only a few yards from the indoor building where Thomas began his assault on indoor standards with a leap of 6-11 as a 17-year-old freshman, Jan. 10, 1959.

Coming off a six weeks' layoff, Thomas Saturday cleared 7 feet for the 16th time in winning his 22nd consecutivve high jump.

Because of a foot injury and skin graft operation, Thomas was unable to jump last spring and summer. His previous outdoor appearance was in Japan just after his graduation from Rindge Tech High School in Cambridge, Mass. He cleared 6-10⅝ in Japan.

Thomas started at 6-2 Saturday and without interruption, cleared successively at 6-5¾ and 6-9¾.

Hunting Films To Highlight Wildlife Meet

A regular meeting of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit here Tuesday night will feature hunting films made in India and Australia.

Sen.-Elect W. T. Carpenter of Bastrop will be the featured speaker and is scheduled to show films he took on recent hunting trips to India and Australia.

In addition, fish biologist Jim Davis will deliver a report on the Bayou DeSiard shad program.

The meeting will start promptly at 7:30 p.m., emphasized club president A. S. (Bud) Tidwell.

Besides Carpenter and Davis, the program will include a pistol demonstration by Army Sgt. Charles E. Finner. Tidwell said safety would be stressed.

Also, the club's annual fishing contest, starting May 15, will be outlined. Tidwell said this year's contest would offer the biggest prizes yet.

He also pointed out that the meeting would be open to all persons interested in the outdoors. Out-of-town guests especially are encouraged to attend.

Rod Rivera, Jiminez In Main Event

With younger brother Jessi sitting out a ten - day suspension, badman Tony Jiminez will have to go it alone Monday night in a main event "grudge match" with clean - cut Rod Rivera at the B & B Arena.

The Jiminez combination, carving out a sizeable reputation of late with their aggressive tactics, were disqualified here last week for allegedly using a hidden weapon with which to deal their opponents misery. For entering the ring on the sly and aiding his brother illegally, Jessi was tagged with a $100 fine and suspended for ten days by the state wrestling commission.

Rivera, a promising young grappler who frowns on deviations from the rule book, acquired a strong dislike for Jiminez last week and challenged him to tonight's match.

Supporting the main attraction will be a tag match pitting Adrian Baellangeon and Johnny King against Billy Sky and Prince Omar.

Both the main bout and the semifinal are scheduled over one-hour time limits with two falls to win.

Doby To Join Maple Leafs

TORONTO, (AP)—Larry Doby, former major league outfielder, Friday signed a contract with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League.

Doby, who played with Cleveland, Detroit, Baltimore and Chicago in the American League, fractured an ankle last August while playing with San Diego of the Pacific Coast League.

Yankees Defeat Sagging Orioles

NEW YORK (AP)—Bill Short, New York's prized rookie pitching prospect, and veteran fireman Ryne Duren, teamed Saturday for a five-hit, 3-2 victory over the sagging Baltimore Orioles.

Hector Lopez' single drove in what proved to be the Yanks' winning run in the fifth inning. Tony Kubek's single, Short's sacrifice bunt and Lopez' single accounted for the winners' third run. They had scored twice in the first.

It was the Yankees third straight triumph but their pitchers' string of shutout innings was snapped at 24 in the sixth inning when the Orioles scored their first run.

Consecutive singles by the first two batters, Brooks Robinson and Willie Tasby, and Joe Ginsberg's double play grounder, brought the Baltimore score.

Short, a chanky, 22-year-old left-hander from Newburgh, N.Y., making his major league debut, was replaced in the seventh after Jackie Brandt walked and Gene Woodling singled with one out. Pinch hitter Clint Courtney's short fly to right field scored Brandt from third. Duren then nailed Robinson on a grounder to short.

The Yanks treated Short to a 2-run lead in the first inning off starter and loser Rip Coleman, an ex-Yankee, and Hal Brown. Coleman faced only three batters. After getting Bob Richardson on a pop, he walked Hector Lopez and Mickey Mantle. Manager Paul Richards yanked the lefty and put in right - hander Brown. Roger Maris' single and Bill Skowron's sacrifice fly sent in two runs.

Short yielded five hits, walked six and hit a batter in his 6 1-3 innings. Duren didn't give up a hit but his own wildness and an error by Mantle almost proved costly in the ninth.

With one out, Brandt walked and went to second on a wild pitch. Mantle then dropped Woodling's liner for an error, putting men on second and third. But Duren struck out Jim Gentile and barely got Robinson on a deep fly to Lopez, just in front of the box seats in left field.

Phillies Beat Cincinnati In 13th Inning

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie catcher Jim Coker hit a double to center in the 13th inning Saturday to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati, the second victory in their four-game series.

Coker also batted in the Phils' tying run with a single in the seventh.

The game was a six-hitter for each team through nine innings. The Phillies held a one-run lead through six innings.

Buzhardt held the Reds to seven hits, all they got, before he was relieved. McLish gave up six of the Phillies nine hits before he was relieved in the ninth. Both entered the game with 0-1 records.

Coker's run-scoring double came on the heels of a walk to Pancho Herrera and a bunt by Bob Malkmus.

Philadelphia got the first run in the third on Buzhardt's single and two walks, loading the bases. Buzhardt then scored on a double play.

The Reds got two in the sixth on a force out and a flf after Vada Pinson and Roy McMillan had gotten on with singles and Pinson had stolen a base.

Red Sox Beat Pascual, Nats By 8-3 Count

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-run homers by Frank Malzone and Bobby Thomson boosted the Boston Red Sox to an 8-3 victory over Washington Saturday as the Senators' pitching ace, Camilo Pascual, was tagged with the defeat.

Malzone also cracked a run-scoring single while the Sox piled up a 5-0 lead and chased Pascual after five innings. Thomson's first American League homer, coming in the eighth inning, was belted off reliever Don Lee. Pascual beat Boston 10-11 in the season opener and fanned 15.

Bob Allison, hitting in his sixth straight game, led the Senators with a double and single in four trips but his average dropped from .591 to .577. He has 15 hits in 26 at-bats. His double in the fifth drove in two runs when Washington chased Boston starter Tom Brewer. Reliever Mike Fornieles got the victory.

There have been only 3 teams entered in the City Leage, and 3 more are desired and at least one more is a necessity if this league is to operate.

ASSISTANT COACH

Clyde Thompson Named At Vidalia

VIDALIA, La. (Special) —Vidalia High School Principal Walter L. Stampley, Jr., announces the appointment of Clyde Thompson of Delhi and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, as assistant football and varsity basketball coach at the local school for next year.

Thompson succeeds Coach Mike Brabham, who is returning to Mississippi at the end of the present school session to accept a similar position at Greneda High School. Brabham is returning to his home state where he formely coached at Glen Allen, Miss.

When he reports to the Viking camp, the new mentor will assist Head Coach Dan Chase with the Vidalia backfield, and he is apparently well qualified after four seasons as a quarterback at Tech under the outstanding and veteran coach Joe Aillet. Thompson, according to Chase, graduated from Tech in January, but he will remain there attending classes so as to procure an additional degree before he comes to Vidalia next year.

Principal Thompson said that the new backfield coach will teach the seventh and eighth grades in science along with his new duties of backfield coach and physical education instructor at the local school.

Following his announcenvent of the new mentor being added to the staff, the principal and athletic director also announced their new 1960 schedule. It will include 10 games and for the first time in the 8 - year - old gridiron history of VHS they will play Ferriday High School. Ferriday possesses an amazing record and is a Class A team while Vidalia is class B.

However, the Vikings feel they can give the Bulldogs a "run for their money". Last year they won five, lost four and tied one game. The VHS 1960 slate is as follows: Sept. 9 — St. Francisville - home; Sept. 16th, Ferriday, at Ferriday; Sept. 22- Woodville, Miss., home; Sept. 30, Jonesville (Block) home; October 7, Wisner at Wisner; Oct. 14, Newellton (Homecoming) Home; Oct. 21 Cathedral, Natchez, Miss. at Natchez; Oct. 28, St. Joseph there; Nov. 4, Waterproof home; and Nov. 11, Gloster, Miss., at Gloster.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—The league-leading San Francisco Giants mauled the Chicago Cubs 18-2 Saturday with an 18-hit bombardment that included homers by Orlando Cepeda, Bob Schmidt and Willie McCovey.

All the Giant starters except Ed Bressoud hit at least once with McCovey and Cepeda each driving in four runs and Bob Schmidt three.

Jack Sanford went the route for his first victory, yielding five hits, as the Giants collected their third straight triumph and extended the Cubs' losing streak through five games.

The Giants had a romp against Moe Drabowsky and Art Ceccarelli in the fifth, 10 batters appearing to hammer five hits and get six runs.

The Giants scored four times in the first inning with Cepeda's No. 3 homer good for two of the runs. They recorded three more runs in the fourth, all on Schmidt's first homer of the season.

After the six-run outburst in the fifth, which included Cepeda's two-run double, the Giants added four more runs in the seventh with Jim Davenport's triple and McCovey's No. 3 homer doing the damage.

The last run in the eighth was driven in by Don Blasingame's single that followed a walk to Schmidt and single by Sanford.

The Cubs bunched two hits for a run in the fourth, George Altmen doubling then scoring on Walt Moryn's single. They also got two hits for a run in the sixth. After Tony Taylor singled, Ernie Banks got one of his three walks and Frank Thomas singled.

The Wrigley Field crowd was 24,703.

RESERVOIR

Bussy Brake To Open This Week

BASTROP, La. (Special) — International Paper Co. will open its Bussy Brake Reservoir to public fishing at noon, Saturday, April 30, according to J. E. Pate, Louisiana Mill Manager.

The 2200-acre fresh water impoundment basin, constructed by International in 1957 to provide a standby of water for the operation of its two paper mills here, is located on state hwy. 593, about seven miles north of Bastrop.

Early last year it was stocked with more than two million blue gill bream, white perch, large mouth bass and channel catfish by the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

"Until now, we have asked that no one fish the reservoir," Pate said, "so that the young fish would have enough time to mature and spawn. We are grateful to everyone for their cooperation."

He said recent test nettings by the commission indicated most species have experienced a phenomenal rate of growth since they were stocked.

"The bass have developed particularly well," he said. "Our samplings have netted us quite a number weighing well over two pounds each."

The reservoir was constructed by International in 1957 at a cost of approximately $1-million. It covers 2,200 acres and averages 11 feet in depth. It is contained by an earthen levee, 14 feet high and 18 feet wide at the top.

International depends upon Bayou Bartholomew, a tributary of the Ouachita River, for enough water to operate its two mills in Bastrop. Since the flow in Bartholomew varies from high to low, depending upon the season, the purpose of the reservoir is to take advantage of the high flow to store an auxiliary supply of fresh water.

Then, during periods of low flow, this water can be diverted back into Bartholomew to keep the mills operating.

Jim Davis, fisheries biologist for the commission, said a survival rate of 85 per cent was expected from the number of fish stocked in the basin.

Pate said International was constructing a boat launching ramp for use by the public, and that this work would be completed before the reservoir is opened Saturday.

FOURTH STRAIGHT FOR TRIBE

A's Beat Indians In Ninth, 6 To 5

By FRANK CRAWFORD

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Hank Bauer's ninth inning single drove in Bill Tuttle and gave the Kansas City Athletics a 6-5 victory Saturday over the Cleveland Indians who have dropped all four of their starts in the American League.

Bauer's smash into the left field screen came off a pitch by Bob Grim, ex-A's pitcher who was traded to Cleveland for pitcher Leo Kiely during spring training.

Marty Kutyna, who pitched only the ninth inning, was the winning pitcher. He came on in relief of George Brunet, third A's hurler, after Cleveland had scored five times off starter Dick Hall and Bob Trowbridge.

The hapless Indians lost despite a 13-hit attack that included a home run by their giant rookie outfielder, Walt Bond.

Tuttle began the last half of the ninth with a single to center field and he was sacrificed to second by Jerry Lumpe. Then Bauer connected for his long drive high into the screen.

The Athletics battled into a 5-5 tie in the sixth inning as Harry Chiti and rookie shortstop Ken Hamlin drove solo home runs over the left field fence off starter Barry Latman.

Cleveland had taken a one run lead off Hall who pitched to only four batters and got no one out in the first inning. Johnny Temple doubled, Jimmy Piersall and Bond singled and Tito Francona walked before Trowbridge came in and squelched the rally. The ex-Milwaukee right-hander got Russ Nixon to hit into a double play and retired Vic Power on an easy roller to third. The A's went ahead 2-1 on singles by Norm Siebern, Bob Cerv and Chiti plus a run-scoring passed ball. Cleveland got three more in the fifth on singles by Temple and Nixon, Bond's home run and Power's double added another in the sixth off Brunet. Piersall, who had singled for his 1000th major league hit in the third, drove in Bubba Phillips with another base hit to left field.

Vault, Shot To Highlight 51st Drake Meet Saturday

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A bid for the world's first 16-foot pole vault and a rare duel between feuding shot putters Parry O'Brien and Bill Nieder will feature the 51st Drake Relays April 29-30.

"I think Oklahoma's J. D. Martin is about ready to crack the 16-foot barrier," says Relays Director Bob Karnes. "And there's a good chance he will do it here."

Karnes has gone all out in an attempt to pave the way for a record vault. He has prepared a new pole vault runway of crushed brick and tile. The runway is long, well-packed and "as fast as we can make it."

Martin has soared 15 feet 9¾ inches this year. The Drake Relays record is 15-¼.

The head-to-head meeting between two of the world's greatest shotputters was set up when O'Brien accepted a challenge to meet Nieder and settle their feud "with a shot, instead of words."

Nieder, former Kansas Star now in the Air Force, has pitched the shot 65 feet 7 inches. O'Brien is a two-time Olympic winner and holder of the world's record of 63-4.

They have swapped accusations that they are dodging each other. Their appearance in the special exhibition here will mark their first match against each other this year. In previous duels, O'Brien holds a 16-2 advantage.

Other attractions include Hayes Jones of Western Michigan, who will be aiming at another Relays double. He won the 120-yard high hurdles in a windblown :13.7 and the 100-yard dash in :09.5 last year.

Glenn Davis, former Ohio State runner who holds the world record in the 440-yard dash, will defend his title in the special quarter-mile he won in :46.5 a year ago.

Davis will be challenged by Eddie Southern, NCAA and AAU champ from Texas; Orlando Hazley, former Oklahoma State flyer; Dave Mills, speedy Purdue sophomore, and twins Don and Dave Styron of Northeast Louisiana State.

Bill Alley, Kansas javelin ace whose toss of 270 feet, 1½ inches is the American record, will be back to defend his crown. So will Dick Cochran, Missouri discus thrower, and W. L. (Dub) Thornton of Texas Tech, who high-jumped 6 feet 9 inches here last year.

Several relay teams entered have faster times this spring than the Drake records. Abilene Christian and Kansas have been under the Drake mile-relay standard of 3:11.2.

Abilene Christian also has a better clocking than Drake's 440-yard record of :40.5. North Texas State has been under the Drake 2-mile relay mark of 7:31.6.

About 1,000 college and university athletes have entered the meet. Finals in the two-mile run, the sprint medley relay, the 440-yard hurdles, the 4-mile relay, the broad jump and the discus will be held Friday with other finals set for Saturday.

EAST TEXAS SETS RECORDS

Nieder Betters Shot Put Mark

By SKIPPER PATRICK
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—Burly Bill Nieder bettered the recognized world record in the shot put with a toss of 63 feet 10¼ inches in the 35th annual Kansas Relays Saturday as he continued his conditioning campaign for the Olympic Games.

The 245-pound Nieder, former University of Kansas Athlete and now an Army lieutenant, warmed up with a toss of 66-1¼ that did not count. He had six puts in the special AAU-sanctioned competition and all but one exceeded 63 feet.

Nieder said he was confident he will beat Parry O'Brien, who holds the recognized world record of 63-4, when the two meet in the Darke Relays at Des Moines next week. The big Kansan had a toss of 65-7 in the Texas Relays earlier this month.

A throw of 58-8¼ by Kansas Freshman Henry Korn was the best mark of Nieder's three competitors in the relays.

Another top field man, J.C. (Goose) Martin of Oklahoma, failed in his try for a relays and possible world pole vault record as he settled for 14-11½ in winning the event.

There was only one record and only two standards tied in the two-day show, completed before 12,000 in cloudy and balmy weather. All three performances went to East Texas State's thinclads.

East Texas' 440-yard relay team tied its own meet record of 41.4 seconds set in 1958. The Lions' half-mile relay team tied North Texas State's mark of 1:26, set here in 1950.

Jim Baird, Fred Schaeter and Sid Garton ran both relays for East Texas. Millard Bennett was the other runner in the 880 trick and Charles Bode led off in the 440 relay.

Charlie Tidwell, Kansas sprinter, won the 100-yard dash in record-equaling time of 9.4 seconds. But he was aided by a 5.5 mile an hour wind and his time will not be counted as a record.

May Wheat Advances On Grain Market

CHICAGO (UPI)—Old crop May wheat advanced 3 cents a bushel this week in a generally quiet grain futures market.

Corn, oats and deferred wheat futures advanced fractionally. Rye and soybeans weakened, with May beans falling to within ⅛ cent of its low for the season.

Compared with last week, wheat was up ¼ to 3; corn unchanged to up ¾; oats up ⅛ to 1: rye off ⅜ to 1⅜; and soybeans off ⅝ to 1⅛.

Almost daily shipments of red wheat from Chicago for export purposes were a major factor in wheat futures trading. The May contract advanced to within ¼ cent of the seasonal high. Cash wheat rose ½ to 2½ cents.

Oats advanced slightly in quiet trading. Cash oats were unchanged.

Reports of a shipment of Canadian rye headed for Chicago touched off selling in the local market. Winnipeg rye futures were also lower.

Soybean prices were dominated by the action of by-products. Meals continued to fall, while oils held about steady. Cash soybeans closed off ¼ to ¾ cents.

Cotton Ends Some Lower, Some Higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton prices churned irregularly again last week, ending 60 cents a bale lower to $1.15 a bale higher. Trading ran at a slow rate.

The only advances were shown by the two nearest deliveries and by the March 1962 delivery.

The relative strength of the two remaining old crop months reflected short covering and price fixing. Sentiment was also influenced by reports of increased activity in the goods market.

Meanwhile, the new crop months eased slightly on reports of favorable planting progress in most of the cotton belt. The selling was attributed mainly to New Orleans interests and commission houses.

The Bureau of the Census reported that consumption of all cotton by U.S. mills during the five weeks ended April 2 totaled about 388,000 bales. In the comparable period last year, mills used 364,000 bales.

On the daily rate basis, consumption last month averged 35,500 bales against 36,500 bales in February and 34,600 in March 1959.

For the current season through March, mills had used 6,186,000 bales of cotton against 5,776,000 last season.

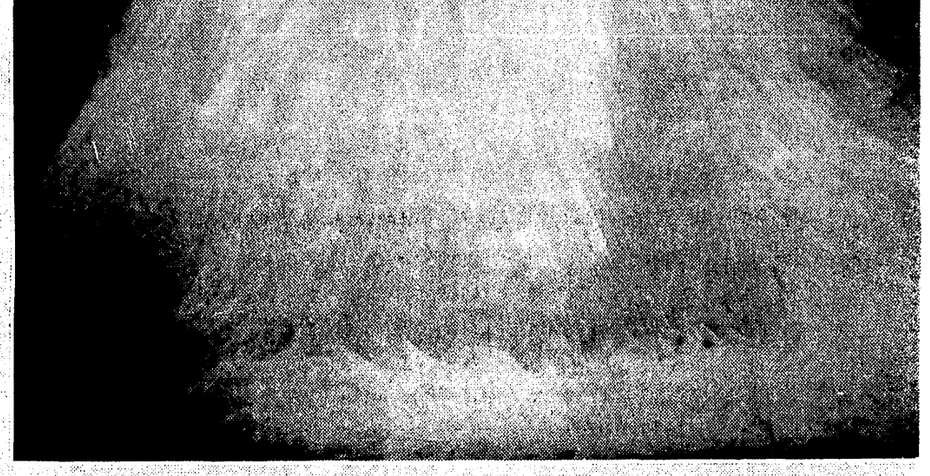
By, for, and about WOMEN

Monroe Morning World

April , 24

Miss Sue Stubbs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William King Stubbs of Monroe, will represent Ouachita parish as Duchess at the April Cotillion Ball to be held in Shreveport Tuesday evening in connection with the Holiday in Dixie celebration.



Mrs. John A. DuPriest, the former Miss Brenda Sue Stewart, whose marriage to Mr. DuPriest was celebrated Thursday evening, April 14, at the First Baptist church of Monroe. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Cecil O. Thorne of West Monroe and W. B. Stewart of Sulphur. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. DuPriest of this city.

Visitors here this week from Glastonbury, Connecticut, were Mrs. James D. Brown and her children, Stephen, Nancy and Philip. They were guests of Mrs. Brown's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Courtney Oliver.

The annual Silver Tea of the Junior Charity League was held Friday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Harold Woods, Jr., on Deborah drive. Mrs. Richard Kellogg is shown as she entered and was greeted by Mrs. Thad Ryan, Jr., president of the League. Mrs. H. B. Hargrove, and Mrs. Henry Hinkle, Jr., past presidents of the League alternated in the receiving line.

MRS. BERNARD AUGUSTUS FRAZER

Miss Harriet Jo Smith Weds Bernard Frazer

Miss Harriet Jo Smith became the bride of Bernard Augustus Frazer of Warren, Arkansas, in a candlelight ceremony at the First Methodist church Saturday afternoon. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Smith of Monroe, and the grooms parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elbert A. Frazer of Warren.

Two large sprays of white gladiolus and greenery were placed directly behind the altar where the Rev. W. Pomeroy Sparks, the bride's pastor, performed the double-ring ceremony before a background of Easter lilies, white gladioli and white stock and smaller candelabras holding white tapers lighted the altar.

A pre-nuptial concert was heard as the candles were lighted by Miss Sharon Roberts and Miss Carolyn Peacock of Belzoni, Miss., cousin of the bride, who wore identical dresses of pale green with wrist corsages of pale pink carnations. Miss Elaine Allen at the organ played the traditional selections, and accompanied Bill Kennedy of England, Arkansas, who sang "I Love But Thee", "Because", and The Lord's Prayer".

Mrs. Gary Bonner of Fort Worth, Texas, was matron of honor. She wore pale green embroidered polished cotton, fashioned with cap sleeves, full skirt, and solid color cummerbund. Her hat was of pale green horsehair braid with matching velvet trim. She carried a pink camellia with a cascade down the skirt.

Bridesmaids, whose dresses were identical to that of the matron of honor, were Mrs. Kenneth Newson of Rayville, Miss Lynda Sue Hendricks, and Miss Margaret Green of Ferriday, cousin of the groom.

BRIDE

The bride entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. The bodice of her demistered satin gown was covered with Chantilly lace scalloped at the neckline. A front panel of lace trimmed the full skirt, which flowed into a chapel train of satin. Her veil fell from a small crown of pearls and sequins fashioned into tiny hearts. Seed pearls dotted her short white gloves. She carried a white orchid surrounded by pale pink rosebuds.

Elbert Frazer served as his son's best man. Groomsmen were John B. Frazer, Jr., of Warren, Ark.; James H. Frazer, Jr., of Kensett, Ark., both cousins of the groom; Roger C. Bates, and Eddie K. Elias of North Little Rock; and James G. Steed of Osceola, Ark.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Smith was wearing a mauve silk shantung sheath with matching jacket and matching accessories. Her hat was of mauve leaves with a darker pink veil and she wore an orchid corsage. Mrs. Frazer, mother of the groom, chose dusty pink lace over pink pearl. Matching pearl forget-me-nots trimmed her dusty pink hat. Her corsage was a purple orchid.

RECEPTION

The bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church parlors following the ceremony. An arrangement of spring flowers was used on the piano in the entrance parlor where the wedding party and the parents formed the receiving line.

A cutwork linen cloth covered the bride's table, in the main parlor. White spring flowers and stock formed the centerpiece, which was flanked by white candles in crystal candlesticks. Mrs. Joe Coleman and Mrs. George Roser alternated at the crystal punch bowl.

The wedding cake, a tiered confection topped with wedding bells, was placed on a separate round table covered with white taffeta and net. Mrs. Monroe Brown and Mrs. Roy Harley cut the cake.

Mrs. R. E. Wailes presided at the bride's book, beside which burned a memory candle. Others who assisted were Mrs. Joe D. Halback, Jr., Mrs. James Erwin Maxwell, Miss Alice Ruth Serio, Miss Sherry Hendricks, and Miss Gail Dunn. Young misses Martha Ellen Thomason and Nan Scurria distributed rice bags to the guests.

Before Mr. and Mrs. Frazer left on their wedding trip to the Gulf coast and parts of Florida, the bride changed into a green and white linen traveling suit. She wore a green flower hat and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return, the young couple will live in Arkansas.

The bride is a graduate of the Tallulah High school and of Louisiana Tech. Her sorority was Sigma Kappa. The groom, a graduate of Warren High school received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Hendrix college, where he was a member of Alpha Psi Omega dramatic fraternity.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. McPherson of Shreveport; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore of Arkansas City, Ark.; Mrs. P. J. Smith of Dumas, Ark.; Mrs. B. M. Peacock, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harley, Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Brown, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Frazer, all of Warren, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Green of Ferriday; Mr and Mrs. Philip J. Scurria and Joe of Tallulah; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Peacock of Belzoni, Miss.; and Herman J. Frazer of Pine Bluff, Ark.

Before starting on a vacation trip by car, take along several sleeves cut from old garments. Then if it is necessary for the driver to make emergency car repairs, it is easy to slip these on and hold them up with rubber bands to protect sleeves of coat or shirt.

Brenda Sue Stewart, John DuPriest Married

In an Easter setting, Miss Brenda Sue Stewart and John A. DuPriest were married Thursday, April 14th at seven o'clock in the evening at the First Baptist Church of Monroe. She is the daughter of Mrs. Cecil O. Thorne of West Monroe and W. B. Stewart of Sulphur, La. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. DuPriest, of this city.

The Reverend James T. Horton performed the double-ring ceremony before a background of Easter lilies, white carnations, and greenery arranged in white Grecian urns and before tall pyramided candelabra with lighted white tapers.

Mrs. J. Norman Coon, soloist, sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer." She was accompanied by Mrs. B. D. Allbritton at the organ.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over bridal taffeta. The bodice, reembroidered with seed pearls and iridescent sequins, featured a scalloped Sabrina neckline and long pointed sleeves. The bouffant skirt was scalloped in front with tiers of tulle ruffles cascading down the back to form a chapel train. She wore a crown of seed pearls and brilliants with a veil of illusion appliqued with lace motifs embroidered with iridescent sequins. She caried a bouquet of stephanotis and lily-of-the-valley centered with a large white purple-throated orchid.

Mrs. J. W. Roy, Jr., sister of the bride, served as matron-of-honor. She wore a full skirted dress of white silk organza embroidered with white daisies, over pink taffeta. Her headpiece was covered with matching material. She wore pink shoes and carried a crescent shaped bouquet of pink carnations.

Guy E. DuPriest, Jr. served his brother as best man. The other groomsmen were: J. W. Roy, Jr., Jay Cummins, Rudy Laissle, Bennie Franklin, and Jimmy Roach. Master Barry Turner, of Gahon, La., served as ring bearer.

Mrs. Thorne chose for her daughter's wedding, a blue lace over blue sateen. She wore matching blue accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bride's grandmother wore a pink lace over pink taffeta. Her accessories were pink and she wore a pink cymbidium orchid.

Mrs. DuPriest chose a beaded beige sheath with beige satin accessories. She wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Reitzammer on Pargoud Drive. A white theme was used throughout the reception rooms. White carnations and stock arranged in a three tiered candelabra holding white tapers formed the centerpiece on the dining room table which was overlaid with a white lace cloth. Serving punch was Mrs. E. P. Machnik and serving wedding cake, Mrs. Jessie Owens.

Following the reception, the bride changed into a beige raw silk suit with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. The couple then left for a trip to Biloxi, Miss. They will make their home at 4005 Harrison St. in College Town.

Girl Scout News

Time to think about the good ole summertime, if we haven't already done so. To Scouts summer means a chance to do those things weekly troop meetings don't allow time for — swimming lessons in June, a cooking class, crafts, maybe sewing, and, of course, camping.

Folders on the swimming classes have been given to leaders to give the girls. As has been done for the past twelve years, Red Cross trained water safety instructors will teach classes ranging in ability from the non-swimmer through lifesaving. It is necessary to register at the office for the four-week course, beginning May 30. Girl Scout standards require the filing of a physician's statement of physical fitness. The program committee must know how many teachers to provide, may be limited by the number available. Therefore, parents must observe the deadline.

We've just learned that Louisiana Power and Light Company will again sponsor a cooking class, July 18-29 this year. It will be open to girls who next year will be in the sixth grade or above. Again, there will be competition for a place in the class, so girls are advised to sign up soon. The course is based on activities in the cook proficiency badge.

This, of course, is troop camping season. Troop 6 took advantage of the Easter school holiday to spend a night at Pine Wood, but we haven't heard any details of their trip. Troop 15, leaders, Mrs. Norman Deaton and Mrs. Charles Schneider went to Pine Wood this week end. It was the first overnight for these fifth graders and they were most excited over learning to make bedrolls and planning activities for their stay. They will have the privilege of taking part in the junior roundup, since they willingly shared the camp for the roundup when the place had to be changed.

As this is written we don't know how many junior high girls participated in the roundup, but we do know that they will miss an opportunity if they don't. Coming from Alexandria are eight girls who were among the 10,000 who took part in the senior roundup in Colorado in 1959. These girls will talk about their experiences, will demonstrate cooking, pitching a tent. The film, "A Mile High, A World Wide," depicting scenes at the roundup, will be shown.

Day camp registrations are coming in consistently, with some age groups filling up fast, indicating a need for families to make their plans to register their daughters now.

The people who attended the Arts Caravan Workshop in Shreveport returned full of ideas to share with other leaders. Attending were Mrs. Charles Overton, Mrs. Walter Bell, Mrs. F. M. Waren, Mrs. A. B. Gregory, Jr., Mrs. George Herrell, Mrs. N. L. Huckabee, Mrs. Irvin Kilpatrick, Mrs. Huckabee, and Miss Annis Klie attended the institute held in connection with the caravan. One fascinating craft they learned something about is Origami, the Japanese art of paper folding, taught by a Japanese trainer with the caravan.

Ah, spring! All the glorious weather we've been having is inspiring activity and a general bestirring of visitors, garden tours, teas, spring style shows, travelers and other sure signs of the season.

There's no more delightful time for out of towners to come here than now, when our yards are riotous with color, and before we get our real summer. MRS. H. H. DAVIS, SR., of Williamsburg, Kentucky is here with her children, the JACK DAVISES. Last week the three adults and JACKIE, DIANE, CAROL, and DONOVAN went to New Orleans for Easter, visiting Jean's parents, the DONOVAN BROWNES.

Monroe's CAROLYN OLIVER Brown, who now claims Glastonbury, Conn., as home, spent this week with her parents, the COURTNEY OLIVERS. Here from Baton Rouge for a few days were the COURTNEY OLIVERS, JR., who came up for a visit with sister Carolyn and the children, STEPHEN, PHILIP, and Nancy.

Carolyn has been honored with a number of small, informal parties, giving old friends a chance for reminiscing. Tuesday ten intimates gathered for coffee on the patio at CHE CHE LILES' home. The brick terrace overlooking the bayou was an ideal spot for chatting while nibbling at hot biscuits and cookies.

A bridge party on Wednesday was the compliment of JEAN HAMMONS. Highland Park country club was the scene of the party. MAYDRON JONES was the winner, with NELL FAULK low. A chicken salad plate was served to the two tables of players.

There is a most interesting affair, or series of affairs, scheduled for Tuesday. There is some question whether it should be termed a travelling house party, a cross-country garden tour, or a combination of these. A chartered bus is to bring some thirty-one members of the Dallas Garden club to Monroe, arriving Tuesday. They will tour several yards that afternoon, and several more on Wednesday, before continuing their trip.

Tuesday night the ladies will be guests at a barbecue to be given at the Harold Woods camp on the Arkansas road in West Monroe. Hostesses for the party are MARY LEE MILAM, NODIE THATCHER, CHICK LEWIS, LOUISE LEIGH, CAROL LAYTON, BETTY BIEDENHARN, ANNA GRAY NOE, ENOLA ROGERS, EMY LOU BIEDENHARN, and BERNICE WOODS.

After visiting some gardens here Wednesday morning, the bus will procede to Newellton, where the ladies will be entertained at a luncheon on Old River. The TOMMY CLARK home will be the scene of a party Wednesday afternoon at five, and MRS. DAVID LIDE will be hostess at dinner Wednesday evening. After dinner, the ladies will go on to Natchez, where they will spend two days visiting the ante-bellum homes and gardens.

The Rev. and Mrs. Albert H. Cullen of Monroe are scheduled to leave Sunday afternoon on an extended foreign tour. They will drive to New York, leaving there by plane next Monday to accompany their son, Dr. Robert M. Cullen to his mission field and hospital in Ippy, French Equatorial Africa.

Their first stop will be in London where they plan to visit the family of Reverend Cullen who still reside there. Next stop will be Paris, France, to visit the school attended by Dr. Cullen when he began his mission work some years ago. The family of Dr. Cullen will join him for his four years work. The Rev. and Mrs. Cullen will return to Monroe next fall.

SYDNIE and ARTHUR SMITH are due home from New Orleans today. They went down Thursday, and on Friday attended the dinner-dance at the Lakewood country club.

Leaving today for a spring trip abroad are the JACK GORNS and the MILTON GORNS. They fly to New York today, and sail on the Queen Elizabeth on Wednesday. They plan to spend six weeks touring in England, France, and Italy.

Everyone, BUT EVERYONE, will be dancing Friday night, with two big dances on tap. The Cosmopolitan club spring semi-formal will be at the Paragon, which will be decorated to carry out a May Day theme. The Constellations will play.

Shep Fields and his orchestra will play for the spring formal at the Bayou DeSiard country club Friday night. A thirty-minute floor show will be presented by the band and vocalists.

"Guys and Dolls", after a delayed opening due to illness in the cast, is now being presented nightly at the Little Theatre at Selman field. The musical will run through next Sunday night.

Young Miss Denise Dyer was wearing a brown and white polished cotton when she welcomed fourteen little friends to an Easter Egg hunt celebrating her fourth birthday last Saturday. Individual baskets were given as favors, and each guest filled hers with eggs found in the yard. The table covered with an Easter cloth, was set up on the patio, which was decorated with clusters of balloons. Cake and ice cream and pink lemonade were served.

Yesterday marked the three hundred ninty-sixth anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare. In all that time, no one has surpassed his sonnets, of which this is an example:

And every humour hath his adjunct pleasure,
Wherein it finds a joy above the rest:
But these particulars are not my measure;
All these I better in one general best.
Thy love is better than high birth to me,
Richer than wealth, prouder than garments' cost,
Of more delight than hawks or horses be:
And having thee, of all men's pride I boast:
Wretched in this alone, that thou mayst take
All this away and me most wretched make.

THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH of West Monroe will be the scene of the wedding of Miss Avalyn Carol Wilhite, daughter of Mrs. Willbanks Wilhite and James Wilhite, and William Fowler Tubb, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace Tubb, all of West Monroe. The wedding is planned for June 5.

Church Ceremony Unites Miss Graves, Mr. Saunders

Beneath an ivy - entwined altar, flanked by floor standards overflowing with white gladiolis and bridal wreath, Miss Carole Sue Graves, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Graves, of Marion, exchanged marriage vows with John Colvin Saunders, son of Mrs. Lois Futch of Ruston, on April 15 at the First Baptist Church in Marion.

After the guests were escorted to their pews by Wallace Graves and William Paul Ogden, the long white tapers, held in branched candelabra, were lighted by Jimmy Peek and Keith Causey. During the lighting of the candles, Mrs. Pat Futch, accompanied by Miss Helena Wells at the organ, gave a beautiful rendition of "I Love You Truly".

To the soft strains of the traditional wedding march, the bridesmaids, Misses Judy Crow, Janice Crow, Nelda Hudson, and Carolyn Paine, entered in their lovely dresses of orchid chiffon over taffeta. In their hair they wore bandeaus in a deeper shade of orchid velvet which corresponded with the streamers on their nosegay bouquets of shasta daisies and lilies - of - the - valley nestled against a background of orchid chiffon bordered with white lace.

Little Miss Lisa Kay Mashaw, niece of the bride, served as flower girl and was attired in a dress identical to that of the bridesmaids. Master Jimmy Nugent, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer. Mrs. Louis Mashaw, wearing pink lace over taffeta and carrying a nosegay arrangement of daisies, served her sister as matron - of - honor.

The bride was escorted to the altar on the arm of her father who gave her in marriage. She wore a white floor - length bridal gown with bouffant skirt of ruffled tulle overlaid with panels of Chantilly lace. The basque bodice, also of Chantilly lace, featured a low, scalloped neckline and was fastened in the back with tiny buttons extending to below the waist. The long sleeves tapered to petal points over her wrists. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a tiara of sequins and seed pearls. She wore a single pearl pendant.

Her corsage was of carnations. Mrs. Futch was attired in a navy sheer model with which she wore pink accessories, and a carnation corsage.

The bride's table was overlaid with a white imported lace cloth over orchid satin, and was centered with an artistic arrangement of spring blossoms. At one end was placed the tiered wedding cake decorated in the bride's chosen scheme of orchid and pink. Mrs. Peggy Craig, Dallas, Texas, sister of the groom, served the cake. Serving punch from the crystal bowl at the opposite end of the table was Mrs. Sue Nugent, Winnsboro, also a sister of the groom.

The young couple are making their home in Monroe until Mrs. Saunders completes her studies. Saunders completes her studies. They will move to Ruston this fall at which time Mr. Saunders will resume his studies at Louisiana Tech.

Laundering her own clothes will develop a teen girl's appreciation for clean, sweet smelling garments and a well-groomed appearance.

Wide panels of lace over tulle flowed to the floor in a chapel length train. A crown of seed pearls held the lace - edged veil of illusion. Her bouquet was an orchid surrounded by white carnations and centered on a white Bible.

Mrs. Jimmy Haddox was her sister's matron of honor, and Mrs. Carl Owens was bridesmaid. They wore identical dresses of orchid silk organza appliqued with flowers of a deeper shade. Their small hats were of orchid flowers and they carried bouquets of lavender and orchid chrysanthemums. Vickie Coody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Coody, was flower girl, and was dressed like the other attendants.

Gary Huckabay was best man, and Wamul Owens, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Ushers were Jimmy Haddox and Ronny Sanford. Kenneth Foster and Ray Owens, nephews of the bride, were ring bearers.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained with a reception in the banquet hall of the church. Mrs. Owens, mother of the bride, was wearing a dress of grey lace over pink taffeta with a pink flower hat and a pink corsage of roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. Johnston, chose mauve lace with a mauve flower hat and a corsage of pink roses.

MRS. DAVID LOUIS JOHNSTON

The bride's table was covered with an orchid cloth overlaid with white lace. The centerpiece, which was placed on a ruffled doily of orchid net, was of orchid chrysanthemums surrounded by white candles. Punch was served by Miss Dorothy Broadway and Miss Kathy Masters.

The tiered cake, topped with a bride and groom, was placed at the other end of the table. Mrs. Willie May served the cake. Miss Mack L. Owens, Jr., and Mrs. Georgia Ruth Owens presided at the bride's book.

For traveling, the bride changed into an orchid embroidered linen sheath dress with matching jacket and accessories of black patent. She wore the orchid from her wedding bouquet. Upon their return, the young couple will be at home in West Monroe.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of the West Monroe High school, and will be graduated in May from Northeast Louisiana State college. She is a member of the Senior Board at the college. He is a member of Pi Sigma Epsilon business fraternity and of the Scabbard and Blade.

Talked-About Fashions Noted By Magazine

The Paris collections didn't short change waistlines and there's no reason for general alarm on the subject of hemlines, since actually they've been stabilized for some time at about an inch or two below the knees.

The fact that these subjects have attracted such wide attention is cheering, according to the editors of Vogue Magazine, because it demonstrates that people are as plain - speaking on the subject of fashion as they are on the subject of taxes or movies or politics.

The magazine notes some of the fashions people are talking about: The Torso Dress. There's already been lots of talk about this. What a proper torso dress has besides fullness that begins in the brink of the torso is an unclenchy but unmistakeable shapeliness and often — for the truly anxiety - prone — a belt. Here's what looks smashing with it: close - fitting hair, a tilting wheel - brimmed straw hat, really long gloves (sixteen buttons is the '60-est length of glove.)

The Overblouse Flash. Americans have been with it for years; love the youngness of it, the ease, the peculiarly U.S. appeal of chic-without-tears. The this-year version has cut-out sleeves, smock - like gathering, a flip young trick of jutting out briskly at the back.

The Hat That's a Single Flower. One point about all these hats: allure — they're steeped in it. Typical is a huge black silk cabbage rose drenched in veiling (through which might be seen lots of earring, very little hair, and as many extra eyelashes as can be batted comfortably against the veiling.)

The Gingham Rage: Gingham now: strict little city suits in brown and white checks; bathing suits: slips, petticoats, nightdresses; and, for any slip-dress with the wit to be chocolate - brown, tall back - of - the - head pillboxes in pink gingham checks.

The current Vogue also reports people are talking about the new suit shoe elegance; the Gypsy hoopla; Balenciaga's famous stole - dress; the hat that's all flowers; the dress with the boneless belt; the return of all-out black for summer; the culotte revival; pleats on the torso's edge; twice as much earring; the eased-up T-dress; and the 11 a.m. chiffon.

Tips Given On Gifts For Air Travelers

Air travelers flying overseas are frequently deluged at the airport by gifts from well-meaning friends. Often the gifts are impractical, and it is too late to leave them home.

The first rule in sending bon voyage gifts to friends going aboard, is to send them in advance so that they can be packed before departure — or left home. Remember, first-class passengers have but 66 pounds allowance, economy only 44. And the chances are the passenger has packed right to the limit. What's more, no matter how ingenious the selection of a present, it may already have been bought or given.

The second rule is to select gifts that are compact, lightweight, necessary or disposable.

Here are some items recommended for the ladies: Soft, easily packable cocktail bag; a gay silk scarf or small "chapel" veil which can be tucked in the purse to use as head covering in churches; a lightweight silk or wool stole; a suede jewelry case; a cosmetic case with plastic bottles; stick perfume or perfume in acrosol containers; nylon string shopping bag to carry on day-long jaunts; a tape measure for checking foreign sizes; Argenta pillows (hand lotion in packets).

Favorites with both men and women are the new face-washing and laundering aids such as Wash 'N Dri packets which can be carried in wallet or purse; soap leaves and capsules; compressed disposable washcloths; concentrated liquid soap in plastic container; stick spot remover; soft folding slippers; alarm wristwatches; pocket-size money converters; sleep shades; pocket-size transistor radios; paperback books which can be thrown away; sturdy plastic luggage tags.

Other suggestions for both sexes: New pocket-size Holiday Magazine European guide books which are as light as a passport (Random House, $1 each); prepaid evening and nightclub tours in Paris, Rome, Madrid, Vienna and London, purchasable through any American Express office; a dinner ticket to a famous restaurant, such as Rome's Hotel Mediterranco "21" Restaurant which offers $5 and $7 Gift Dinners which may be bought through travel agents.

An extra foot-scrubbing in hot soapsuds during the day will relax tired face lines, ease tired feet, and make you feel and look more at peace with the world.

WAX IMPROVES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Look for big improvements in self-polishing floor wax in the near future.

The wax will have a higher gloss, resist wear for several months, and regain initial shine with rebuffing, thanks to chemical advances in synthetic ingredients, says Dr. J. V. Steinle, research head of a wax manufacturing firm.

The wax also will be impervious to water spotting, even when soap is added to water. But it will come off easily if a "common chemical" is added to wash water, Steinle said.

Avoid Make-Up Demarcation At Hairline

Many women fail to achieve an otherwise flawless makeup effect by leaving a noticeable line of demarcation between their hairlines and where the application of foundation make-up ends. You can easily avoid this error, and still keep your hairline free of make-up, by adhering to the following procedure.

Apply foundation make-up to your forehead, cheeks, and jawline, stopping at least a half-inch away from your hairline. Blend the make-up over your face, then carefully work toward your hairline in light, feathery strokes, gently blending the color right up to the roots of your hair. If you have gone too far into hairline, you can remove any makeup on the front strands of hair by using a pad of cotton, lightly dampened with skin freshener or astringent, or by brushing it out with a clean eyebrow brush.

Here's Check List For Baby Nursery

New baby in the house? Here's a check list for his or her safety and comfort in the nursery:

Be sure that paints and finishes on the crib and other furniture are non - toxic. Babies chew on anything.

Sides of the crib should lock securely so baby can't push them down.

Avoid the use of plastic cleaner type bags for mattress covers. These can cause suffocation.

Buy the best crib mattress you can afford. Baby's growing body needs a sleeping surface that offers proper support.

MISS PATRICIA McCULLEN, whose engagement and approaching marriage to Doyce McGuffee, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. McGuffee of Columbia, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Chief Tusquahoma DAR Has Meeting At Synope

Synope Plantation, home of Mrs. O. N. Reynolds, was opened to members of the Chief Tusquahoma Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, on Saturday, April 16. Co-hostesses were Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, Mrs. Archie Dickerson, Mrs. Taylor McFadden and Mrs. Joe Rogers.

A large spray of Formosa azaleas brightened the reception room, and similar arrangements were placed at vantage points throughout the house.

Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, first vice-regent, called the meeting to order. A prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. J. C. Stewart, was followed by the Allegiance to the Flag and the reading of the American's Creed in unison. Mrs. Jack Willis led the group in singing the National Anthem and the State song "Louisiana".

The National Defense chairman, Mrs. Gordie L. Roy, gave a talk on the Walter-McCarran Act, and handed out booklets, "United Nations Unmasked".

Mrs. DeWitt Smith introduced Mrs. C. E. Faulk, guest speaker. In keeping with the D.A.R.'s yearly topic "Faith of Our Fathers Living Still", Mrs. Faulk chose as her topic "The First Settlers In This Area". She told of the rise and fall of Trenton, which was incorporated and named in the year 1851, and which enjoyed great prosperity from its very beginning and through the "Steamboat Era". Interesting photographs showing actual scenes of the town of Trenton were displayed.

After the meeting, the daughters were invited to the dining area where Mrs. J. Otto Miller presided at the silver coffee service placed on one end of the two circular dining tables, both overlaid in white Irish linen, held the proverbial hen on the nest, surrounded by gay colored eggs. A large fan shaped bouquet of eounymus, daffodils and narcissus placed in an antique wash bowl surrounded by a nest of brightly colored eggs, centered the other table. Each table held a brass candelabra with slender gold tapers. In the spacious spring gardens, a wrought iron table held the crystal punch bowl where members were privileged to help themselves to ice cream punch.

Members present for the occasion were: Mrs. W. B. McGee, Mrs. Edward Koserog, Mrs. W. G. Haynes, Jr., Mrs. Herman M. McGuire, Mrs. Roy E. Lee, Mrs. J. Otto Miller, Mrs. I. H. Hamilton, Mrs. J. B. Landreaux, Mrs. Jack Willis, Mrs. James L. McGuire, Miss Mary Louise Ellis, Mrs. J. H. Morgan, Mrs. DeWitt Smith, Mrs. Gordie Roy, Mrs. J. C. Stewart, Mrs. J. A. Rainbolt and the guest speaker, Mrs. Faulk.

Mrs. J. W. Golson presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Ralph Murphy.

The afternoon study was on texture of flowers and foliage that blend one with the other. Mrs. John Lewis judged the arrangements according to texture and color blending.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames Jessie Webb, J. H. Alford, B. B. Seale, Joe Monroe, J. K. Mayo, John Lewis, L. A. Young, J. W. Golson, J. Fink, Shep Aulds, E. B. Garrett, and Mrs. J. B. Young.

Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Velpo Guess and Mrs. H. B. McDowell served coffee.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. B. Young on Lakeshore Drive in Monroe.

Use your gravy ladle when filling muffin pan cups with batter for muffins or cup cakes. Usually one scoop is just enough to fill the cup right.

LEGLESS DINNER TABLE

NEW YORK (UPI)—An aircraft development engineer wants to cut the legs out from under American dining tables.

A working model of Walter R. Bush's guitar - shaped table was displayed at a recent food symposium here before going on a national tour of museums and department stores. The table, with a melamine top in a wood-grain finish, hangs from the ceiling on a series of slender rods placed so they don't interfere with across-the-table visibility.

Bush said he chose the guitar shape to seat two to eight diners "in sociable proximity."

Other innovations included a self - contained ceiling and table edge lighting system, a center well with a fountain for flower arrangements, a built-in telephone connection, twin electric warmers, and a pop-up television set. Switches for all these were concealed beneath the table.

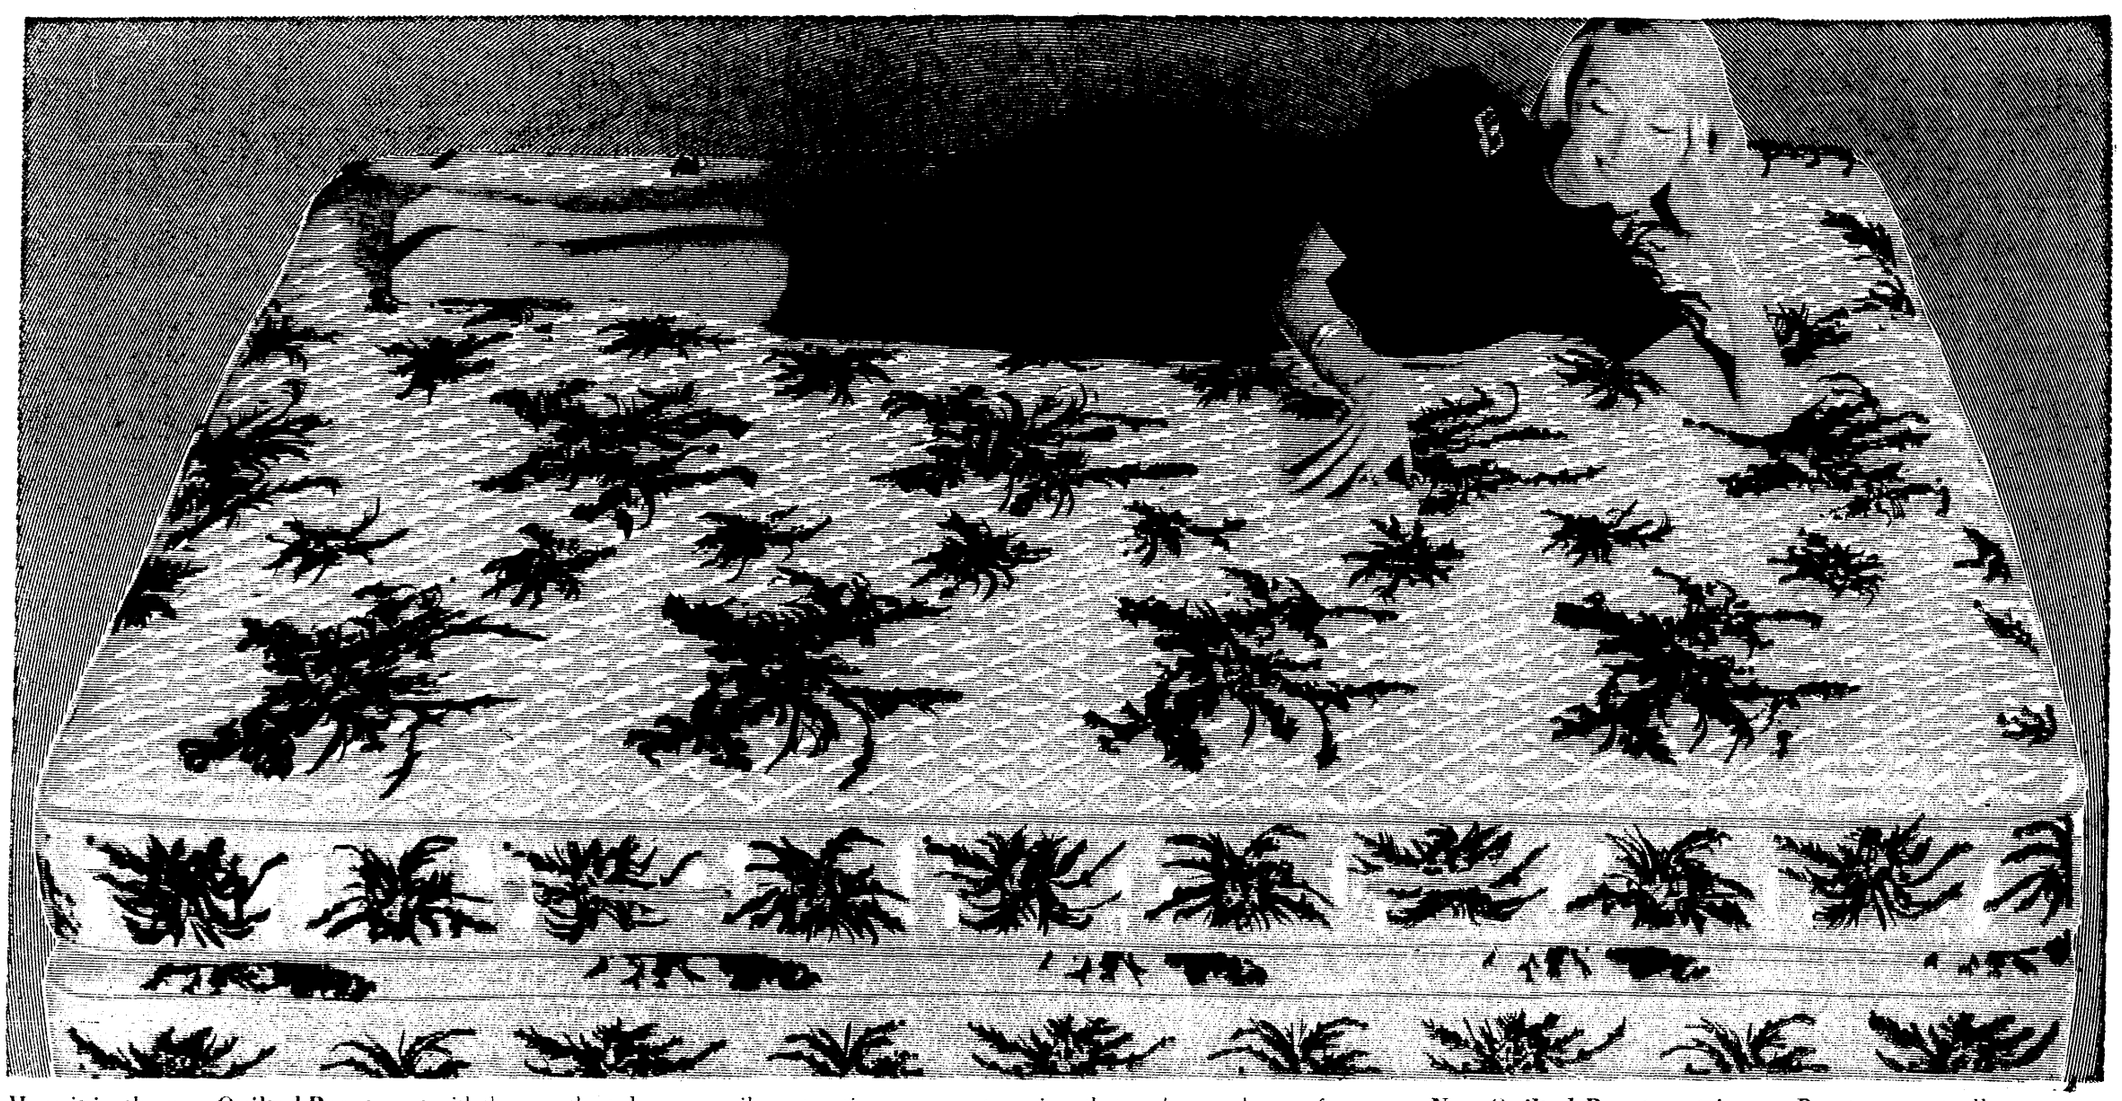
QUILTED BEAUTYREST



Here it is, the new Quilted Beautyrest with the smoothest sleeping surface ever! Not a button or a tuft. And it's Beautyrest through and through, giving you the buoyant firmness that's kind to your back. Under the gay, smooth quilted top is the famous independent coil construction . . . separate springs that push up under you for perfect body-fitting comfort. Beautyrest can never, never sag . . . that's why Beautyrest with separate springs gives you single-bed comfort in a double bed, why the heaviest husband can't disturb his wife's sleep. New Quilted Beautyrest is pure Beautyrest, actually costs you less to own. Beautyrest has over 800 individual springs . . . not tied together . . . each is in separate cloth pockets. Each spring works independently to push up under the back . . . gives you firm, buoyant support.

NEW YORK MEET SET

Newspaper Week Opens On Monday

NEW YORK (AP) — American Newspaper Week will open in New York Monday with 1,500 editors and publishers gathered from all sections of the United States.

They will attend the annual meeting of the Associated Press on Monday and the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. from Monday through Thursday.

Defense Secretary Thomas S. Gates Jr. will address the AP annual luncheon Monday. Dr. Wernher von Braun, director of the development operations division of the Army Ballistics Agency, will speak Thursday at a dinner sponsored by the Bureau of Advertising of the ANPA.

Members of the AP, worldwide news cooperative, will hold a morning business session to elect seven directors and to act on applications of 26 associate member newspapers for regular membership.

Four AP political reporters will discuss the 1960 presidential election in an afternoon panel session. Participating will be William L. Beale, chief of the Washington Bureau; Jack Bell and Harold Oliver of the Washington Bureau; and Relman Morin of New York.

Raymond L. Spangler, publisher of the Redwood City, Calif., Tribune and an AP director, will be the moderator.

Terms of six members of the 18-man AP board of directors expire this year. A seventh member resigned from the board. The seven places will be filled from among 14 nominations.

Ethridge and Simons, having served three three-year terms, were ineligible for renomination.

The nominating committee renominated Fitzgerald, Ridder, Maxwell and Healy.

Also nominated were Frank S. Hoag Jr., Pueblo, Colo., Chieftan; Robert Bunnelle, Asheville, N. C., Citizen and Asheville Citizen Times; Joseph Pulitzer Jr., St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Robert C. Millar, Jacksonville, Fla., Journal; William Dwight, Holyoke, Mass., Transcript-Telegram; Paul Miller, Rochester, N. Y., Times-Union; Robert B. Atwood, Anchorage, Alaska, Times; M. E. Nussbau., Moultrie, Ga., Observer; Wright Bryan, Cleveland Plain Dealer; and Henry D. Bradley, St. Joseph, Mo., Gazette and Sunday News Press.

Atwood and Nussbaum were nominated to succeed Simons, who represents cities of fewer than 50,000 population.

Bryan and Bradley were nominated to succeed Nathaniel R. Howard, of the Cleveland News, who resigned.

The nominating committee, headed by Robert M. White II, of the New York Herald Tribune, praised Ethridge, Simons and Howard for their services to the Associated Press.

1. More newsprint production capacity to meet expanding demands of rising circulation and advertising volume.

2. A "more realistic" federal tax depreciation law to recognize obsolescence and inflation.

3. Less authority by the Internal Revenue Service to determine which institutional advertising is or is not legitimate as a business expense for tax purposes.

Three closed sessions will be held simultaneously Tuesday for general discussion of newspaper problems. The sessions will be for members with newspaper circulations under 10,000; from 10,000 to 50,000; and over 50,000.

ANAP President D. Tennant Bryan, of the Richmond, Va., Times-Dispatch and News Leader, will address a general convention session Wednesday. Officers and directors will be elected at another general session Thursday.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: I have been a loyal church member for many years, but I have never experienced the kind of peace that you are always preaching about. How can I get this peace? Should I leave my church and join another one in ordre to find it, or will God show me the way through prayer? N. B.

ANSWER: There is no church that can give you peace, otherwise more than sixty per cent of the people of the United States would have peace, because more than that many of them are affiliated with churches. It should be obvious then that church and religious affiliation can't never guarantee peace. It may, however, act as a sedative and provide a temporary satisfaction. This would only deceive you. Peace with God comes through a personal relationship with Him. It is the kind of peace that was made possible by the sacrifice of Christ.

The Bible says: "For He is our peace, who made both one, and broke down the middle wall of partition: having abolished in His flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; that He might create in Himself of the two one new man, so making peace; and might reconcile them both in one body unto God through the cross, having slain the enmity thereby. And He came and preached peace to you that were far off, and peace to them that were nigh" (Ephesians 2:14-17) This is the kind of peace that you need, and you can only find it through that personal act of faith in Christ.

If you need additional help, do not hesitate writing to our Minneapolis office for some of our printed literature.

Head Reacts To Charge On Publicity

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asst. Secretary of Defense Murray Snyder reacted Saturday to a congressman's charge that he seeks czarist power over defense industry advertising and publicity by saying he has no intention of abridging the right of free speech.

Snyder, who directs the public affairs operations of the Pentagon, issued a statement following one Friday by Rep. John E. Moss (D-Calif), the chairman of the House Freedom of Information subcommittee.

The statements dealt with a proposed plan being studied by the Pentagon under which censorship power of the Defense Department would be extended to virtually all phases of advertising and press releases by contractors for defense production.

Moss said Friday this proposal could "do a great deal to prevent intelligent discussion of defense policies." He argued that Snyder, as public affairs chief, would have the powers of a czar over such matters.

Snyder conferred with Rep. F. Edward Hebert (D-La), chairman of a House Armed Services subcommittee, and later with the Defense Department's general counsel, J. Vincent Burke. Then Snyder issued a statement saying the department is giving careful consideration to various recommendations made by a Hebert committee, which had raised questions about defense industry advertising.

"The recommendations with reference to the defense industry advertising are being studied by all interested elements within the Department of Defense," Snyder said.

"A draft of possible guidelines for defense industry advertisings, one of many, was circulated to the military departments and other interested elements of the Department of Defense for comment. It has not been fully coordinated within the office of the secretary of defense and has not been approved by the general counsel.

"It is not my intention nor that of Mr. Burke," Snyder said, "to abridge in any way the right of free speech guaranteed by the Constitution nor to go beyond the recommendations of Mr Hebert's subcommittee. I have so assured Mr. Hebert and have also assured him that Mr. Burke and I will further explore the matter next week."

Bathing

KASAMA, Northern Rhodesia (AP)—Mixed bathing in the nude began as part of the ritual of a Negro religious sect in this remote area. Chief Mwamba has cracked down. He sent 30 men to jail for two months and fined 32 women for violating "African laws and customs by mixed bathing naked."

TIME OUT

TELL CITY, Ind. (AP) — Play was delayed in a high school basketball game when cheer leader Oris Kleeman collided with referee Roland Baker. Miss Kleeman was knocked out, and the official was sidelined with a bruised knee.

AF Officer Convicted On Info Charge

GOLDSBORO, N. C. (AP)—An Air Force officer decorated for heroism at Pearl Harbor has been convicted of offering restricted missile site information to two businessmen here for $2,500. He allegedly sought to capitalize on missile site rumors.

Evidence at the general court-martial Friday night of Lt. Col. John E. Roesch, 41, indicated there were no takers last December for the information, which the Air Force described as indefinite and highly speculative.

Roesch, of Dallas, Tex., was convicted of "offering official Air Force information concerning proposed locations of certain Air Force missile sites," he pleaded innocent.

The Air Force, acknowledging it had made terrain tests last year as part of regional surveys on where missile bases might be located, said the information had not been authorized then for public disclosure, although there was nothing top secret about it. The Air Force said information about actual designation of any missile sites was not involed in the Roesch case.

The court-martial reprimanded Roesch, fined him $1,960 and suspended him from certain privileges for a year. The conviction and sentence are subject to automatic review.

Roesch, eligible for retirement in December after 20 years of duty, is the aircraft maintenance officer for the 4th Tatical Fighter Wing here. Seymour Johnson houses units of the Tactical, strategic and Air Defense commands.

The court-martial found Roesch guilty of offering information last Dec. 1 to two Goldsboro businessmen — J. M. Fordham, owner of a dry-cleaning chain, and Bill Odom Sr., an auto dealer. Roesch was acquitted of trying to sell information to a third businessman.

"He was a friend of mine," Odom said, "and I hope he still is. But the information got out and they called for a statement and I had to tell them the truth. I don't think he had any classified information. I think he was just trying to pick up some cash."

Roesch, married and the father of three children, won the Silver Star Dec. 7, 1941, when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. He was cited for heroism in setting up weapons despite heavy strafing. Roesch was wounded and received the Purple Heart.

Confab

CAIRO (AP)—West and East Germany, Austria, Greece and Yugoslavia have been invited to send observers to the Asian-African Economic Conference beginning next Saturday, Mohamed Rushdi, conference president, said Saturday. The conference will consider an Asian-African investment organization and a mutual aid program.

April Storm Piles Snow On Montana

Thirty inches of snow fell on Roger's Pass spanning the continental divide 45 miles northwest of Montana's capital city. Travel was blocked for hours.

Helena itself and Cut Bank in the northwest had six inches of snow, Great Falls, Butte and Drummond five inches each, all in 24 hours.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Starts Feed Bag Shirt Business

Robert Schmidt, Hillsboro, Miss., wondering what to do with his many chicken feed sacks put the following Want Ad in the "Scott County Times", as he said, "just for fun":

"The old lady needs some change. Will make shirts out of old feed sacks. Please mention size when you order and specify whether you want the words 'Broiled Ration' on back. R. F. Schmidt, Hillsboro, Miss."

Demands came from all over the U.S.

TIM TYLER'S LUCK by Lyman Young and Tom Massey

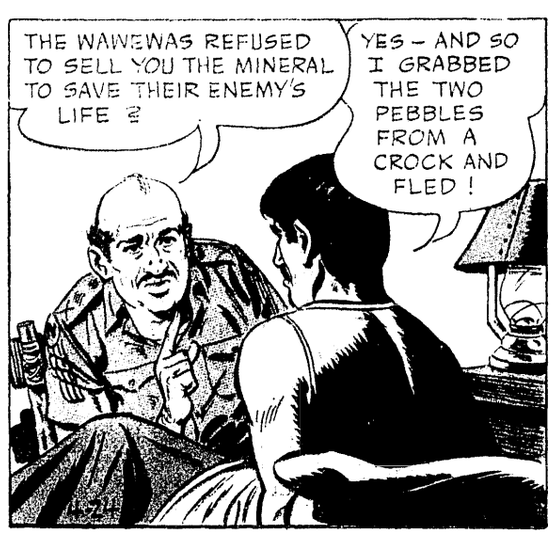
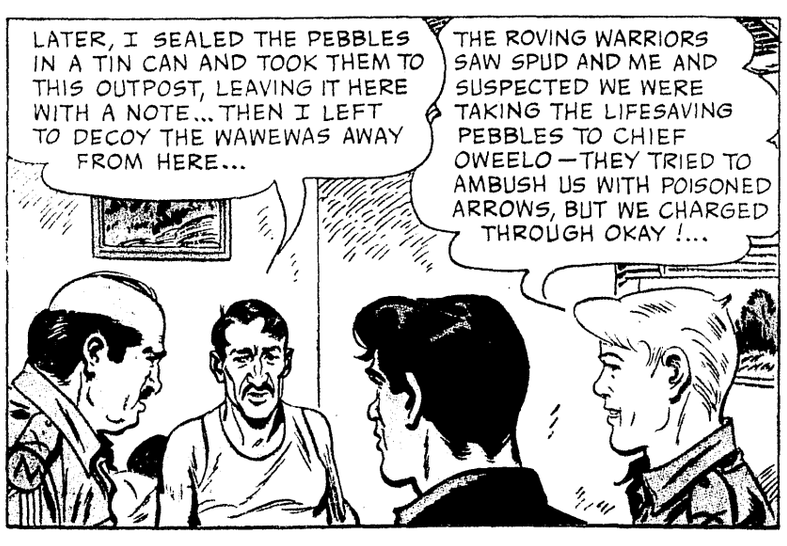
WE QUICKLY BROKE OPEN THE SEALED TIN CAN, REMOVED TWO SHINY PEBBLES AS MR. WATKINS DIRECTED, AND PLACED A PEBBLE IN EACH OF THE CHIEF'S HANDS—

MY FRIEND CHIEF OWEELO HAD A RARE AND DEADLY MALADY.... I LEARNED HIS ENEMIES, THE WAWEWA PYGMIES, POSSESSED A MIRACLE MINERAL THAT COULD CURE THE DISEASE....



THE WAWEWAS REFUSED TO SELL YOU THE MINERAL TO SAVE THEIR ENEMY'S LIFE?
YES—AND SO I GRABBED THE TWO PEBBLES FROM A CROCK AND FLED!



LATER, I SEALED THE PEBBLES IN A TIN CAN AND TOOK THEM TO THIS OUTPOST, LEAVING IT HERE WITH A NOTE... THEN I LEFT TO DECOY THE WAWEWAS AWAY FROM HERE...
THE ROVING WARRIORS SAW SPUD AND ME AND SUSPECTED WE WERE TAKING THE LIFESAVING PEBBLES TO CHIEF OWEELO—THEY TRIED TO AMBUSH US WITH POISONED ARROWS, BUT WE CHARGED THROUGH OKAY!...

NEW TECHNIQUES

New Materials In Future Homes

When talking about the American Home of the Future, even the best-informed expert needs a high-powered crystal ball.

The truth is that nobody can tell for certain what a typical new residence will look like 25 years from now.

Less spectacular but more firmly grounded in fact are predictions about materials and techniques that will be used in constructing the House of the Future.

One of the channels these new products and concepts use in getting from the manufacturer to the public is the Research Institute of the National Assn. of Home Builders.

Here's a description from Architect Herman York, a trustee of the institute, of some of the promising developments currently receiving attention. Many are now emerging from the experimental stage and either are, or soon will be, on the market:

—In a research house built at South Bend, Ind., the exterior walls and roof were built of "sandwich panels" with foamed plastic core and plywood skins. The wall panels are 3" thick with an attractive redwood exterior and have thermal qualities better than conventional construction. Because of the speed of erection, such walls can be built at lower cost than using the usual wood stud method with its multiple layers of miscellaneous materials.

—In many sections of the country houses are built on slabs of concrete. A new foaming process for concrete makes possible a warmer floor due to the insulating value of the air bubbles which form a part of the final product.

—A new kind of door is being used in some of today's houses. It is placed "on" the opening instead of "in" it. It operates much like a refrigerator door. In some instances these doors are 8 feet high (from floor to ceiling) reducing the work involved in building a wall above the door. Such high doors ventilate the room more efficiently.

—Plastics are finding many new uses, particularly on the interior. Accent panels made to look like brick are light in weight and easily formed to suit many conditions. Foamed polystyrene and ground brick are used in panels for attractive interior decor.

—The latest in windows is one which is made of a sliding piece of glass. It's known as a sashless window and eliminates a frame giving greater visibility. Simple hardware provides positive pressure at the center overlap of the glass.

—One of the newer items receiving universal acceptance is the wall hung toilet. Formerly this kind of water closet has been used chiefly in commercial installations requiring high water pressures and larger piping. They were noisy and not suited for residential use. The ease of maintenance of wall hung fixtures is readily apparent.

—In the bathroom fixture area are such new products as one piece molded polyester reinformed plastic lavatories. The vanity top and lavatory are one piece, eliminating the joint and producing a more easily cleaned surface. Researchers are working on one piece bathrooms in which the entire room, wall, floors, ceiling fixtures are molded of one integral material, without joints or seams.

—The maintenance of houses is an important factor of cost to a home owner. Much research is going on in the field of plastic and vinyl coated materials to produce attractive lasting finishes. In the same area, aluminum and baked enameled steel are now finding their way into the housing market.

FHA Loans Cut Cheating

On a new home that the FHA approved for mortgage insurance before construction started, the builder or seller is required by the FHA to give the buyer a warranty that the house was built in substantial conformity with plans and specifications on which the FHA valuation was based.

If you find your new house was not built as agreed, you should notify the builder or seller in writing to that effect during the first year you own the house.

If he does not make good the deficiency, you can take legal action against him.

Nearly half of the existing homes in the United States are more than 40 years old, and presumably in need of home improvement.

Insulation 'Blue Chip' Investment

Wall Street investors can't match the cash dividends many homeowners collect each year.

These cash dividends are paid to homeowners on improvements that make a home easier and more comfortable to live in and less expensive to maintain.

One of the leading "Blue Chip" investments in home improvement is insulation. This investment often pays a yearly cash return of more than 15 per cent, as compared to a savings account which earns about 3 per cent a year, bonds 3 to 4 per cent, stocks 5 to 6 per cent.

INVESTOR'S LOGIC

Here's how this investment plan works:

Suppose a new home has about 1,500 suare feet of living space, and a homeowner decides to save money by skipping insulation. In a central climate zone it will cost about $150 to heat the uninsulated house during the five-month heating season — more in colder areas.

On the other hand, if thick mineral wool is installed during construction — at least 4 inches in the ceiling and 3 inches in walls — it would cost about $350, based on average national prices.

The $350 investment in insulation would cut the heating bill from $150 to about $90 — an annual dividend of $60, or 17 per cent.

In this same situation, the saving on cooling during the 5 hottest months would amount to $115. Thus, the total saving on heating and cooling would be $175. This represents a 50 per cent dividend the first year on the $350 investment. This dividend comes not for just one year, but every year as long as the house stands.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS PROJECT

Home with minimum insulation required 4 - ton cooling unit. With ample insulation, a 2 - ton unit was sufficient — saving $774.25 on equipment. Annual cooling and heating costs dropped from $212.38 to $130.04, almost 40 per cent.

Heating	$ 42.00
Cooling	$107.34

EXTRA DIVIDENDS

Besides increasing the value of the home by at least $350, the homeowner realizes extra dividends:

1. Insulation provides more comfort by helping to keep room temperatures even and free from drafts. Heat is kept where it should be — outside in summer and inside in winter.

2. A wall or ceiling insulated with mineral wool becomes an excellent fire - stop. The insulation will act as a barrier in the path of spreading fire, often giving firemen precious extra minutes to arrive and extinguish the blaze. When he insulates for comfort and economy, the wise homeowner makes sure he gets this extra advantage too.

HOW TO INSULATE

Choice of insulating materials depends largely on relative availability and cost. Generally, mineral products are preferable because of their resistance to fire, electrical short circuits, moisture, termites, vermin and decay. If the homeowner employs a competent and responsible insulation applicator in new home construction, he may expect to have the insulating done properly. The application of insulation to existing homes requires adequate equipment and special skill.

REMODELING SPECIALIST: Herbert Richheimer, a Long Island N. Y., contractor, specializes in enlarging houses. He's holding one of the hundreds of models used in his showroom to visually demonstrate how a home will look after expansion.

NEW BEDROOM?

Remodelers Get Help Of Salesmen

By DAVID L. BOWEN

With the same sales efficiency his chain store neighbors use to move a new brand of soapflakes or a power lawnmower, he sells the housewife on a pair of new bedrooms in the attic, a breezeway and attached garage, or a glamorous recreation room in the basement.

There's nothing uncommon about the trade. But Richheimer has brought to it an uncommon amount of organization and salesmanship.

MINIATURE MODELS

In the shopping center showroom he calls a "Museum of Modern Home Improvements" most families can find a foot-long miniature house model close to the lines of their own home. They then can attach to the model any of several possible expansions: a wing on the back, a full second story, a shed dormer. The customer doesn't have to try to visualize what the addition would do to the appearance of his house: he can actually see it.

Nothing about interior finishing is left to the imagination either. The basement of the show-room is cut up into compartments, each with a different type of wall and floor surface. There's a dummy corner, to show exactly what is involved in raising a section of roof to make an attic room.

Richheimer salesmen find these models more than attractive selling aids. They help remove the vast ignorance of many homeowners of the basic fundamentals of residential construction.

"If you ask a man in the presence of his wife if he knows what a hip roof is, he'll always answer yes," Richheimer insists in a heavy German accent. "He usually doesn't, but he wants to impress his wife. We avoid problems misunderstanding by making certain everything is clear all along the line.

"Ingenuity, new ideas and honesty on the part of the home improvement contractor will give the public the trust it should have in the industry," Richheimer continues. "There should be no need for a family to move every few years because of lack of space. People should not be afraid to [illegible]"

NO LOOSE ENDS

In addition to attractive merchandising, Richheimer's large staff of salesmen shoulder the prospect's complete burden. If the job requires electricians, masons, plumbers and heating engineers in addition to carpenters, all are available.

The company also assists in arranging financing on big jobs, often accomplished by refinancing the mortgage.

Best proof of the attraction of this type of thorough organization in the home improvement contracting field is Richheimer's fantastic growth. In his sixth year of business, he expects to gross four million dollars in 1960.

One of the factors promoting the rapid growth is the predominance of development homes in this section of Long Island, particularly Levittown, N. Y., where Richheimer got his start operating out of his own home. In many cases, additions became as standard as the original models. Richheimer now has a second office in Levittown, Pa.

However, his business is not completely dependent upon standard models. He says only one-third of his current New York work is in Levittown. He's willing to tackle any house.

"Once a homeowner has made use of all available space within the original walls," Richheimer says, "he has two basic choices —either expanding out or up."

BEAUTY ESSENTIAL

Great care should be taken to make sure an addition adds beauty to the home, he warns. "If an extension looks makeshift or inappropriate, it will destroy the value of the original home rather than adding to it."

Generally speaking, he has found the ranch project to offer. It can sprout a wing in any direction. Split level designs lend themselves to additions either at the front or back. Most common is an extra bedroom in the form behind a ground level recreation room.

LAND VALUE UP

One of the biggest factors is the increasing cost of housing is the scarcity of available building sites. Before World II, the cost of land ran about 10 per cent of the total cost of a new house. Now the figure is approximately 20 per cent.

Appliances Under New FHA Ruling

The Federal Housing Administration's recent decision to make installation of built-in kitchen appliances eligible for Title I home improvement loan privileges has been endorsed by a leading industry group as an aid to homeowners seeking to improve home values.

Harold Massey, managing director of the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Assn., says that in addition to helping meet the need for work and space-saving conveniences in the home, the FHA directive makes easier the task of protecting home value with kitchen improvements.

Title I of the National Housing Act authorizes the FHA to insure qualified lending institutions against loss on property improvement loans. An average of a million loans a year protected by this insurance have been made in the last 25 years with net proceeds to borrowers totaling more than $12½ billion.

The FHA's new ruling says that "appliances designed by manufacturers to be installed permanently as a built-in part of a kitchen" may be financed under Title I. Trends of home owners already taking advantage of this clearance installations of gas ovens and counter top units, Massey says. He adds that popularity of built-in gas equipment was proved in the first 10 months of this year when 50 per cent more built-in gas units were installed than in the same period of 1958.

The FHA charges the lending institution a small premium on each loan made. The income from these premiums enables the program to operate without cost to the taxpayer.

EASY FITTING: Rigid plastic pipe joints are made with an adhesive which is brushed on. Pipe can be cut with knife or hacksaw. Sprinkler head has a metal pop-up section which lies flush with ground—out of way of mower—when not in use.

NOT MUCH SKILL

How To Plan A Sprinkler System

One of the most irksome chores facing the homeowner, and one of the commonest faults of lawns, both can be eliminated in one step with the installation of an automatic sprinkler system for the front and back yards. Once seen almost exclusively in the most expensive lawns, sprinkler systems have been brought within reach of more people through the development of inexpensive plastic pipe and "do-it-yourself" installation.

If you have a reasonably good soil to start with, consistent watering is the most important factor that determines the kind of growth you will achieve.

An underground irrigating system makes it possible to water the lawn evenly, and to a degree that can be carefully predetermined in advance.

The plastic pipe is available in either rigid or flexible types. Your local plumber or building supply dealer can suggest which will be best suited to your purpose.

PLAN YOUR SYSTEM

The first step in building a sprinkler system is to measure the dimensions of the lawn to be watered, and to determine how far each sprinkler nozzle will throw its spray. This depends on the particular kind of nozzle and the water pressure on the outlet. Once these factors have been determined, you can tell how many sprinkler heads will be needed to cover the entire area.

The plastic pipe, which carries water to the sprinklers, is easy to install. You need a trench, about 10 inches wide and 10 inches deep, from the existing water outlet inside or outside the house to all the sprinklers in the system. The pipe itself is easy to cut — either a sharp knife or hacksaw will do the job. Pipe sections can be permanently joined with inserts and clamps for the flexible type or threaded and unthreaded fittings which are cemented permanently to rigid type pipe.

Sprinkler heads for this system are designed to be connected to fittings which rise to the surface from the trench where the pipe is laid. Sprinklers are designed to throw water either in circular or rectangular patterns.

PROVIDE PLAY

Only a few simple precautions will protect the pipe and insure permanent service. Long runs of pipe should not be laid in a straight line, but in a series of slight angles if the rigid kind is used, or in gentle curves if the flexible type is installed. Pipe laid this way will be able to move slightly when water flows through it or when the ground thaws after a winter freeze. Also be sure to make provision for draining or blowing the pipe dry in winter.

Plastic pipe should not be laid against sharp stones or other materials that might wear against it over the years. Just make sure that soil immediately surrounding it is soft and free of stones. Flexible pipe can be bent around big stones, roots or other obstacles.

Because plastic pipe can be laid quickly, a home handyman of average competence probably could install a sprinkler system for his front lawn in a day's time. The pipe can be connected either to an outlet by the outside wall of the house or to the main water supply line inside. If a direct hookup is made to the house supply line, your local code may require you to install a check valve device — a gadget which prevents water from backing up from the sprinkler system into the domestic supply line.

With your system installed, it is fairly easy to determine how long you should allow the sprinklers to work at any given time. A common rule of thumb in northern states is that one inch of water per week will keep grass well-nourished and looking its best. Simply take an open pan to any part of your lawn, turn on the valve, and clock the time required to bring the water level in the pan up to the one inch mark. If your system has been properly balanced, the time you have clocked will be all that is needed to do a satisfactory watering job over all areas of the lawn in the future.

To make things even simpler, easy-to-install timer systems are available. You just set the timer for as long as you need to provide the necessary soaking, and your job for the week is done. At the specified time, the main valve will shut off automatically.

Proper Lighting For Medicine Chest Curbs Accidents

If you remodel your bathroom plan it so that you provide lighting where it is needed most.

The two key areas are around the mirror and inside the medicine cabinet. It is before the mirror that members of the family apply make-up, shave, comb their hair and generally take care of their grooming.

A light that goes on automatically inside the medicine cabinet when the door is opened is the best way to prevent picking up the wrong bottle in the middle of the night.

New luxury medicine cabinets provide the homeowners with an all-in-one solution to the lighting problem.

They combine full perimeter lighting in four fluorescent fixtures on all sides of the cabinet with an inside automatic light. The perimeter lighting surrounds the mirror to eliminate all dark spots and shadowed area in the reflection.

The new cabinets are available both in swing-door and sliding models. A selective light switch permits lighting either only the side lights, the top and bottom lights, or all four together.

Installation of medicine cabinets is fairly simple and many homeowners could do the job themselves.

A BEAUTIFUL LAWN...

Colorful Residents On Houseboat Row

SEATTLE (AP)—It's a lot like any other city block.

But there's this difference: when the kids run out to play, they often as not wear life preservers.

The 2000 block on Fairview North is part of houseboat row, where you can live on a raft and be just five minutes from the heart of this West Coast metropolis.

Colorful Controversy

The hundreds of houseboats strung along the shore of Lake Union, a body of water entirely surrounded by Seattle, have been a center of colorful controversy here for years.

As long as 20 years ago, the owners of solid, substantial houses near the shore were complaining about the houseboats. They were a fire hazard, householders said. They were, some added, unsightly. And they dumped raw sewage into the lake.

The houses, joined by wooden catwalks, vary from tumbledown shanties to trim bungalows. Most are of one-story but a few have an upstairs. They are mounted on logs, which are replaced from time to time as rot sets in.

Varied History

Among those who live on them are:

Samuel D. Hess, who owns a moorage for houseboats and has lived in one himself for 30 years.

Ex-Marine Robert J. Hull, who quit his postwar engineering studies at the University of Washington to buy the Tiny Tankers, a fleet of two brightly colored tank boats which furnish the lake dwellers with fuel oil.

Patrick Stoppelman, proprietor of a towboat service, and his wife and three children. "We don't feel nearly as nervous about the kids as we did living up on shore," says Stoppelman. Some children have fallen from catwalks, but Stoppelman says few have been those of houseboat families.

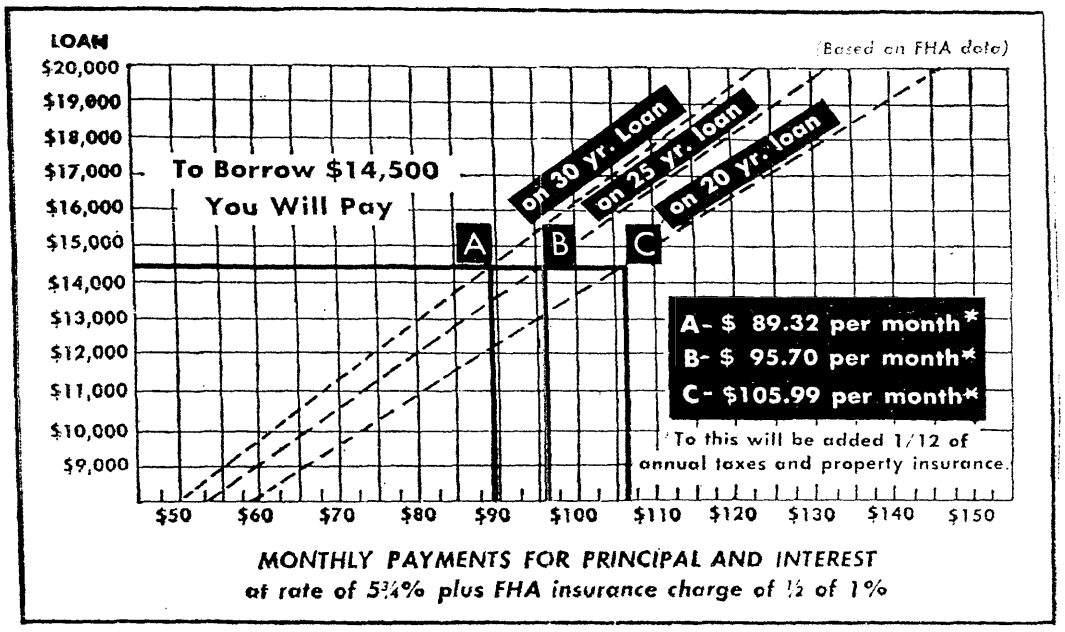
What It Costs To Borrow Money



Experts See 1960 As Good Building Year

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mortgage credit is tight and may stay tight for quite a spell.

But interest rates are not expected to go much higher, and 1960 still can be a good—not a great—housing year.

Across the country as the 1959 building season ended, the average interest rate on "conventional" mortgages, meaning those not underwritten by the government, was officially reported at 6.1 per cent.

In the West the average was 6.5 per cent. In some areas discounts, special fees, and extra charges were said to be increasing the actual cost to the home buyer.

REACHING PLATEAU

Housing officials and some industry experts believe that interest costs, whose rise began to slow residential building at midyear 1959, may be approaching a plateau at which they will remain through the early months of 1960.

On this assumption, the National Assn. of Home Builders forecasts 1,200,000 to 1,250,000 new-home starts next year.

That compares with perhaps 1,300,000 in 1959 and 1,396,000 in the nation's biggest year, 1950.

INFLATION IS CULPRIT

There is no sign that the administration will move soon to make mortgage credit easier. Tight money is its big weapon against inflation. The credit screws will stay on until inflationary pressures subside.

Commissioner Julian H. Zimmerman of the Federal Housing Administration reflected the official attitude in telling the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards (NAREB), meeting in Toronto:

"The demand for housing and the availability of money will be adequate to support a high level of construction.

THREAT TERMED SERIOUS

NAREB's misgivings were not allayed. Rising interest costs, "hidden charges" being introduced into home financing, and other aspects of the market were termed a serious threat by the realtors' president, James M. Udall of Los Angeles.

Though the interest ceiling on FHA-insured mortgages was boosted to 5¾ per cent in September—which means 6¼ per cent to the home buyer after the insurance charge is added in—builders are still being required to take discounts when they sell the mortgages to lenders.

That means they receive less than the face value of the mortgage. Some simply add enough to the price of the house to cover the difference. And Udall charged that some lenders failed to cut the discounts when the FHA rate went up.

APPROACHING LIMIT

On conventional loans the interest rate is bumping into the legal ceiling of 6 or 7 per cent imposed by the usury laws in a number of states. To get around this, some lenders reportedly have added special fees and charges to the financing costs. A home builders' official said this practice is becoming "very prevalent."

"Resistance of buyers to credit costs, and of sellers to mortgage discounts, is widely reported," said Udall, in summarzing why the housing industry believes it will not match the expected record prosperity of the rest of the economy in 1960.

Accurate Plan, Exact Dimensions Will Save On Costs

Proper planning he says, is half of any do-it-yourself project.

"By measuring accurately and knowing in advance how much material you will need and how you will use it, you can order only as much as you need and not be stuck with leftovers," he says.

Cady has this advice for the handyman beginning a do-it-yourself project:

1. Always make a simple scale drawing of the area where the work will be done. One inch equals-one-foot is a good working scale.

2. Indicate accurately the location and dimension of windows, doors, water pipes and fixtures that will make necessary special fitting of the materials to be used.

3. Determine the square footage or running footage of the area and divide by the unit measurement of the material used to determine the number of units needed. Example: In covering a 12 foot by 10 foot ceiling with one foot square insulating tiles, 120 tiles will be needed. Or, insulating an attic with four-foot-long insulating batts will require 125 batts if the toal running footage of the area between studs and rafters if 500 feet.

Home Safety List For Family Noted

If you want to provide maximum safety in your home for your family and yourself, it isn't enough merely to be alert. You have to find and eliminate accident causes before they result in injury. Remember that one-third of all fatal accidents occur in homes.

Keep kitchen curtains well away from stove.

If there are abrupt floor level changes in your house, make sure they are well indicated.

Instructions Nice

It's a good idea to keep in one convenient place all the guarantees, service agreements and instructions that come with home appliances.

Read the instructions carefully before you operate any appliance. If something goes wrong with an appliance and you don't know how to fix it, call the local utility company or the servicing agent.

Amateur Plumbers Can Simplify Job By Copper Tubing

Plagued by rusty, leaking or stopped-up water supply? One of the standard do-it-yourself chores in an old house is replacing rusted pipe with new material, assuming of course, that the house is in an area where the plumbing code permits the homeowner to perform such work.

It's a big job, but it's nothing to be afraid of. If you start out on a branch line which can be shut down without depriving the whole house of water, you will be able to get in some practice before causing any real disruption to the household. After this first experience, you should be able to judge whether you have sufficient skill to tackle bigger parts of the system.

The common rustproof water carriers are brass pipe and copper tubing. Brass pipe has to be threaded and for most amateur plumbers is harder to handle than copper.

Major virtues of copper are its easy cutting and simple connections. It comes as both a rigid tube and in a flexible form that permits bending around corners. This last feature makes flexible tube the usual choice for runs through existing walls. Flare fittings are used on flexible tubing.

1. Measure length of tube needed, cut off square at each end with a hacksaw or tube cutter, and ream out burrs and metal slivers.

2. Clean the end of the tube and the fitting socket with steel wool or sand paper. For sound joints, this step should not be omitted.

3. Apply a good paste flux to the cleaned surfaces.

4. Assemble tube and fitting, making sure the tube seats firmly in the socket of the fitting.

5. Apply heat with blow-torch and solder. Heat from the torch is applied only to the fitting. The flame is kept in motion to apply heat evenly. When the metal is hot enough to melt solder, the flame is moved away and the tip of the solder is touched to the joint. If the joint is hot enough, the solder will melt and be sucked into the joint by capillary attraction.

If the solder doesn't melt on contact, more heat should be applied. The flame should never be played on the solder itself. If a joint has been overheated and the flux has charred, the solder will not enter the joint. In this case the joint must be opened, re-cleaned and re-fluxed before attempting to solder again.

6. After soldering, surplus solder and flux are removed readily with a rag or brush while the joint is still hot.

Oil Stoves Can Be Dangerous

Kerosene heaters and oil stoves always are dangerous. Because of the increasing toll of fatal fires from these devices, the National Fire Protection Assn. advises these precautions: Never leave children alone with a lighted oil heater of any kind. Never fill an oil stove while it is lighted. Never move or carry a lighted heater. Always mop up any spilled oil before lighting a heater. Keep the stove clean and level and the wick trimmed.

END RESULT should look something like this. For popular charcoal grilling, no chimney is necessary. Wide, low lines yield modern look necessary with most new homes.

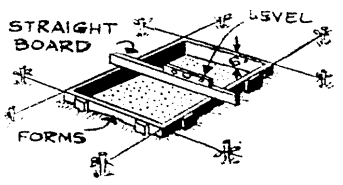
HOME RENNOVATIONS

Barbecue Pit Is An Easy Project

Even a beginner at do-it-yourself projects can produce a good looking barbecue if he follows the timeless injunction: Plan Ahead..

If your home has a stone exterior wall or a stone chimney you might consider choosing a matching or complementary type of stone for your barbecue. Construction with brick, of course, would follow the same general rules.

Pick your location facing away from the direction of prevailing summer winds and near enough to your kitchen to minimize transportation time. The next step is to choose your grill equipment. Size of top opening in your barbeque will be determined by the grille and grate size. Height of cooking surface should be 24 to 30 inches. Floor of firebox should be 6 to 9 inches below the grille for charcoal fuel, and 9 to 12 inches for wood fuel.



FIRST STEP is making form for concrete slab foundation.

DON'T SKIMP ON FOUNDATION

For most normal size barbecues a reinforced concrete slab foundation about 6 inches in depth makes a satisfactory base. In areas where frost occurs, the bottom of the slab should be below the frost line. The outside dimensions of the slab should be about 6 inches greater all around than the outside of the barbecue. Beauty will be enhanced if the slab surface is slightly below the ground line.

Lay out the boundaries of the foundation with stakes and string and excavate to the required depth. Build a level wood form and brace the outside with stakes so it will resist the pressure of the fluid concrete.

MAKE YOUR OWN FLOAT

When you have poured concrete to the top of the form, skim it level with the edge of a straight board. Smooth the surface with a flat wooden trowel known as a "float." (You can make a float by attaching a door pull to a 10" piece of 1x6.)

After the slab has set for two days, you may begin the stone work. Brick or ashlar stonework (cut stones laid in courses like brick) should be used. Attempting to build with natural odd-shaped stones is very tricky and often results in a "monsterpiece" when attempted by the novice.

USE NATURAL PATTERNS

Individual stones should be laid as they would naturally on the ground and not on end or in unnatural positions. Stones of the same size or shape should not be set side-by-side. A strong wall requires "bonding," the overlapping of two stones by another, and occasional "headers," which is running a stone crosswise in the wall.

USE GUIDE LINES

Ask your stone dealer to estimate the amount of mortar you will need. The following mortar mix is recommended for stonework: 1 part cement, 3 parts clean sand, ½ part fireclay.

String guide lines and keep the face of the wall flush by selected stones and setting them so they do not project beyond the face of the wall.

Make the joints as thin as possible and fill completely with mortar. Insert small chips of stone in all empty spaces between the stones in the interior of the wall and fill with mortar.

SMOOTH THE JOINTS

After you have laid several stones, smooth out the joints on the facing before the mortar sets by using a stick with a dull point. Thoroughly brush off all excess mortar.

Barbecue equipment such as metal grate slides, cleanout and draft doors should be placed in position and the stone laid around them. Do not try to put them in after the barbecue is finished.

COLOR OF ROOF SHOULD BE CHOSEN WITH CARE

One of the best ways to select a roof color is to choose an over-all color scheme for the house—roof, walls and trim. Then decide whether the roof color is flexible enough to harmonize with a second over-all color scheme that you might choose in the future.

Roofs last for a long time. That's why the color should be versatile.

Improved Homes Object Of Study

Do a bit of self study before you buy a place to live. Then pass on what you find to home builders.

That's the way to get houses more satisfying to the public, says a Cornell University research study.

Interviews with 2,732 urban and rural families were directed by Professor Glenn H. Beyer of the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell.

Beyer based his questions on how great a value people placed on such things as freedom, privacy, economy and family health in relation to housing.

"Unfortunately," Beyer says, "many families do not know themselves well enough to select the kind of home in which they will be most content.

"On the other hand, a family may know exactly what it wants in housing but not be able to find it."

AREA OF AGREEMENT

He found that virtually all homemakers — nearly 90 per cent — agreed they want a house where family members can spend time together.

They were less willing to concede, however, that the house should have a location which would make it easy for relatives to visit.

Three-fourths of the families agreed it was important to have a house where children's needs could be considered before others. But once the bird leaves the nest, it can stay away — only 12 per cent wanted a house big enough for married children to move in.

TWO MAIN GROUPS

In general, Beyer found two natural groupings of householders: the first group was the practical type, realistic and extroverted; the other was individualistic and idealistic, with a desire to indulge in luxuries.

The first group, Beyer says, "are apt to place relatively little emphasis on privacy, especially when privacy can be achieved only at the expense of other family members."

For instance, they would want separate bedrooms primarily for the good of the child; the second group would want such privacy "to keep the child out of the parents' hair."

Persons placing a high value on freedom, prestige and leisure might want a home that will appeal to their sense of beauty rather than one with maximum comforts and convenience.

"Yet such persons may occasionally sacrifice what the other group would consider basic necessities to indulge in luxuries."

City dwellers consider the location of a house more important than do rural residents. And urban homeowners are more highly motivated by social consciousness —they are more likely to respond to the social pressures of keeping up with the Joneses.

The prestige group, Beyer comments, "was least concerned with leaving the car out all night. A possible explanation may be that the car is one of the most common status symbols and a symbol has little value, obviously, unless it is displayed."

The study found that persons basing their house choice mainly on cost gave the least attention to architectural planning features. They were less concerned with having to walk in the rain from car to house, hearing kitchen noises in the living room, and sharing rooms with other family members.

"Spare rooms and special features are likely to be looked upon very coldly by this group as being unnecessary and too expensive," Beyer says.

Beyer says his findings indicate that learning not just what people want in a house but their underlying reasons "may lead to new solutions that more nearly fit people's requirements for shelter."

CAULKING IN COLOR

Caulking compound is available in several different colors and comes in two principal types—a gun type for use in a caulking gun which forces the compound into cracks in ribbon-like form, and a type applied with a knife. Caulking compound is also available in rolls of ready-to-apply strips.

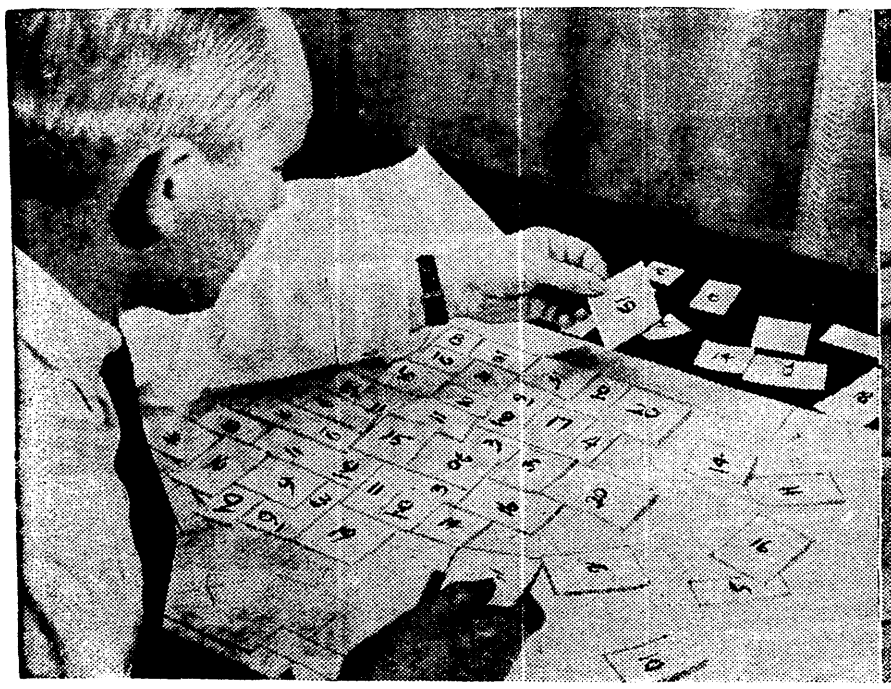
How To Build a Flagstone Terrace



PLOT EXACTLY how your flagstone jig-saw puzzle will fit together. Use cardboard cut to scale of stones, which vary in size by units of 6".

LAY THE STONES on a 2-inch layer of sand spread over firm base, closely following established plan. Stones are heavy enough to seat firmly.

There's more to building a flagstone terrace than simply levelling off a spot in the backyard and dropping in some flagstones. A big flagstone might weigh nearly 200 pounds. If you don't know exactly where you'll put it before you pick it up, your back may not last through the job.

With advance planning, however, building a terrace is well within the capability of the handyman and a project which pays dividends in personal satisfaction and increased home value.

Robert Wands of Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y. greatly enhanced the beauty of his rear grounds with about 550 sq. ft. of rectangular stone in colors ranging from blue and gray through warmer browns, rusts and lilac.

Pattern stone comes in squares and rectangles varying in size by units of 6". The No. 1 size is 1' square, the No. 2 is 1' by 1'6", and so on up to the giant No. 21, which is 2'6" by 3'6".

Stones shown here are 1½" thick, for use on a 2" bed of sand spread over compacted cinders.

The all-important first step is to plan the pattern with scaled pieces of cardboard. Proper quantity of each size stone can then be ordered. If you faithfully follow the plan, lifting and carrying will be held to a minimum.

THIS MONSTER weighs nearly 200 pounds and is a prime example of why an advance plan is essential

FINISHED TERRACE adds a new dimension to outdoor living. Pleasing pattern was not the result of chance, but of careful planning which started before stone was ordered.

What You Can Do With A Fence

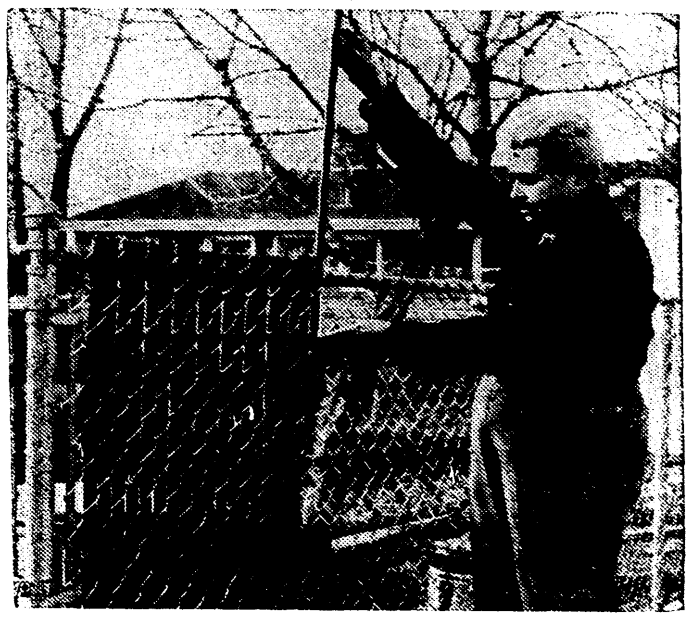
FIBERBOARD WEAVE: Different look and high privacy is provided by this fence, made by weaving foot-wide pieces of pressed wood between 4x4 posts.



FENCING INGENUITY: This homeowner is converting a woven wire fence into a privacy-producing barrier by inserting inch-wide strips into the links. Friction holds strips in place.

Good Fencing Can Provide Source For Outside Room

The growing popularity of outdoor living is doing more than making charcoal chefs out of men who a few years ago couldn't start a fire.

Patio pastimes are revolutionizing fencing. Fences are creating what amounts to outdoor rooms, well shielded from the side but open to the sky.

Today's fences are a far cry from the static and monotonous picket style of the early century. An infinite variety is offered to the privacy-seeking homeowner, who can choose from a wide selection of materials and styles.

In addition to promoting privacy, a fence has other advantages: it sets off a home and can make it appear larger, it protects lawns and gardens from dogs, rabbits and other neighborhood fauna, and it enhances the value of the property.

An exterior material gaining favor in fence construction because of appearance, durability and excellent paint - holding characteristics is tempered hardboard of the pressed wood type. It's easy to cut and adaptable to a wide variety of shapes and patterns.

In constructing such a panel fence, remember that the panel does not supply structural strength. A sound framework must be erected and the panels nailed to firm support.

A variation of the panel principle was used in connection with the research house built at Knoxville, Tenn., by the Research Institute of the National Assn. of Home Builders. Expanded metal, a mesh-like material that looks attractive and ventilates, was alternated with sections of solid panelling.

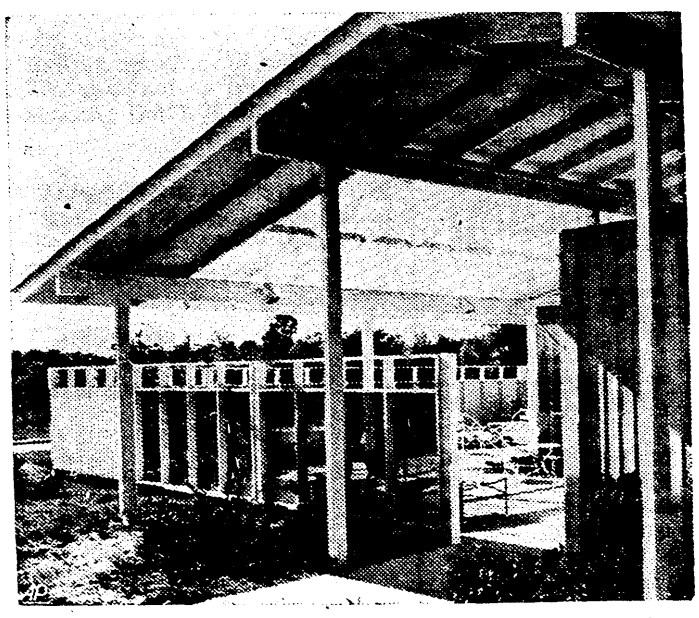
Some people with chain link wire fences have hit upon an ingenious way to obtain visual privacy: they insert narrow strips of hardboard vertically through the links. This produces privacy with out completely blocking the flow of air.



PLEASING COMBINATION: Patio was made into an "outdoor room" in this experimental home, where sections of solid fence panelling were alternated with a wire mesh.

New Use For Old Material In Revamping

Decorating with stone is becoming an increasingly popular means of increasing re-sale value of development homes. Both exterior and interior use of modern textured stone veneers, now available in lightweight, pre - cut shapes, offer practical home improvement projects for do-it-yourselfers.

Co-ordination is the key to successful use of stone in home decoration, according to the Building Stone Institute. To bring the outside indoors and give the illision of spaciousness, modern designers suggest repeating interior walls the same type and color for stone used for exterior walls. Lime-stone, sandstone, bluestone, travertine, quartzite, flagstone and marble are some of the quarried stones which are available in easy-to-handle forms.

Architects and designers often use matching types of stone for flooring in the patio and adjoining ground floor rooms to increase the visual relationship of outdoor and indoor areas. Stone walls should contrast in texture and type to the stone used for flooring to achieve the most decorative effect.

MATCH UP PLANTERS

Matching stone planters located outside the entrance door and in the living room or foyer are another way to accentuate the outdoor-indoor relationship.

Colors in quarried stone range from pastel yellow, rose, beige and blue tones to deep purple, indigo, charcoal and jet black. The modern stone veneers are easy to install in geometric or random ashlar-type patterns that create distinction.

The remarkable thinness of precut stone has greatly simplified handling. Some types of stone can be purchased in thicknesses as small as ⅜-inch and can be applied to an interior wall with a strong adhesive.

Older methods of adding a stone to a plaster wall involve galvanized ties, one end of which is firmly attached to the original wall and the other imbedded in the mortar between stones.

Stone flooring can be laid over a wooden floor. If a thin evenly cut stone is used, the installation can be accomplished with mastic. For thicker stones, asphalt building paper is spread over wood flooring and the stones laid in a bed of cement.

Packaged kits for fireplaces recently have been developed by stone fabricaters. When installing a fireplace it is important to check local fire ordinances.

VALUABLE ADVICE

A home should be structurally sound before it receives any form of major modernization. Experts advise calling in an architect for an opinion before investing in extensive alterations or improvements.

Sewer Failures Caused By Fats

Congealed fats and tree roots are the two principal causes of house sewer failures. The cost of periodic rodding of housesewers is an expensive price to pay for the quick convenience of pouring waste fats down the kitchen drain or into the toilet bowl. Wise housewives pour fats into an empty can or other container, let it harden and then dispose of it with other garbage.

The best preventative for tree roots is a seal of lead and oakum used in joints of cast iron pipe. The cost of digging up a lawn, driveway or sidewalk to reach a damaged drain pipe can amount to many times the price of a proper original installation.

EASY IMPROVEMENT: Insulating tiles are an easy solution for ceiling problems in a basement or an upstairs room in an older house. They can be stapled to furring strips or cemented to an existing surface, and can be cut to fit around fixtures.

Hide Cracks In Ceiling With Tiles

Few signs of old age can give a house a dilapidated look as quickly as plaster cracks in the ceiling. And the sad fact is that ceilings often crack long before the rest of the house is in need of major repairs.

There's an easy way to end ceiling woes while at the same time increasing the attractiveness and livability of the room. Perforated insulating ceiling tiles designed to cut down noise and provide a decorative surface at the same time will do the trick in any room of the house.

According to Sheldon Cady of Allied Chemical's Barrett Division, these tiles will absorb 30 to 40 per cent of the noise that would rebound from an ordinary ceiling.

An indication of the popularity of ceiling tiles is the prediction from housing specialists that by 1965 there will be a 400 per cent increase in the use of acoustic tiles in the construction of new homes.

Available through all lumber dealers, insulating tiles have interlocking tongue - and - groove edges to make application quick and easy.

There are two ways to apply insulating tile to ceilings or walls —directly to the existing surface with cement, or by first nailing wood furring strips and then stapling the tile to these. It's always a good idea to make a scale plan of your ceiling before you start.

Ideally, you should start at the center of the ceiling and work out from that point. This will make your tile come out exactly equal on all four sides of the room. For attaching the tiles to furring strips, the only tool you need is a stapling gun which you can buy or rent from most lumber dealers.

New Combatant Used In Paints

Of recent development are the blister proof paints which permit the water vapor generated within the house to pass through the paint film without blistering it. At the same time, they prevent liquid moisture in the form of rain or sleet from passing through.

No longer is "polka dot" paint an object. Enjoying increasing popularity are the multi-color paints which make it possible to apply two or more colors simultaneously in a radom, spatter effect.

Rollers Made For Every Job

No matter what your painting job, there's a roller made for the purpose. They come with a tiny surface for painting next to woodwork and for window frames; others are wide enough to cover an entire wall in a couple dozen strokes.

There's also variety in handles. Some are up to six feet long so you can paint the ceiling while standing on the floor.

Factory Look Predicted For Future Homes

CHICAGO (AP) — The home that Americans love to call their castle may one day be geared like a factory.

But will it be home?

"That's the problem in creating the super-home of the future will all its gadgets," says a Chicago paint manufacturer.

William M. Stuart, at a meeting of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America, warned that the American woman won't take kindly to a new home unless it looks like the home of her childhood with its warmth and security.

LABORATORY LOOK

"The American woman could have robots to cook, clean and take all the drudgery out of her housekeeping today if she were willing to live in a home resembling an electronics laboratory," he said.

According to Stuart, women want labor-saving devices, but they won't sacrifice traditional beauty to get them.

"No matter how physically comfortable or practical it might be, an all-tile-and-plastic room that could be cleaned or even sterilized hospital clean in minutes would prove unattractive to women," he said.

IMPROVEMENTS AHEAD

Stuart predicts finishes for homes will be more durable, easier to clean, dust-repellant and easier to re-decorate.

He envisions windows that open themselves, push-button doors and furniture that dusts itself.

But the problem is to make the machinery of the home virtually invisible.

"We know how to build more practical homes than we do, but no one would care to live in them," Stuart said.

CONSTRUCTION EASY

Basement Ideal For A-Shelter

By JOHN SCAMEBORN

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP) —A basement shelter can save your life—and an atomic attack isn't necessary to make it pay off.

Naturally, it's the safest place to be in case of enemy attack. But it's also handy in case of tornados or extreme storms.

Of the various types of shelters — basement, aboveground, and underground — the basement type is easiest to build and is primarily designed for the do-it-yourself fan.

A fallout shelter needs thickens to keep out deadly radioactivity, not just strength to hold it together. The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization in Battle Creek says that eight inches of concrete is sufficient shielding, the equivalent of 12 inches of earth or 30 inches of wood.

The shelter should have 10 square feet of floor space for each person who will be using it. It should provide for the needs of a family for two weeks, and must have ample room for storage, movement, and sleeping.

COSTS AROUND $200

A typical basement shelter, recommended by OCDM, and adequate for a family of six, is just over 7 x 8 feet, and can be built of timber and solid concrete block for material cost of from $150 to $200, according to the government agency. Blocks are 4 x 8 x 16 inches and wood ranges from 1" sheathing to 4 x 4 posts and 2 x 6 joists.

The roof, with timber support, is covered with two layers of blocks. A baffle-type entrance provides access, and vent holes low in the wall provide fresh air. Bricks may be used for this type shelter, but should be 10" thick for the same protection as 8" concrete blocks.

Items to remember in planning a shelter, as recommended by OCDM, include:

1. The entrance should have at least one right-angle turn, as most radiation goes in straight lines, and little will bounce around the corner.

2. The open entrance and wall vents will provide ventilation in the recommended basement shelter, and may be augmented by a blower or vent pipes.

3. A radio is necessary to receive instructions, but the shelter mass may cut down reception. A reception check should be made after the shelter is built, and an outside antenna installed if necessary.

4. Provision must be made for non-commercial electricity. Batteries and unshielded flashlight bulbs will provide "nightlight" illumination, with flashlights or lanterns for more light. An electric outlet should be built in, as commercial power may still be available after a tornado or attack.

5. Windows should be shielded with concrete for radiation protection if they're in the shelter. Other windows should be blocked off to prevent shattered glass in the basement.

Shelter contents should include bunks, a two-week supply of food (canned) and a two-week supply of water (minimum seven gallons per person). Any necessary special foods, utensils, cooking equipment, matches, paper plates, napkins and cups also should be included.

Sanitary facilities also are necessary—a 20-gallon garbage can, a 10-gallon can for human waste, chlorine and DDT as disinfectants.

IF WOOD

Refinish Before Covering Floors

Smetimes the way to obtain a lovely floor is not by putting down a new covering, but exposing the old.

The householder has a choice of a number of ditterent finishes to beautify and protect his floors —clear varnish, carnish stain, penetrating sealer and floor enamel.

Where the wood has a beautiful grain pattern, the choice is generally a clear varnish which gives a richer appearance, higher gloss and deeper luster than any other finish. But be sure to ask your dealer for floor varnish which is formulated to withstand abrasion.

SEALERS ARE STURDY

Many people prefer a penetrating sealer which penetrates into the wood and seals the fibers into a solid mass. Since this is not a surface finish, it wears only as the wood itself wears. Scratches and dents don't show. But this finish can be applied only to bare wood or to floors on which it has been previously used. Varnish must be removed completely before a penetrating sealer is applied.

If the color of the floor is not quite what you want, it is possible to stain the bare wood to the desired shade and then varnish over it. A simpler method is to use a varnish stain which combines a stain with a varnish and can be used over old varnish, saving the trouble of sanding.

On any refinishing job, if the old varnish is badly worn and scratched, the best thing to do is to remove it entirely with a sanding machine that can be rented either from many paint dealers or companies specializing in renting such equipment. The dealer will tell you how to use it. Be sure to follow his directions closely.

If sanding is not required, the first and most important step in refinishing is to remove all wax and polish completely: neither varnish nor enamel will adhere to these substances.

Use turpentine, odorless paint thinner, naphtha or special wax removers, blotting up the dissolved wax with old rags and changing rags frequently. Be sure to have plenty of ventilation. And don't smoke!

After wax has been removed, get rid of any ingrained dirt from bare spots with steel wool and then touch up these spots with varnish. After the touch-up work has dried, apply one or two coats to the entire floor. Work toward a door and you won't paint yourself into a corner.

Varnish should not be stirred or shaken because this causes air bubbles which will give an uneven surface. Varnish—and enamel — should not be brushed out like paint.

The correct method is to load the brush generously and then flow the varnish or enamel with the grain of the wood. Then stroke across the grain. Finally, using a nearly dry brush, go lightly with the grain, using long strokes to pick up any surplus.

Varnish should be applied only when the humidity is low, the temperature between 60 and 80 degrees, and with adequate ventilation. The room should be as dust-free as possible.

IMPORTANT PROTECTION

Thanks to the filter-like composition of millions of tiny air cells, four inches of rock wool used in home insulation is as effective as 125 inches of stone, 120 inches of concrete, 70 inches of brick or 15 inches of wood.

Pep Up Room Using Colorful Ceramic Tile

Surface the top with colorful ceramic tile, a time-tested covering material. Readily available in over 100 colors, a multitude of shapes, sizes, textures and patterns, ceramic tile is waterproof, scratchproof and one of the most durable of all surfacings.

The job can be done quickly and easily by using an adhesive. If it's necessary to cut glazed tile use an ordinary glass cutter. Score the glazed surface along the line of cut and break the tile in to by placing its unglazed surface over a nail and pressing down.

Trim tiles should be used around the edges of the radiator top. These pieces have edges that slope down and are known as "surface bullnose" units. A "double surface bullnose" is made for corners.

Don't worry about spacing tiles. Modern U. S.-made ceramic tiles have spacing lugs on their sides that automatically do the job for you.

Make sure the surface to be tiled is clean and dry. Butter the tiles individually with a thin layer of adhesive. Press the tiles firmly into place. Wait a day before the next step. Then mix grout with water to the consistency of heavy cream. Grout is the fine, white portland cement used for filling in tile joints. Like the adhesive and tiles, it can be purchased from your local building supply outlet.

The grout can be forced into the tile joints with a sponge or squeegee. Once the joints are thoroughly filled, wipe away excess with a damp cloth or sponge and polish with a dry towel.

For complete curing, the tile joints should be kept moist for about three days with wet newspapers.

Safety Rules For Handymen

An amazing transformation sometimes takes place in many men when they swing into action in a home workshop.

Careful, methodical types suddenly throw caution and intelligence to the wind. They feed work into power saws, grinding machines and lathes with the abandon of a maniac. As a result, home handymen contribute their full share to the four million home accidents which occur every year.

A committee sponsored by a large rug firm recently compiled a series of safety hints after a survey of common accidents that originate with the home handyman. Here they are:

1. First of all, get organized. Have all your material close at hand so you don't have to step over obstacles to get to items you'll need.

WATCH YOUR WORK

2. Don't look away when you're using equipment; one slip of the saw and you may be minus a finger.

3. When you're using tools, try to avoid uncomfortable positions. Don't take an awkard stance from which you could easily be thrown off balance.

4. Use power tools or hand tools only for the functions for which they were designed. Know the limitations of your tools and don't push them beyond those limits.

PADLOCK POWER TOOLS

5. Power tools should be padlocked when not in use to discourage youngsters from trying them. Better yet, find a way to enclose the workshop and keep the door locked when you are away.

6. Don't neglect to use goggles if there's danger of flying splinters, especially if you're grinding.

7. Don't reach toward the cutting edges of a machine until the power switch has been turned off and the blades have stopped moving.

8. Don't wear a tie or other clothing that can get caught in the machinery.

9. Don't overreach; use a stepladded when necessary, but be sure to have someone standing by if you're climbing high.

10. Never stand on a chair with rollers; it can slip out from under you.

11. Vary your task. A professional carpenter will cut lumber for awhile, turn to nailing, then measuring and then return to sawing. This is less tiring and cramping.

12. Don't work until you're overtired. Tiredness increases your chances of having an accident. Quit while you're ahead.

"No workshop, no matted how well equipped, is complete without a first aid kit," according to Dr. John Henderson, authority on first aid and safety. "Even with precautions accidents do occur. Having a first aid kit close at hand will lessen possible serious after-effects."

CLIMATE IS FACTOR

Cost Of Building Can Be Estimated

How To Estimate Home Plan Cost

By DAVID L. BOWEN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

There isn't any perfect system. But there are ways a prospective homeowner can get a rough idea of whether a particular plan is inside his financial range.

Complete accuracy is impossible because of the number of factors which change by region and sometimes even season of the year. Labor costs vary widely across the United States. There are great differences in the price of materials. Plywood, for instance, is far cheaper in the state of Washington, where much of it is produced, than in Missouri.

MANY UNCERTAINTIES

Climate and local construction codes also substantially effect the price of a home. Because heating and insulation requirements are not as high and the frost line is not so deep, less material and labor are required to build a home in the South than in the North. Some building codes are very strict and specify use of super-safe materials; others permit a contractor to use cheaper substitutes.

The health of the local economy also is important. If a town is booming and every contractor busy, it will be harder to get a bargain bid than if contractors are starving for work.

Keep in mind also that there is a functional and a luxury material for practically every part of a house. Oak floors are more expensive than plywood covered with asphalt tile. The cheapest kitchen equipment might cost several thousand dollars less than the most expensive.

These factors and others make it impossible to predict precisely the cost of building a particular home in a particular area. A house that costs $15,000 in one city may cost $22,500 in another. The expense for land, not included in the formula, also varies greatly.

There is a way, however, to take some of the construction factors into account. Each year the Federal Housing Administration announces the size and the cost of the average three-bedroom frame house built in various regions of the United States. This reveals the average square foot building cost. House size and costs in 70 different cities also have been announced, which makes it possible to compare square foot costs in each city to the national average. The government statistics form the basis of the cost calculations presented here.

YIELDS APPROXIMATION

The most important thing to remember in using the formula is that the result is a rough approximation. There is only one certain way to discover what a house will cost to build and that is to have a contractor make an estimate based on detailed plans and the architect's list of materials. An error of 10 per cent ($2,000 on a $20,000 house) is not unusual with this type of formula. And it could be more.

With that introduction, here's an explanation of the operation of the cost table shown above. It was worked out by Architect Rudolph Matern of Jamaica, N. Y., a nationally known residential architect.

The first step is to multiply the square foot living area of the ground floor of your plan by $10.54, the average square foot cost during a four-month period ending Jan. 6, 1958, for a rectangular frame house including one bath, an average kitchen, three bedrooms and a full basement. This FHA figure is the latest available.

TWO-STORY SAVING

If your plan has two-stories, add 50 per cent of No. 1 as the cost of the second floor. This illustrates the basic economy of two - story construction: you get the second story at half the price of the first.

If your plan is 1½ story, add 15 per cent of the cost of No. 1 for an unfinished attic plus $5.50 per square foot of living area if it is to be finished attic.

COUNT THE CORNERS

For a split-level design, add 10 per cent of item one (which in a split would be combined area of living and bedroom levels) as the cost of the lower level.

Since extra corners mean extra carpentry, add up to 5 per cent of No. 1 for irregular shapes. Although not the most attractive, the cheapest house to build is a perfect rectangle.

Seven other additions are possible on the table. Then you may be able to do some subtraction. If your plan does not include a basement, subtract $1 per square foot of No. 1. If no heating is required, subtract $1,000 or a proportionate amount for partial heating.

The result is your preliminary total. The final step is to adjust this in accordance with the FHA regional cost differences. Find the city nearest you and add or subtract the listed percentage.

After you add the cost of the land, that's the approximate price of your dream house.

THE DIAGRAM above shows the wiring system of a modern home. It will serve as a guide for you in case you'd like to know how your home is wired. HERE IS a cutaway drawing showing a shelter adequate to protect six persons from radiation in nuclear attack. The drawing is based on plans released by Civil Defense officials.

Check Wiring; Be Sure It's Up-To-Date

If you live in an older home, the chances are good that your available electrical horsepower is well below your needs.

You can't lay the blame for this on the builders of the house. Twenty years ago, folks used electricity to supply light and little else. The only electric appliance likely in the kitchen, for instance, was a refrigerator.

And the number of electric appliances in homes keeps increasing. Automatic washers, clothes dryers, dishwashers and garbage disposal units are no longer considered luxuries. Air conditioning is rapidly gaining popularity.

MORE CHANNELS REQUIRED

Proper wiring nor these insulations is necessary to avoid difficulties such as service interruptions due to overloaded circuits and will help assure better operating efficiencies from each unit.

When voltage drop becomes excessive in the circuit between the fuse box and the appliance or light source because of overloading, it results in poor lighting and inefficient or totally ineffective appliance operation. A 5 per cent voltage loss, for example, produces a 10 per cent loss of heat in any heating appliance and a 17 per cent loss of light from an incandescent lamp.

The usual modernization job can be divided into two main parts. The first is getting additional power from the electric utility company into the house, and the second is ditributing it properly where needed.

TWO-WIRE NOT ENOUGH

"Service entrance" is the term electricians give to the wires that run from the utility pole into the house. In the old days entrances were almost invariably two-wire, one "hot" and one "ground." To bring in sufficient power for modern living and operate any 220-volt appliance, a three-wire service entrance is required. Two of these wires are hot, and the third ground. The heavier these wires are, the more power they can carry.

The incoming electricity is split up by a "service panel" which divides the power among the various circuits. Fuse protection is provided on both the main supply and each individual circuit.

Frequently in a modernization job, the old lighting circuits can be left undisturbed. By installing new outlets to service the big appliances that were overloading the old ones, the system can be put back into balance.

Do-It-Yourself No Longer A Fad

Remember, about 10 years ago, when nearly everybody was trying to guess how long the do-it-yourself "fad" would last?

In case you hadn't noticed, it's no longer a fad; it's an accepted part of the modern way of life. It is taken so much for granted that studies on the effect of the do-it-yourself movement are seldom heard of any more.

The truth is that more persons are doing-it-themselves these days than at any time in the past, even when the subject was being talked and written about a lot more. Homeowners are buying more lumber and other materials than they ever did. Books, magazines and newspaper articles featuring construction and repair projects are continuing to attract a large readership. And the sale of tools, especially those of the power variety, are at an all-time high.

It was thought for a time that the establishment of organizations specializing in home repairs might cut into the do-it-yourself field. These groups enable a homeowner to call a central point to get a repair job done rather than an individual plumber or electrician or carpenter. While these outfits appear to be doing well, there are no signs of any slackening in the sales of items used by the homeowners who fix things themselves.

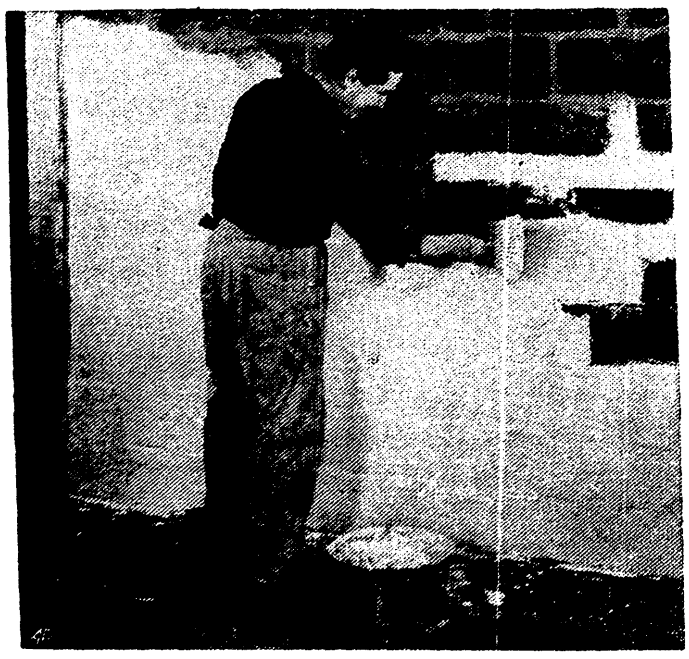
IN RAINY weather, inspect wall to determine exact source of seepage or water leaks.

PLUG ANY holes using fast drying cement sold for that purpose in paint stores.

HOLD PLUG in wall for about three minutes. Wait 10 minutes and trim with knife.



NOW YOU'RE ready to cover the wall with a heavy duty portland cement paint. Moisture won't hurt it. In fact, moisture will improve its cure and make it stronger.

Fix Concrete Breaks Right

Cut out the old concrete with a hammer and cold chisel so the bottom of the crack will be wider than the top. Remove all chips with a stiff brush. Then flush the area with water. This will keep the old concrete from robbing moisture from the patching material.

Fill the crevice with a stiff mixture of new cement. Tap it lightly to make certain that the entire opening is filled. After the patch begins to set, press it hard with a wooden float, adding more patching material if necessary. Then finish off to match the old work.

ALONG WITH POWER

Old-Fashioned Tools Useful

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The entrance of power tools into the workshop of the home handyman has not eliminated the need for a variety of hand tools. A project on which electrically-driven machines are being utilized can be stymied by the absence of a particular hand tool at the proper moment during the undertaking.

As a general rule, most persons use a reasonable amount of care in the selection of power tools. Price naturally plays a part in their choice, but they give consideration to other factors. They look at the construction of a machine, want to see how it operates and express more than passing interest in the name of the manufacturer. In short, there is a firm realization in the value of quality. They want a product that will give good service and have a long life.

This attention to quality is far less noticeable in the matter of hand tools. The average person, unlike the professional mechanic, is far too inclined to put price first in the purchase of screwdrivers, pliers, hammers and other hand tools. Yet it is in this particular area where quality is vital, since a poorly-made hand tool will not work properly from the start, entirely aside from the fact that it may be completely inoperative in a short time.

QUALITY IS VITAL

It is unfortunate, but true, that most of us can not detect the difference between a good hand tool and a poor one. We know only after we have used it. The appearance of a quality tool is copied closely. The professional can tell the difference instantly. The amateur can not.

What, then, is the solution to this ever present problem? How do you and I know that the hand tool we are about to buy is a good one? Frankly, we can't be sure. We have to rely, to a certain extent, on the price, since we can not escape the fact that in this realistic world, we generally get what we pay for.

LEARN BY EXPERIENCE

But we can inspect and feel and compare the merchandise, not only to get the best buy at the moment, but to gain the shopping experience that will enable us to be a more discerning purchaser the next time. Eventually we will be able to tell instantly, as a professional can, which hand tool falls into the quality class.

Effects Of Colors Decorator's Dream

Modern flooring materials have outgrown simple utility and now frequently qualify on their own as the prime center of design interest in the decoration of a room.

More than a thousand different colors are available in a remarkable range of textures and patterns. Rubber and solid vinyl tiles range from replicas of ancient marbles to oak planks and terrazzo. There are metallic patterns which appear to be sprinkled with gold, silver and jewels.

Since pre-cut insets and feature strips are easily available in multicolors, it now is possible for the amateur interior decorator to achieve professional distinction of design.

Solid vinyl and vinyl combination floors are particularly easy to install. A paintbrush spreads the adhesive and ordinary scissors will cut the tile to fit the edges of a room.

While miracle plastic tiles are increasing in popularity, other types of flooring still have much to offer.

Least expensive of all permanent resilient floor is asphalt tile, which gained tremendous popularity during and just after World War II. It since has met heavy competition from more luxurious floors—but still is popular, especially for basement and recreation rooms.

Nothing has yet been able to surpass the foot comfort of cork tile, and its warm tone makes it a natural choice for bedrooms. Rubber tile also offers luxurious softness underfoot and has top resistance to indentation

PAINTING TIP

Never dip more than one-third of your brush into the paint. If you do, it will become too heavily loaded and the paint will run excessively on your surface. To remove excess paint, slap the brush gently against the inside of the can.
